RELLEVILLE.

ALTHOUGH the case of John Sweeney McGura v. N. A. Appleby was set down for Friday, neither party appeared and the police magistrate himself was absent. Although an order was given estreating Appleby's bail for not appearing on Tuesday last, no effort has been made to carry the order of the court into effect. One of the aureties, Stephen Lazier, is a "solid man." Where Appleby is gone to is not known by the outside world, but the general impression is that he is rusticating on the other side. As the offence is an extraditable one, the probabilities are that he will be sent for when his where-last week argument was heard on the writ of baleas corpus on behalf of and for the release of James Walsh from Longae Point asylum. The court of three judges in pronouncing judgment regretted to have to quash the writ of habeas corpus, but the Provincial Act, like many others in Province of Quebec, was strangely contradictory. It addined, however, the power of a curator for drunkenness to be the same as a comptor for prodigality, and was explicit in wating that an interdiction for drunken nees had all the effects of an interdiction for insanity. Hon. Justice Monek admitted that it was a most extraordinary law, but the proceedings by which Walsh had been confined in the inebriate asylum were perfectly regular under the statute. and he would have to be taken back. Justice Ramsay dissented from the judgment, and considered the commitment illegal.
