The Stuyvesant Sun informs its readers that its backlogs are broken. According to the Sun the hotel-keepers of the village have paid up their subscriptions in full, and being a supporter of the Scott Act the moral backbone of the editor is shocked at receiving so much of the wages of "sin."

The Pioner hangman, it is now said, is a resident of Kingston. He returned there on Wednesday and got a hot reception. The people are so incensed at his bungling that his life in that city will be made intolerable. On Sunday he attended a meeting of the Salvation Army.

James Wingfield, formerly a soldier in the Royal Canadian Rifles, committed suicide in his boarding house at Kingston on Monday morning about one o'clock by cutting his throat with a razor. Deceased was a strictly temperate man, and leaves a wife and family, from whom he was separated.

Mr. Asa Choate entered an action against the town of Port Hope to compel them to build a bridge at Molson's mill dam. The suit came off last week at the county court, in session at Cobourg, with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. The town will now have to pay law costs as well as to build the bridge.

Lieut. W. Pengilly and Hattie Abercrombie, both being officers in the Saved Army, the former at Campbellford and the latter at Peterboro, were joined in matrimony on Tuesday evening. An admission fee of 25c. was charged to those wishing to witness the ceremony. The bride received a number of valuable presents.

A couple of young Port Hope lovers went out on Thursday evening of last week in a large row-boat for a little pleasure on the lake. The wind was blowing off land and they drifted out into the lake. The whole town next morning and forenoon was in a state of excitement as to their fate. About noon a despatch was received from Newtonville, stating they were both safe and sound at that burg.

The editor of the Georgetown Herald thus honestly and openly confesses his financial failure:—"Like a number of New York firms, the Georgetown Herald has suspended payment, not because of a lack of willingness, but because of a lack of funds." The Georgetown publisher is one more victim added to the list of those who have found by experience that it requires a practical man to conduct a newspaper successfully.

Owing to the inability of the plaintiff to prove the ownership of the Norseman, the case of Braun vs. Gildersleeve was adjourned until next assizes. It appears the plaintiff bought a ticket at Rochester for Cobourg during the season of 1883, but the steamer not calling at that port Braun was landed in Port Hope on Sunday morning, and being without money he had to walk to Cobourg. Plaintiff is an old man, 75 years of age, and he claims he suffered injury from the fatigue from which he has not yet recovered. He sues for $200 damages.

The Gravenhurst Banner says: Dan Cameron, a young man working in the saw in Meikle's saw mill was struck in three different places, when the teeth were torn out by the bumper; the wound in his side being the worst. Dan McMillan also got hurt in the shoulder, but not seriously. Dr. Cornell was in attendance a few minutes after and bound the wounds up. Another serious accident occurred at Taylor's mill on the 9th inst. C. Miller, an employee, whilst working on the jack ladder, fell a distance of ten feet or more, dislocating his ankle joint and fracturing one of the bones of the leg.

From scores of trees throughout the country may be seen great webs of caterpillars, and these pests have been allowed to thrive in the warmth of their abode apparently without any means being used for their destruction. Now the mass of life has matured to large active caterpillars of various colors, such as may be seen everywhere "you walk, and they here when possession of trees and are living luxuriantly on the current leaves of the garden. Caterpillars seem to fulfil only one duty—that of devouring—and until the change in their life takes place they eat every green thing they fasten upon. There would be more fruit if farmers would prevent the growth of the caterpillar, and this to a great extent could be done by gathering the webs from the trees just as the birds begin to shoot, and destroy them with fire.

Mary Hadlem writes that rats have so strong an aversion to the odor of peppermint that they will not enter rooms or bins where it prevails. She says of the peppermint plant:—"We place it in the oats, rye and corn, when they are brought in, and some goes under the pigstye. Though we no longer have any rats, we continue to use the plant, for fear they may make us a visit." If this is so, in the absence of the oil of peppermint would answer the same purpose.

On Saturday the boiler in Cooper's planing mill, Braosebridge, succumbed to the pressure, and became a total wreck. The escaping steam forced a hole through the wall at the back of the boiler, and a column of scalding water and steam rushed past the open door of Mr. P. Masters' house, just inside of which Mrs. Masters was seated. She was just on the point of moving her seat outside the door when the accident happened, and had the explosion been a minute later, she would in all probability have been very severely injured. The lad who was acting as stoker and Mr. Jos. Cooper were in the engine house immediately before the explosion, but had fortunately been called to other parts of the mill. The only injury inflicted upon the machinery was the upsetting of a couple of machines and a general displacement of belts and other moveable articles.

The Ontario and Quebec railway is to be opened for traffic on Dominion Day. Much of the unlooked for delay has arisen from the appearance of what are called "sinks" in the roadway. These occur from the subsidence of the soil, owing to the presence of quicksands below the surface. Some of these "sinks" have been of considerable extent, breaking down the road, ties, rails—even on one occasion a train of ballast cars. When the G. W. R. was under construction the quicksands near Copetown gave rise to a similar condition of things, and caused delay and loss. Fillings on the C. P. R. east of Winnipeg were found to be equally troublesome, but time and patience overcome even such difficulties, and when a sound bottom is reached, the business is over. The coming completion of the Ontario and Quebec railway will open a new route to Ottawa and Montreal, passing through a section of country that has not been hitherto traversed by a through line, but has been dependent for communication upon branch lines running in the general direction of north and south.

The annual picnic of S. S. No. 16, Reach, was held in Mr. Littlejohn's grove on Friday, June 13th. The attendance was large, consisting of visitors from Uxbridge, Scott, Udora, Leaskdale, Valentynse and Sunderland. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly at croquet, swings and other amusements, which were provided by the teachers. About 4 p. m. Mr. Scott called the audience to order and requested Mr. Geo. St. John to occupy the chair. After some remarks on the subject and advantages of such gatherings, the chairman prefaced a very fine programme, consisting of dialogues and recitations by the pupils, readings by Messrs. A. Douglas, J. Littlejohn and Miss M. Gregg. A very interesting address was given by Rev. Mr. Lloyd, of Sunderland, in which he contrasted the educational systems of England and Canada, passing many eulogiums on the thoroughness of the latter, which he believed to be second to none. Music was furnished by the Misses St. John, Douglas and Sexton, assisted by the picnic choir. Mr. Dudgeon rendered a few selections on the flute in good style. A sumptuous repast was provided by the ladies, to which all did justice.

Miss May Whyte, of Mount Pleasant, has been so seriously ill for over a month with a violent attack of hiccoughing, which has baffled all the physicians, that she is not expected to recover.

On Thursday night Lake Couchiching was the scene of unworldly excitement. Mr. Wm. Payne had been seen to go out sailing in his canoe during a big storm, and some time after a lady living on the shore of the lake ran to a neighbor's with the startling announcement that she had seen the canoe capsized far out in the lake, off Howard's point. All haste was made to man boats and send them to the rescue. Before they got off another lady, armed with a powerful field glass, arrived on the scene with the discouraging intelligence that she had seen the unfortunate man rise out of the water nearly half his length three times, throw his arms up over his head and disappear. Three boats were got out, and though the waves ran high and the wind was contrary they made amazingly good time, but found themselves too late. Mr. Payne had meantime disappeared—having pulled round the point to his destination, in the brewery bay. It turned out that the "canoe" was a large skiff, and Mr. Payne had simply been taking down his sail when the lady supposed she saw the boat capsized. As the veracity of the second lady is also beyond question the reputation of the spy glass can be maintained only on the theory that in addition to the sea-serpent which has made it famous, Lake Couchiching is inhabited by mermen. The gentlemen who so gallantly went to the rescue are all good young men, and did not swear, "nor anything," but they have taken a solemn declaration never to go to the relief of another shipwrecked mariner until a coroner's inquest shall have been held on the body and the man pronounced dead.

The Orillia Packet says that on Saturday morning Mr. John Franklin's son William, of Sparrow Lake, and formerly of Orillia, lighted a fire in the kitchen stove and went out to grease his wagon, and before he had finished one wheel he heard cries of fire, and on running to the house he found the flames already breaking through the roof. One of Mr. Franklin's daughters was up at the time, and out milking, and the alarm was first given by Mr. John McPhee, a near neighbor. Mrs. Fraser, a daughter of Mr. Franklin's, who was visiting her father at the time, was in bed upstairs, and two children with her. On hearing the cry of fire she took the children and rushed to the door leading down stairs, but the flames and smoke drove her back. She then rushed to the window, and put one child out, but on turning to pick up the other, a girl of six years, she found she had run back. She followed the child, but was unable to find her before the fast spreading flames drove her out, and the poor little one perished. The mother was badly burned about the hands and face. A young lady teaching at McCormack's school, and a friend who was visiting her, saved their lives by jumping from the window in their night clothes. She lost all her wardrobe and a quarter's salary, which she had just drawn. Mr. Franklin and family saved nothing but one bed. The house was owned by Mr. Albert Lehmann, of Orillia. Mr. A. Doolittle was here yesterday soliciting aid for Mr. Franklin in his distress.

A terrible murder has occurred at Chesterville, a village in the neighborhood of Ottawa, through the superstitious fear of a young farmer named Thomas Aggart, who lived alone. It appears that the unfortunate young fellow was of a very nervous temperament, and the boys of the vicinity being aware of this were in the habit of playing upon his weakness, by frequenting his house as ghosts. These young fools had aroused Aggart to such excitement and fear that on Wednesday night he resolved to secret himself by the roadside, near his house, and armed with an axe waited for the appearance of a ghost. By one of those terrible coincidences old Mrs. Barney McCadden, about sixty years of age, had been visiting her son near by, and came along with her shawl over her head, as is frequently done by women. Aggart believing this was one of the ghosts spring out and three times buried the axe in the poor old woman. She dropped to the road with a groan, for any one of the blows was instant death. Aggart then ran off, in a frenzy of fear, and told a neighbor that he had killed a ghost. The alarm spread, and John McCadden among the rest came to the spot to find that it was his mother that had been killed. Aggart was arrested, and a coroner's jury brought in a verdict that Mrs. McCadden came to her death from blows of an axe in the hands of Thomas Aggart. He will be placed on trial for the woman's death, but if justice were done the young fools who played their funny tricks on Aggart would be strung up to the nearest trees.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral. No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifling with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or uncorrected exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured. In 1881 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctor gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am indebted to your CHERRY PECTORAL for my life. HORACE FAIRBROTHER, Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup. — A Mother's Tribute. "While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and every doubt in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at my gratitude? Sincerely yours, MRS. EMMA GIBNEY, 150 West 123rd St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to recommend it as the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. I am, A. J. CLARK, Lake Crystal, Minn., March 1, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success. I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. BRYAN WALKER, Blythe, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADGON, Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine. PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists.
