The woman was taken forcibly from the house of James Stapley, and the alleged outrage occurred at a distance therefrom. Stapley positively identified the five men as the perpetrators. By the evidence of Miss Jackson, it was shown that the offence named. The girl is unable to identify either of the persons, and gave her evidence with reluctance and tears. IMPLEMENT.—Mr. R. S. Sylvester, implement manufacturer, Lindsay, tested one of Apple's self-binding reapers on the farm of Messrs. W. & D. McTaggart, Sonja, it doing good work, cutting a clean swath and binding it in a good order. It is light of draught and easily handled, and pronounced by the farmers to be the leading binder tested in these parts during the season. It will take the cake in these parts another season over all competitors.

KIRKFIELD.
MINOR NOTES.—Mr. John Yarrow has purchased a self-binding reaper from Mr. Ashton, of Creswell, and done good work. Mr. Alex. McTaggart has purchased a reaper from Mr. Mark, agent for A. Fleury, Markham, one of their celebrated threshing machines.

WOODVILLE.
TAX COLLECTOR.—At the Presbyterian church on Sunday last Rev. Mr. Ross, the pastor, occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. He preached a forcible and eloquent sermon at the former service on the grandeur of man's spiritual nature as king over them all, and also on the exalted character of men as the image of God. His remarks on these things were very effective. In the evening again he gave a good discourse on the conversion of the soul, and the power of the Holy Spirit in effecting the change of heart. In the course of his remarks he expressed the hope and even the conviction that the dark regions of Africa would ere long be enlightened by the christian faith. He took occasion also to loudly denounce the practice of reading over a great deal, parrot-like, without understanding the meaning thereof. Better, he said, to know one verse in the Bible well than to read over sumptuously many chapters. The speaker spoke very strongly on this point, and no doubt the warning was timely, though it may be unneeded. It so may, I am afraid, be justly applied to law, medicine and most everything else. The regular services were also held in the Methodist church, while the revivalists still continue their Sunday evening meetings.

KIRKFIELD.
Mr. Jos. J. CAYE, of the Advocate, deserves great credit for the way his place is fixed off, which is a large number of friends, which he had made during his short stay amongst us. Rev. Mr. Burgess, Church of England minister from Bethany, officiated at the funeral. His two sons were present, and the sympathy of all this neighborhood in the sad bereavement. Mrs. James Evans, who was taken down with the same disease, Canadian cholera, is rapidly recovering, and will soon be well again.

KIRKFIELD.
There are not so many cases of Canadian cholera here now as there were last week, nor have any deaths occurred but the one above.

PETERBORO.
The corner lot is said to be an institution in Peterboro. The people there have sighed and suffered long, and at last the active police belonging to the place have received orders to extinguish the fire in the date (don't forget him) from off the streets of the town. The next herculean task the police of Peterboro will have to tackle is the burglar clearance. It is about time they got on their muscles.

There is also the court house, school house, and other buildings. We have resident here the stipendiary magistrate J. Haliburton, the county clerk, county treasurer, registrar, road commissioner, and other officials. Beside the business generally done in a country village, we have the greater portion of the lumberers' trade, who yearly carry on very extensive operations a short distance from Minden.—(Echo.)

JANETVILLE.
Correspondence of The Warbler.
NOTHING better to give as full an account of the sudden death of Mr. Abraham Evans as we would wish to do so now. Mr. Evans was a native of Radnorshire, Wales, having immigrated to this country in the spring of 1833, consequently he was but sixteen months in the country when it pleased the Lord to call him away from a world of trouble. Mr. Evans' demise took place in the 69th year of his age, and during the short time he dwelt amongst us by his quiet demeanor and amiable disposition he made many friends for himself and his two sons which he left behind him to mourn his loss. He was buried on the 25th in the St. Abins cemetery, on the boundary line between Manvers and Cartwright, followed to the grave by a large number of friends, which he had made during his short stay amongst us. Rev. Mr. Burgess, Church of England minister from Bethany, officiated at the funeral. His two sons were present, and the sympathy of all this neighborhood in the sad bereavement. Mrs. James Evans, who was taken down with the same disease, Canadian cholera, is rapidly recovering, and will soon be well again.

FENELON.
THE FASTEST YET.—On Tuesday, the 26th ult., Mr. Alexander Trux, of Somerville, performed the gigantic feat of binding 232 stooks of oats, 12 staves to a stook, on Mr. James Graham's farm near Sturgeon Point, in the township of Fenelon. Beat this who can.

FENELON.
OUR worthy reeve is putting on style, and why shouldn't he? As noticed in last week's Gazette, he lately purchased the handsomest of Mr. Simpson's ponies, and a beautiful pair of horses, and has now quite a dandy turnout.

FENELON.
HAILED UP.—It took a good deal of explanation to make the Greek laborers in the canal understand the nature and object of the poll tax; and when the tax difficulty was overcome another arose from their deeply rooted objection to parting with their money. They thought, or pretended to think, that an exception ought to be made in their favor on account of their being foreigners, and in payment of the tax they were to pay one dollar and no more. The collector, having no authority to effect any such compromise, at last took two of them before the magistrate; and when they found out or to just they gave the contest and produced the required $2.

FENELON.
FERIOUS RUNAWAY.—Wednesday Mr. H. N. McDougall and Mr. F. Brown obtained Mr. Noble Ingram's buggy and span of blacks to drive to Sturgeon Point, and Mr. McDougall took with him his little daughter, who was two years of age. When just clear of the road home the catch on the end of the pole came off, the pole slipped through the leather on the neck yoke, and the buggy ran on to the rocks. The animals being young, well fed and but little frightened, are of course, very high spirited, and started off at a furious gallop. Mr. McDougall was driving at the time, and his little girl was sitting on Mr. Brown's knee. Mr. Brown, whose conduct on the occasion was deserving of all praise, and whose first thought was for the little one's safety, said to his companion "You take the child and jump, and I will attend to the horses," or something to that effect, and caught hold of the lines. Mr. Brown, who was first thought to take the child in his arms and sprang out of the buggy, striking against a fence with such force that the little one was thrown over it into the field, but fortunately was not hurt in the least, and her father received no injury worth mentioning. Mr. Brown, who had all his wits about him, thought of turning them against one of the fences, but feared that if he did they would be staked and perhaps killed. He therefore conducted them as near the middle of the road as possible, believing that if he could get them safely on to the boundary, the very steep hill before them would force them to slacken their speed, and that he would be able to stop them. But at the turning the buggy, which was away about fearfully, struck a stump and upset. Mr. Brown was thrown out, and the horses, breaking loose, continued their mad career towards home. Before going much farther they overtook Mr. Thomas Patterson, of Bobooyan, who was driving towards the Falls, and who did not hear them approaching in time to get out of their way. Separating the runaway were rushing on, one on each side but the trailing lines caught against his buggy, the jerk causing one of the blacks to fall, and Mr. Patterson jumping to the ground managed to secure the other. The whole distance run was nearly a mile. Mr. Brown was taken to the residence of Dr. Wilson, with whom he is studying medicine, where his hurts were dressed. Though not dangerous they were quite serious, as he had a very bad cut on his right temple, two more on his head, numerous slight ones on his hands and some on his face, besides being bruised and shaken. The buggy and harness were not much broken, and the horses scarcely got a scratch.—(Gazette.)

KILLED.—A man named Rickett, a shoemaker, two miles south of Cambray, had been at the postoffice for his mail on Monday, which is close to the Cambray station. Crossing the track on the boundary between Opawa and Mariposa he was struck by a train going north. He was lying on Tuesday, 24 hours after the accident. The doctors in attendance, Ray, of Cambray, and Vrooman, of Little Britain, have no hopes of his recovery. He was unconscious from the time of the accident.

A medical man who was called who died through strangulation.

He leaves a wife, three sons and one daughter to mourn his untimely end.

BUSINESS CHANGE.—Mr. W. H. Rowe, cabinet maker, has disposed of his business and rented his house and shop to Mr. R. Nugent, of Lindsay. Bad health, I understand, is the cause of Mr. Rowe retiring from business, and not from the want of being well patronized.
