BELLEVILLE.

An embezziement has come to light thants' hank here. A few days ago R. Yarwood, teller, and W. W. Scott, book-keeper, obtained leave of absence and failed to return, but as their books were supposed to be correst no suspicions were entertained. Later developments show that they have stolen large sums, of which no estimate can be made as yet, but aggregating at least $10,000. The inspectors of the bank are examining the books, and detectives have been employed to trace the absconders. It is supposed that they have gone to the

The Belleville Ontario says that a few days ago it chronicled the suspiclous departure of Robert Yarwood, teller, and Walter Scott, book-keeper, of the Merchante' bank, but at that time their accounts were reported to does, besides two they had packed in be correct. Since then more light has a barrel. Mr. F. Dingle also brought been thrown on the subject, and it is home with him a pretty little deer believed now that they have stolen slive. large sums of money from the bank, aggregating probably $10,000. There is a great deal of excitement in the city over the affair, and the bank has put detectives on the trail of the youtsful absconders. Scott and Yarwood were well known in Belleville. They had been employed in the bank for some time, and the manager appeared to have confidence in them. But their conduct after hours, when he had no means of watching them, was suspicious. They spent money lavlors, and were seen almost every night at the theatre. In short, they aspired to be "swells," and they succeeded. But those who knew the salary which the dudes received from the bank were convinced that it would not support such extravagant you he, and their predictions proved true. Yarwood received a salary of $500, and Scott, it is reported, got $400. Yarwood asked for two days' leave of absence, and the manager, Mr. Hamilton, consented. The time was spent fishing around the bay, but when the bank opened on Monday morning the teller was missing. He had spent the two days fishing, but left on Saturday or Sunday for the other side. His books and each were at once examined and found correct so far as could be ascertained then. Later is the week Scott was granted permission to go to Consecon, extensibly for the purpose of visiting his uncle, but he likewise lorget to return. And thus the bold pair got out of the country with the funds of the band, but just how much they stole time alone will tell. The inspectors of the bank arrived, and a thorough audit of the books was begue, Already a percel of money sent by a depositor from Napanes, containing $2,500 and marked "private," is missing. It is pre-sumed Scott took this. How many more parcels of this character have been stolen it is hard to say, but there is a firm belief in the minds of those who ought to know that the swelle got at least $5,000 each. Tarwood's

ONTARIO COUNTY.

THE plowing match of the Whithy and East Whitby plowing club came off on Tuesday on the farms of Christopher and George Hodgson, Ragian. The former place was sod and the latter stubble. Notwithstanding the busy time, and the bad state of the roads, and the rawness of the day, the attendance of farmers and specia tors generally was large. Thirty-six entries were made, and at half-past ten every plowman and team took their place and started to plow. The plowmen in the sou field finished a little after three o'clock, and the stubble class shortly before four.

THE annual plowing match under the auspices of the Reach, Port Perry and Sengog agricultural society, was held on Mr. Pearson's farm near Manchester, on Friday last. The weather was uppleasant but the attendance was large, the entries numerous, competition in all the classes keen, and the work well done. The prizes were were well worth contending for, and they were deservedly wou. there is no means of ascertaining how the money was stolen from the bank, but some are of the opinion that the two worked in concert for some time, accepting deposite and giving credit for the same on the depositor's book but not on the ledger. This was the plan adopted by Fotman, who was a defaulter for a large sum several years ago in the same bank. THE VOYAGE OF THE SOAP BOX. - In a recent issue of the Echo the facetions editor of that periodical enlivened his readers by a witty account of his ride to Mr. Niven's model farm. The account as far as it went was very interesting and we are only sorry that the gitted editor did not give the full details. We are, however, is a position to supply the particulars omitted and we hope that in the interest of humanity you will insert them. The regulation seat of Mr. Garratt's buggy was fully occupied by Mr. G. and another county official nor exactly so corpulent as that merry gentleman. Such being the case the unfortunate editor of the Echo had to do the monkey behind. For his convenience a soap box was secured and then the trio of "Pickwickiane" started. After a short spin to try the nettle of their gallant steeds a halt was made in order to sllow "the county official" an opportunity to put some stones in his pocket in order to balance his more corpulent companion, Once more under way the editor necupied himself in drinking in the elsborate description of Workman's falls given by "the other county official." It is this gentleman we have been informed who hav displayed under the name of "Vindex," such a knowledge of places and persons in recent issues of the Echo, and no doubt we will have a full and particular account of the building that stands so isolated in main street scraped clean of mud dura remote corner of Mr. Goodman's ing the week. This makes a decided garden in some future issue of that improvement in the appearance of the paper. So elaborate and fervid was street. the "O. C. O's," description that Mr. G. drove over a slight obstruction ment which was billed to take place which resulted in pitching the "O. C. on Friday did not occur, owing to the O's," head into the merry gentleman's inclemency of the weather. A numstomach and starting the editor's hea- ber of clubs announced their intention ver on a voyage of discovery over Mr. to be present, but none appeared save Geo. Puffer's farm. The "O. C. O's." head having emerged from the folds afternoon a game was played between of the merry gentleman's waistcoat, the Checkers of Beaverton and the and the editor having regained his Shamrocks of Caunington, and alfelt and felt what he regained the though in the face of a driving snow forms of Mr. Putter and Mr. Kirkpat rick were passed in quick succession.
As they approached the improved farm of Mr. Robinson the "O. C. O." suddenly discovered that the editor and the soap box were missing. Dismounting in dismay they found the editor is the ditch with his head in the soap box and his feet in the air bid-ding a sad farewell to all his greatness. Having extracted the very latest Echo from the depths of the soap box, castward he! was again the word. With the exception of a little peculiar behavior on the part of the soap box, which would persist in slipping out from under the editor, and an equally unaccountable behavior on the part of the editor who would persist in of the editor who would persist in slipping off the top of the soap box, g further occurred to attract the on of the M. KINMOUNT.

Tax time table on the railway is shout to be altered, and the train will not leave here going south until about eight o'clock in the morning. It is also said that after the first of January the line north of this place will be closed for traffic until April. It will be kept open to Kinmount all right enough, but north of this the line is not profitable, and the Grand Trunk will take the excuse of the first snow lines and loops and extensions, for they are all the same-upprofitable.

THE trade of the village is good and it is surprising to see so many people coming here to buy goods. Watson's store one day this week was thronged from morning to night. There is a ting the stone up Pigeon river, a dam very wide range of country tributary having to be built half a mile from to Kinmount, and the entire population comes here to do business.

CANAL .- Mr. W. Kennedy, the foreman of the works now in progress by the dominion government, is making great and useful improvements on the capal. It will be made much more water tight, and several piers are being constructed to facilitate the passage of steamboats. It is to be hoped that in another year this village will have steamboats extending to Port Perry, Lakefield, Coboconk and Bridgenorth. The dominion government is displaying much judgment in this district, and the superintendent, Mr. Rogers, is managing the improvements with care and discretion. Seeing that the dominion government has a surplus, this journal does not hesitate to ask it to remove the wreck of the Vanderbilt from the Lindsay river. It is a most objectionable obstruction. Really, Mr. Rogers, you must see this. We know forty-three persons who will vote dead against the government if the Vanderbilt is not removed. So, now, then .- Independent.
