From Paris it is stated that the most important question in the coming general election in France will be the religious question. The fact is generally recognized, it is said, and the pope and Cardinal Guibert, archbishop of Paris, are all directing all their efforts to prevent a result which will culminate in the separation of church and state in France. Undoubtedly a very large number of Catholics in France favor separation as valuable to the cause of liberty of Catholic action.

At the recent meeting of the Irish conference, the Rev. Thomas McCullagh, president of the Irish conference, said that he could not forget while he stood here that the land of his birth, and the land of his second birth. In coming from England to Ireland he had not come from one kingdom to another—he had come from one part of the same kingdom. Standing there representing the British conference, he should tell that assembly that Methodism in England was a very important factor in the national life. It was true they did not include within their pale any titled aristocracy or landed gentry, but we have some of the commercial aristocracy, and that was what they had generally grown themselves; and yet even the highest classes in England were not beyond the reach of Methodism. Methodism had influenced all classes in England, but amongst the middle classes they had reaped an abundant harvest, and even they had gone down to the working classes, and in England they were preparing for a new aggressive movement in the slave population—the four million population of the land—and he doubted not that they would succeed in bringing out from among the same many a redeemed spirit, bright with intellect.

It is only a few days since Grit papers were vehemently asserting, with a very transparent object in view, that Riel's trial was being delayed by the government for the purpose of giving him a chance to escape. That was for Ontario readers. For Quebec readers it was also stated that he would not be given a fair trial. Now it turns out that a month's further delay is asked for by the counsel for the defence. Our agit friends will have to adopt a new line of misrepresentation for use in Ontario.

Last year was a year of gracious ingathering to our church. This has created special obligations to guide and instruct those who have come into the fellowship of the church. A gain of about 20,000 members should represent a large increase of spiritual force, and so it will, if each new member continues to grow in grace and knowledge. We want an intelligent people, and a godly people. For the first, there must be a good supply of sound literature and reading matter, including the Guardian and its other periodicals. For the second, the faithful reading of the Bible and close communion with God are needed. The success of last year should inspire hopeful confidence that we shall have greater blessings in the coming year.—[Christian Guardian.]

After six months of political agitation all that has been impressed on the public minds is, that the government have made two splendid financial successes in the London market; enfranchised a quarter of a million of Canadians against the will of the gentry; assisted the development of the country by courageous railway subsidies; put down a serious rebellion in a way that has deserved and received the warmest thanks and gratitude of the whole people.

"The Canadian citizen soldiers who are receiving so hearty a welcome now on their return from the North-west territories deserve all the applause they get. They have, indeed, had a rough campaign. The half-breeds whom they had to fight are much worse foes than the Indians, for to the endurance of the savage they add superior intelligence and cunning, which they gained with the French strain in their blood. Moreover, the fighting had to be done in an exceedingly rough country, where there were few or no roads, where communication was slow and difficult, and where supplies could not be obtained at any cost. It was a tough job which the militiamen had set before them; but it was undertaken with pluck, carried through with intelligence, and crowned with success. No wonder they are royally received."—[New York Tribune.]

The Indians are not yet quieted, as the following dispatch will show. It is dated 24th Inst, via Saskatchewan Landing:—Great excitement was raised here to-day at noon by the sight of a small boat, with a man lying in the bottom of it, drifting down the stream. Some men, not knowing what was up, immediately took a small boat and rowed to the middle of the river, when they beheld a man in it, not able to raise a hand or speak above a whisper. On the man's approach near he told he had been shot by Indians. On coming ashore every thing was done possible for the poor man, and after a short rest he said, "My name is Geo. McKeever. I was going to Prince Albert, where I have a brother living. I have been away in British Columbia and was just returning home. When about forty miles west of here yesterday I was having dinner on a small island, when I was suddenly fired upon by a band of Indians from the north side. The fired about ten shots, but only one took effect, being a shot in the abdomen. Then I got into my boat and started away, the Indians raising after me for some distance." The Indians are camped in the bush, and are evidently moving south, as they were busy crossing their guns. McKeever went to Swift Current on the mail stage this afternoon. He is in a very weak condition, and the chances of his recovery are doubtful. McKeever had been drifting since yesterday noon, not knowing where he was and unable to do anything. The police have been notified to start immediately in pursuit of the Indians. They most probably belong to Little Poplar. Two more men arrived this afternoon from Medicine Hat with news for Saskatoon. They report having seen some Indians to-day, but passed unmolested, and then managed to get their boat, that they were crossing goods in.

The Earl of Londale and Sir Geo. Chetwynd, two foolish London snobs, had a furious encounter last week over Mrs. Langtry. Londale is the fellow who was instrumental in bounding Edmund Yates to jail last winter, for hinting that he had eloped.

Another fool jumped off the Brooklyn bridge on Friday last and has not since arisen. He was accompanied to the bridge by a party of toughs, who, it seems, were his backers. The sooner all such fellows jump off that bridge the better for New York and Brooklyn.

The Germanis, of Berlin, states that the Imperial government has ordered 30,000 Russian Poles to leave Eastern Prussia. Of these Poles, 4,000 are Jews. The majority of the expelled Poles have, however, been granted a respite to allow them to sell out their property and business and settle up their affairs before leaving.

The Russo-Afghan is unaltered. Unsuccess was caused only by the augmented Russian force at Zulfikar and the communication with the Caspian. The negotiations continue friendly, but tardy. Russia wants Maruchak, and will accede to England's demands for Zulfikar, to compensate for the occupation of the former place. At St. Petersburg it is semi-officially denied that Zulfikar has been occupied by the Russian troops. Komaroff made a slight movement of troops to prevent a surprise by the Afghans. He has been ordered to hold positions to enable him to occupy the defiles if necessary. The Russian government is firmly determined to do nothing that may compromise pending negotiations with England.

Catarrah—A New Treatment

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrah. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this chronic ailment. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the eyes of the most skillful oculist, while the best oculist medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the aim now generally believed to be the most scientific, Mr. Dixon at once adopted the most radical—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrah is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrah in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrah. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure. The majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Full particulars correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 205 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrah.—[Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1882.—92-V.]

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs none so trifling with the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unobtrusive exposure, often has the beginning of a fatal disease. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

REPORT OF SPRING SHOW

Held at Manchester April 21st, 1885.

ON IMPLEMENTS:-

Your judges beg leave to report that they have examined all of the self-binders and would highly recommend all of them, but more particularly Mr. Sylvester's Minnesota Chief, Toronto Light Binder and the Little Brantford, in their order of merit as mentioned above.

(Signed) W. C. HERON, WM. TOMLINSON, Judges ED. WILLIAMS, Sec.-Treas.

Manchester, May 1st, 1885.

I certify the above to be a true copy of the judges' book. S. H. CHRISTIAN, Sec.-Treas.

As the agents of the Chatham binder have been making a malicious attempt to deprive us of the chief honors awarded at the above exhibition by falsely advertising that no awards of judges were made, the above report shows conclusively that such award was made and that the Chatham binder was not noted at all, which no doubt deeply chagrined the gentlemen interested, after their elaborate display with the rooster. But possibly they are only following their usual tactics and further notice is unnecessary from us. We leave the public to judge.

R. SYLVESTER.
