

The Victoria Warder

FRIDAY DECEMBER 11, 1885

Little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

Full well do I remember my boyhood's happy hours, The cottage in the garden where bloomed the fairest flowers, The bright and sparkling water o'er which we used to sail, With hearts so gay, for miles away, before the gentle gale.

Had a dear companion who is not with me now, The lily of the valley is blooming o'er her brow, And now I'm sad and lonely, and weeping all the day, For bright-eyed, laughing, little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

Chorus. Well, tell the world, from early dawn of day, Of lovely little Nell, so quickly passed away.

Oh, tell the world, so soft and meekly of bright-eyed, laughing, little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

Love the little beauty, my heart it was my pride, And with her close beside me, what joy the foam to ride: He laughed in tones so merry, to see the waves go by,

While loudly blew the stormy winds, and murky was the sky, The lightning flashed all round us, and all was dark and drear, He loved to leave old ocean, and never dreamed of fear.

The Arrow bounded onward and darted through the spray, With bright-eyed, laughing, little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

One day from us she wandered, and soon within the boat, The oars were quickly loosened, and with the tide did float:

A treacherous bark flew onward, so swift before the wind, Left home and friends and all that's dear, were many miles behind.

Next day, her form, all lifeless, was washed upon the beach: I stood and gazed upon it, bereft of sense or speech:

This years since that we parted, but here I weep today, For bright-eyed, laughing, little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

For bright-eyed, laughing, little Nell, of Narragansett Bay.

A Haughty Spirit Conquered.

By ERIC.

"Why, Percy, do you allude to my being in company with Willie St. Clair? Do you want to exclude me from every gentleman's company only your own? The idea, Percy, is ridiculous." The words were spoken by a young and beautiful girl of nineteen or twenty summers, to a young man of prepossessing appearance. She was the only child of a wealthy merchant who lived in the city of London. Her father, who fairly idolized his child, satisfied her whims and caprices in every degree imaginable. She was worshipped in society, and at the age of fourteen she took her place in it as a girl to be adored by every gentleman who considered himself such. Her lovers were many, but she treated them all with the greatest scorn and contempt; in fact she was haughty, arrogant and selfish. In the month of December there was to be a grand masquerade ball given by Lady St. John, a person of high rank, to which Vivian Lake was invited. Her costume was gorgeous, representing the Mayflower. She had waited with a great many gentlemen, and when it came time for the masks to be removed her eyes met those of a young man who was eyeing her with the deepest admiration. Presently he stepped up to her and extended his hand, remarking at the same time he was happy to meet her. He then asked her would she do him the honor of having the next waltz, to which she gladly consented. After the waltz was over they walked out on the verandah. He asked her to sit down, whereupon she immediately complied. He drew his chair beside her and looked beseechingly into her eyes, as much as to say she had won his heart at first sight. During the remainder of the evening he gave her the most undivided attention, which the company could see was very agreeable to her. When the hour arrived for the company to depart he escorted her to the carriage and asked permission to call on her, which he did regularly for the next twelve months, during which time she treated him with the greatest courtesy and love which she could bestow on him.

Percy Vermont was one of those noble, true-hearted, generous young men of which the world at present rarely boasts. When he first met Vivian his heart seemed to say, "You are the only woman on earth I will ever marry." He had never fallen in love with any girl, although he made himself agreeable to all, and many a heart he had won. On Xmas eve, when Percy and Vivian were sitting under the mistletoe which was hung up as one of the many decorations which covered the walls; when for a few minutes Percy and Vivian were sitting alone, he looked imploringly at her and asked her would she consent to become his wife one year from to-morrow, which was Christmas day. She sat in silence for some minutes, during which time he drew her into his arms. "You are the picture of youth, beauty, health and happiness. When I look at you, Vivian, I wish I were a post, there are so many poetical ideas come into my head; but I cannot give expression to one of them. But, my darling, you have not answered my question yet." "Oh, Percy, it is a question which gives me very much pleasure to answer. It will make me very happy to become the wife of one so noble and truthful as I have always found you to be." Little did Vivian dream that there was a dark cloud that would roll over and sadden two happy hearts. I will leave these two thinking of the happy future and give you a short sketch of a young man named Willie St. Clair; a young man well educated, a student at the collegiate institute, and possessing a vast amount of wealth. Although he had everything to make his outward appearance attractive to the eyes of the world, yet, like many boys of the present age, envious, deceitful and selfish, whose own happiness they will seek, never thinking of the feelings of others; their chief aim being to show to the world that they could talk fluently, move in aristocratic circles, and be admired and spoken of as an amusing, downright brilliant young fellow; he lacked the one thing necessary to constitute a man, (not a dude) a straightforward, noble character, which every one ought to possess. Willie St. Clair had met Vivian Lake often, but never had he thought of paying any particular attention to her until he saw that Percy Vermont was in love with her. He commenced to think she was handsome, in fact beautiful. Things went on for some time, Willie calling evening after evening, much to the shame of one who was engaged to another. Through the whole scene Percy had never said an unkind word to her. Always cheerful and good-natured, Vivian had commenced to think that no matter what she would do Percy would be agreeable and take it all in good part; never thinking that the truest heart might turn and reject the one he had so madly loved.

Handy Things to Know and Keep.

Here are some figures and rules very handy to know and have at hand, in the mind or on paper. We advise every young reader to learn most of these "by heart" so thoroughly as to always think of them in an instant. Do it while your minds are young and impressionable, and they will stay by you like the marks in the clay of brick, or dough of bread or cake, before it is hardened by heat. Older people who do not preserve their papers can cut this out and keep it handy for ready reference.

A Rod is 16 1/2 feet or 5 1/2 yards. A Mile is 320 rods. A Mile is 1760 yards. A Mile is 5280 feet. A Square Foot is 144 square inches. A Square Yard contains 9 square feet. A Square Rod is 272 1/2 square feet. An Acre contains 13,560 square feet. An Acre contains 4840 square yards. An Acre contains 160 square rods. A Section, or square Mile, contains 640 acres. A Quarter Section contains 160 acres. An Acre is 8 rods wide by 20 rods long. An Acre is 10 rods wide by 16 rods long. An Acre is about 208 1/2 feet square. A Solid Foot contains 1728 solid inches. A Pint (of water) weighs 1 pound. A Solid Foot of water weighs 62 1/2 pounds. A Gallon (of water) holds 231 solid inches. A Gallon of milk weighs 8 pounds and 10 ounces. A Pint (of water) holds 28 1/2 solid inches (28.875). A Barrel (31 1/2 gallons) holds 4 1/2 solid feet (4.211). A Solid Foot contains nearly 7 1/2 solid pints (7.48). A Bushel (struck) contains 2150 solid inches. A Bushel (heaping) contains 1 1/2 struck bushels. A Struck Bushel contains about 1 1/2 solid feet.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Latest Facts, Fun and Fancy. To REMOVE BURNING.—Cleanse the scalp with Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap. A delightful medicated soap for the toilet. Furge out the lurking disemper that undermines health, and the constitutional vigor will return. Those who suffer from an enfeebled and disordered state of the system, should take a year's Sarsaparilla to cleanse the blood, and restore vitality. A CHRYING EYIL.—Children are often fretful and ill when worms are the cause. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup safely expels all worms. NATIONAL FIFES are the favorite purgative and anti-bilious medicine; they are mild and thorough.

How often do we hear of the sudden fatal termination of a case of croup, when a young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Cough Syrup. Be wise in time, and keep a bottle of it on hand, ready for instant use.

Worms often destroy children, but Freeman's Worm powders destroy worms, and expel them from the system.

Cucumbers and melons are "fruitful" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea, griping, &c. These persons are not aware that they can indulge to their hearts content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is a sure cure for all summer complaints.

Henry Clement, Almonte, writes: "For a long time I was troubled with chronic rheumatism, at times wholly disabled; I tried anything and everything recommended, but failed to get any benefit, until a gentleman who was cured of the same by Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, told me about it. I began using it both internally, and before two bottles were used I was radically cured. We find it a household medicine for croup, burns, cuts and bruises, it has no equal."

When you notice unpleasant sensations after eating, at once commence to use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Digestive, and your Dyspepsia will disappear. Mr. James Stanley, Merchant, at Constance, writes: "My wife has taken two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Digestive for Dyspepsia, and it has done her more good than anything she has ever used."
