They were singing, O, how sweetly!

They were singing sweeter, mother,

Than can sing our yellow bird.

But I could not see the Saviour,

And I wondered if He saw me,

And I knew it must be Jesus,

Though I strained my eyes to see;

Would be speak to such as me,

And while I my breath was holding.

One, so bright, upon me smiled

"Come up here, my little Bessie,

Come up here and live with me,

Where, the children never suffer,

But are happier than you see.

Then I thought of all you'd told me,

Of that bright and happy land,

You had called me; I would go,

When you came and kiss'd my hand.

I was going when you called me,

And at first I felt so sorry

O, to sleep, and never suffer: Mother, don't be orying so!

A Mystery Unravelled.

ELLEN MECLEARY TELLS THE STORY OF

THE WIARTON TRACEDY. OWEN SOUND, April 24,-James King, John Wilson and Charles McCleary have been arrested in connection with the horrible murder committed about two miles from Wiarton about a month ago, by which James A. Bailey and his hired man whose name is unknown, lost their lives, The revolting and blood-curdling nature of this case will still be remembered. The mysterious destruction of Bailey's house by fire, the discovery of the bodies of two men in the atill burning debris, and the horrible disclosures made by the post mortem examination all tended to make the case one of the most absorbing interest, especially as there was no clue to the perpetrators. The above arrests were made on the strength of the confession of Ellen Mc-Cleary, whose family resided next door to Bally, and kept house for the murdered The unraveling of the mystey is one to splendid work by Detective Rogers, tir of me. No'er judge hastily, of the Provincial force. Although there were no chas to the tragedy, he came to the conclusion that the McCleary family knew more about the matter than they cared to tell. He therefore kept close watch upon their movements. A few days ago he saw Ellen McCleary, accompanied by a man, board a train. They got off at Palmerston and registered at a hotel as man and wite. While they were cut of their room Rogers entered and got under the bed. Soon after the couple returned and commenced talking about the murder. After listening for a short time Rogers crawled out from under the bed and arrested both man and women. The former gave his name as John McCarty. The girl was thunderstruck and admitted to the detective that what he had heard was true. She subsequently made a statement to the effect that on the night of the murder King and Wilson came to Bailey's house and asked her if Bailey was at home. King had previously told her that he intended to kill Bailey that night. Bailey hadn't returned from Wiarton and the men told her to go home and they went into the bush to wait for Bailey. She went home and sent her brother Charlie over to Bailey's house to get the hired man out, as she did not want to see him killed. She saw King and Wilson return to the house about an hour after she left, and atterwards saw the fire. King formerly lived with Bailey, but had a row with him and left. Both were paying attention to Ellen McCleary, and King had stated to the girl that as long as Bailey was around he could not get her to marry him. She did not tell anything about the affair before, as King had threatened to kill her if she opened her mouth. Miss McCleary and her companion were brought here and lodged in jail, and the other ar-rests quickly followed.

The preliminary examination of King and Wilson commenced last evening. The girl again repeated her story, and her brother Charles corroborated her statement to the effect that she sent him to tell the hired man to come over to their place. The hired man would not their place. come. This was just a little while be-fore the fire broke out. The trial was adjourned for a week.

King has a bad record. Four year King has a bad record. Four years ago he was arrested on the charge of murdering his sister by poisoning, but acquitted. Wilson, on the other hand, bears a good record, and some believe he had no hand in the tragedy, and that the girl is using him in place of a man named Steinoff, who was stopping with her at the time of the fire, and who she is trying to shield. This belief is strengthened by the question asked by Charles McCleary when arrested, whether Steinoff was arthe question asked by Charles McCleary when arrested, whether Steinoff was arrested yet. Steinoff, it will be remembered, acted very strangely at the fire, and disappeared after the bodies were discovered. He left the vicinity a few days later, telling the neighbors he had seen a ghost. It is thought Wilson will be able to prove an alibi. It has not yet transpired what part, if any, McCarty took in the affair.
