January 1st, 1887.

Agato another year has passed away, Agato time brings a New Year's day, It steels along, nor doth it heed, A stern rebuke, a word, or deed, We see the Old Year bent and gray, Ne pense and wonder whether we, Shall e'er another twelve month see ; Ab ! this brief year our last may be, ore one nearer eternity.

Don't Stay After Ten.

f're just a word to say to you When me you come to see, You know that none in all the world, Is half so dear to me. Tie this I would request of you That when you come again

You won't stay after ten. For after ten as momenta fly, I tremble o'er and o'er, Lest papa's visage I should see,

He's to execute his threat, He said he'd surely come off e'er you staved as late again,)
And tell you to go home.

And so though your society Makes heart and pulse throb warm, I heave a sigh of vast relief At your retreating form.

CANNINGTON. Special to The Warder. "SILENCE IN ELOQUENCE."—So says the proverb. No doubt you will say that much depends on the occasion for its correctness. If, as in this instance, it refers to the somewhat lengthened silence of yours truly, the simple truthfulness of the proverb will at once be apparent, and will be highly appreciated by the myma past have attempted to read my proxy and jumbled production. But obtuseness in this instance is a great boon to the writer, so once more we seize our inspired pen and proceed to pour out our soul on the result of the late elections in this comresult of the late elections in this community. It is a sad comment on the soundness of the theory that 'The voice of the people is the voice of God," that the great electoral powers in the hands of the people are a sure and certain safeguard against corruption and tyranny. Is it then any wonder that the cynic and the pessimist turns on us with the taunt: And this is all you have to show for your boasted Christian unity and nineteenth century progress. And his mocking laugh as he leaves us awakens the sad and hamiliating thought. Yes, this is all. In hamiliating thought, Yes, this is all. In the human soul the insatiable lust for power is so great that for good or evil, weal or woe, every means that will secure the triumph of the moment is adopted, if we have in the future to wade through we have in the future to wade through rivers of blood to atone for it. Such is the history of the past, and such is the prospect of the future with which the re-sult of the recent contest brings us face to face. Rome victorious; Protestantism defeated and abashed, but thank God not crushed. In this riding of North Ontacrushed. In this riding of North Ontario, though we are now routed by the papal army in Mara and Rama, who at the call of the now sovereign ruler of Ontario, Archbishop Lynch, whose mandate they dare not disobey, yet we say with all our hearts, better defeat a thousand times than victory at such a cost as the Mowat government will be called upon to pay for this Dictator's support. And we venture to assert there is not a man calling himself Reformer to-day, but in his heart feels the humiliating position in which he stands and by his partizanship has dragged this fair province of Ontario. But such an unholy alliance can not last. The day of reckoning will assuredly come. Then, retribution, swift, sure and complete. Rome is a hard task mistress, computation or pity she never knew, and if plete. Nome is a hard taskmistress, com-punction or pity she never knew, and if the hour should come when protestants, by their own folly and mad lust for power, shall have so completely placed this country under the papal rules, they may then prepare themselves to again bear the bitter trials and privations from which our forefathers with their best life's blood have so recently emancipated us. Cana-dians, must this be? Shall we not rather rise as one map, and with one voice de-

A HAPPY family reupion took place on New Year's day at the residence of 'Wm. New Year's day at the residence of 'Wm. and Mary Rogers, lot 21, con. 11, Mariposa. This is the farm upon which Mr. Rogers settled in 1837 when a young man. He married Mary Cruess, daughter of the late John Cruess, in 1839. The family consists of eight children: four boys and four girls, six of whom are married. All were present with their families, making in all twenty eight children and grand children. Among the grand children but one is mis-ing—little Howard of J. S. Roger's family, who died at the age of four years and has gone on before to the better land. One of the ev-nts of the occasion was the presentation of two elegant easy chairs by the children to their parents and the reading of the following address:—

DEAR PARRIES,—It is with teelings of joy that we greet you this New Year's day. While other fainsties during the day. While other families during the past year have been visited by death, ours remains unbroken. It is true sickness has visited some of our homes, but it has been only an angel of mercy in dieguise. As we review the year we with gratitude exclaim, "Biess the Lord O my soul, and forget not all his benefits, who healeth all thy diseases, who redeemeth thy life from destruction." But we would this New Year's day not only look upon the past year. We would remember, as your children, all the past of our lives. How your paternal care has been over us for good from the dawn of life; how in infancy by precept and example you laid within us the foundation of a character such as we The wonderful heating and sootning properties of the above named excellent salve, have been found by many who have used it to be a most efficacious in the treatment of salt rheum, pimples, blotches boils, ulcers, scalds, burns, chafings, etc. One trial will be sufficient to prove that value more than glittering gold or gems, and how these early influences still with us abide like some guardian angel.
