We Call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the North American Life Assurance Co. in another column. The wonderful progress of this company is shown on the table giving the comparative amount of business done on its sixthyear, being larger than any Canadian company doing business for the same time; larger in total business, in new risks written, larger in sesets, and larger in surplus. The commercial plan of insurance is especially commended to professional men and business men, enabling them to carry a large amount of insurance at a very low rate, with the great advantage of undoubted security to policy holders.
