ECONOMY?

Most people draw their line there. Worthless for use, offensive in more ways than one, a price at which they would be cheap couldn't be named; yet many consent to buy trashy

Dry Goods, Millinery and Clothing Because the prices sound cheap. It is a very different feast we set

Goods that you can stand close up to, put your spectacles on and investigate.

Business.

Pushing along the highway of success, we stop at nothing to make our store the people's store for good reliable Goods.

DRESS DEPARTMENT

Is now complete in both Black and Colored. All the newest shades and patterns, with Trimmings to match.

TWEEDS

In English, Scotch and Canadian. Overcoats, ready-made and made to order.

MILLINERY

For the Fall Season of 1887. Feeling encouraged by the patronage extended to this department by the Ladies in the past, we have made this season a special effort to offer for their selection the Grandest Array of Stylish Millinery. Prices, as always, will be the lowest.

FUR COATS

The time to take steps to preserve your sight is now. Give your eyes the best of care always. Do not foolishly overwork or strain them. Immediately when they show signs of failing power, have them carefully tested and properly fitted with the best and properly fitt most perfect spectacles that can

This does not always mean the most expensive by any means, nor does it mean the cheap and ruinous trash usually hawked about by peddlars and irresponsible travelling quacks, whose object is to get your money regardless of the means.

Eyes that require glasses at all should be fitted with good lenses, the best of their kind. The best lenses for one eye troubles may be much more, or less, costly than As usual, our stock those required for another, according to the nature of the optical defect. The plan of giving one kind of glasses to all kinds and conditions of eyes is about as sensible and satisfactory as giving castor oil or quinine for every ailment, from a scratch on the finger to the small-pox.

The changes brought about by age are inevitable—they cannot be prevented any more then death itself. To refuse to take advantage of the comfort offered by science and art as applied to optics—viz., to refuse to wear glasses when one's eyes begin to fail and need them—will hasten these changes in the eyes because the supply anything you may those changes in the eyes, because the strain put upon them becomes greater and greater. It would be just as rational to stop the clock and expect that time would stop and expect that time would stop in consequence.

"But if I begin to wear glasses
I must always continue to do so."
