CHAMBERLAIN'S ARRIVAL of the United Fress at the Brevoort House this evening. He did not wish to answer any questions regarding controversial matters in England, but as a general expression of his views declared himself in favor of the discatablishment of the church, entire freedom of the primary education, local option, the extension of local government to all parts of the kingdom, a graduated property tax, and manhood suffrage. He did not think the Irish question would be settled in our time. He declined to discuss the differences between his plan as to Ireland and that of Mr. Gladstone, as it would require too long an exposition. He was a Free Trader as opposed to what is called fair trade, though he had never heard the latter successfully defined, and it was difficult to say whether it was making any progress.

The cable report of his speech to the effect that Irish-Americans had lost no occasion in the last thirty years to take a position tain occasions in the last thirty years they had not hesitated to jeopardize the best interests of their adopted country in pursuit of their special objects.

Mr. Chamberlain did not think is profor him to express any opinion in advance as to whether it would be wiser for the Fishery Commission to work back to the last trenty, the treaty of Washington, or to take up the treaty of 1818 and revise it. He did not know that the subject of Commercial Union com-mended itself to any considerable number of people outside of Canada. He did not think matter had received any considera-in England. He observed that tion in England. He observed that one or two Canadian papers attacked it very warmly, but he thought they were laboring under a misapprehension as to his position in the matter. Being asked if he thought the idea would be pleasing to the English people, he replied that he thought they would be scarcely willing to tolorate it, because the great advantage of the connection with the self-groupping colonies is the fact with the self-governing colonies is the fact that trade follows the flag. If that advantage is taken away it is very difficult to see why England should retain the obligation that is thrown upon her for their defense.

Mr. Chamberlain was asked if he considered imself as the representative of Great Britain rather than Canada. He answered that he was the representative of Great Britain and "not of the whole Empire. Well, I should not say that. All Thoroughbred Borkshire Boar. In regard to the date of the meeting it had not been as yet fixed, but it would not be until after the arrival of Sir Charles Tupper, who was expected in a few days at the most,

Mr. Chamberlain was shown a copy of the preamble to the resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of this city on Thursday last, and said that it contained a substantially accurate quotation of his speech, but that it is, perhaps, a little stronger than the original speech, a qualifying word having been omitted, but that it did not misrepresent him at all. Two detectives were on duty in the corridor of the hotel, and it is understood they will act as a body guard during Mr. Chamberlain's sojourn in this country.

DROWNED IN A SACK.

A Befroit Newspaper Charges a Saloan Reeper With Mardering a Girl.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—A girl 22 years of age, who said her name was Julia Dixon, came to this city a few months ago from London, Ont., and went to work as a domestic in a family on Hancock-avenue. While there she received the attentions of an East side saloon keeper. Later she worked for families on Antoinestreet, and from the house of one of these she street, and from the house of one of those she one day disappeared without warning. Her brother came here to look her up, but finding no trace of the girl went back home. A local paper yesterday published an article declaring that Miss Dixon was murdered and that her remains were sewed up in a suck and thrown into the Detroit River between the remains were seven to be the series of the serie a sack and thrown into the Detroit River be-low Wyandotte. The article says the young woman was taken by a man supposed to be the saloonkeeper, to a house where a doctor per-formed a criminal operation on her. The girl sank rapidly, and it was decided to make away with the body. The preparations for this were perfected before the girl was dead and when the patient seemingly ceased to breath a coffee sack was brought in and the body hurriedly sawed up in it. There is reason to believe that the girl was thrown unto the river while she was yet alive, but while she was un-conscious. It is said the murderers will soon be arrested.

Bied While Running to a Fire. A very sad accompaniment of the fire was the sudden death of the youngest son of a neighbor, Henry Dennis, who, while running to the fire, was observed to fall down, and when reached immediately expired, it is supposed from rupture of the heart.
