Municipal Reform.

To the Editor of the Warren.

DEAR SIR.—I see the Ontario Government has appointed a commission to enquire into the working of our municipal system with a view to reforming the same where necessary; and I quite agree with the Canadian Post in the opinion that it would have been well to have included a number of reformers of townships and warrens of counties on said commission. And I might say here there are few men in Canada having more experience in such matters than the Rev. Dr. McNeill, Mr. J. Kelly, M.P.P. for North Victoria. But I commenced this with the intention, with your permission Mr. Editor, of pointing out a few reforms that I think might be advantageously introduced into our municipal system. And first is financial matters. It seems to me that the holding of elections every year entails a very considerable and needless expense. Let any one go for a few years the changes that are made in the personnel of the different township councils coming under his notice, and I think he will agree with me that the money spent in electing might better have been spent on the work, and that an election every two years would answer all necessary purposes. Next is the qualification of councillors. Under the act the law a tenant if possessed for 600 is qualified to sit on the council, and an owner though assessed for three times the amount of his assessment does not exceed the amount of any assessment that may be on his property by 500 is not qualified. Now any one can see that an owner who expects to remain in a municipality has more interest in the proper administration of the affairs of the municipality than a tenant who may not be more than a year or two a resident in it. I think upon the whole the electors are quite competent to judge as to who is or is not fit to act as a councillor, and any one qualified to do so should be qualified to act as councillor. It is a fact to say that the people shall elect the councillors, and then place restrictions on to who they shall or shall not elect. There are other reforms I might mention, but I have already made this long enough, and as your rate I don't suppose the commissioners or the government will adopt my suggestions, and I only write this in the hope that it will draw out opinions from others having more knowledge and more influence than myself, as I think now that the government are giving their attention to the matter all the interested should make their opinions known, and some good would likely result. Yours, SAM SUBBAY.

Temperance on Justice Alias Swipes.

Mr. Editor, kindly give me a space in your paper again. Any school boy would readily perceive without much analysis that Justice is none other than this venerable SWIPES, nor would any English school boy hesitate for a moment to affirm the fact. Advanced of the productions of his pen, or something else, he drops Swipes and assumes the name of Justice, as the producer of a most unjust, and in many points unorthodox article. Any school, journalist, or any reader of THE WARREN, must hold in supreme contempt such conduct. Only once in a century is the human race capable of producing such a specimen, and it is at once the principles of mankind. Imagine Swipes for months carrying on a controversy with an opponent, and then stooping so low as to write his own P.D.F.F. Not content that the merits of the cause which he advocated should be decided by the verdict of the intelligent readers of THE WARREN, he has assumed his imperial decision (for he must deem it such) by the astounding production of Justice. The readers of THE WARREN are doubtless well supplied by his articles, supported by the force of Justice, that it was the GREAT SWIPES who was anxious to impress them with it. If your Swipes was pure he has become horribly defiled by the same which he has imposed. Whatever regard he has for an author, he deserves none as a man—none whatever. To abuse a man and then to add SLANDER, conduct proper only with bar-room loafers. Let the memory of such man be forgotten. I have no desire by any means to be known for the readers of THE WARREN the just and skillful behavior of the name of Justice Alias Swipes, although I could not but that would be dishonorable, yet not beneath the tactics of Swipes. Swipes ought to know that to build up a character on the ruins of another is dishonorable, and exceedingly foolish; but this is what the votaries of the unclean have always been trying to do. Leaving Swipes to his tarnished glory as unworthy of further notice, I would like to say to the readers of Temperance a few words in conclusion. If I have written any sentences of profanity or vulgar language, I have gratified hereby on the finer feelings of the reader, I regret it, and would heartily withdraw it. My aim was not to vanquish an opponent, or display any ability at his expense, but simply to give those arguments which appeared to me to be the most logical and reasonable on the point. I have more respect for the editor of THE WARREN and the readers than to make any effort to bias their judgment by any surreptitious, or by pointing out in the editorial matter of Swipes, the fallacies of my own. I am just as anxious as he is for every truth or truth which he advanced. I have always held that any but an object who from personal motives would oppress any great truth or principle that might prove beneficial to the commonwealth, is unworthy of the franchise of a free man, and his name is a disgrace, or that of any other advocate of the temperance reform, is of small importance to the state compared with the franchise as a man at stake. If the selling of tobacco is not any or so restriction will deprive the best interest of the state and lead to the most up to the highest place of manhood and citizenship, let us have it. But if the experience of the past and the possibilities of the future demand a restriction, so that we may not too easily be deceived by the desire of the race, I would pray fervently, may it soon come. The school-keeper has rights, individual rights, which ought to be respected; but the best interest of the state is always paramount to that of the individual, and the state has no right to deprive a revenue from the collection of the individual's highest good. The theory of the state is to organize the school-keeper out of respectable society. No matter who may oppose, or by what legal steps it may be reached, PROHIBITION will ultimately be an accomplished fact. It is the smallest, the least, the most "unintentional," a most of all, a most, under the foundation of the new Jerusalem, Rev. 21-20. The fulfillment of a prophecy uttered twelve hundred years before the ruinous art of distillation was discovered. To the reader I will frankly admit my ignorance of this great question, but I will yield to no one for honesty of purpose and an intense desire to be right, and to acquire truth. I avoided religious references in the debate until compelled to bring them in, because I concluded from many necessities and expressions in the letters of my critic, he was superficial, not withholding the fact of his sheltering himself behind religious matters. The religious theory cannot suppress the eternal verities. Truth is indestructible. I will make no reply to the boast and slander of Justice Alias Swipes. Wishing the reader and the editor good-bye and thank you, Yours as ever, TEMPERANCE.

Children Cry for

OBITUARY.

DEPARTURE.—A very interesting event took place at Mr. Lowell's on Wednesday, Jan. 26th, being the marriage of his daughter Sara, to Mr. John Nesbitt. The bride was assisted in the tying of the knot by her sister Miss Landell, and the groom by Mr. D. Brown. The presents were both numerous and costly. After partaking of the good things prepared for the occasion, a most delightful drive was enjoyed by the numerous guests present. Their merry frolics join in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

OBITUARY.

DEPARTURE.—Mr. J. McCallum, who was in Toronto visiting his sister, who was severely injured by a runaway horse on the street—ran on his return home taken sick at Woodville, with scarlet fever. But under the best medical care he is slowly recovering.

OBITUARY.

DEPARTURE.—At the residence of the bride's father, Cameron, on Feb. 1st, Miss Margaret Cook, was united in matrimony, to Mr. Wm. Rodgers, of Cambridge. The happy couple were the recipients of many loving presents and tributes from numerous friends, of which we append a few. Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, set of glassware; Miss Fannie Daniels, silver cruet stand; Miss Hattie and Addie Eyles, silver picture cruet; Miss Rose Richardson, Lindsay, superb porcel lamp with shade; Miss Annie Agnew, fine porcel lamp with shade; Miss Joe, Laugford, silver picture cruet; Miss Mary Coombs, Lindsay, one cut-glass water pitcher and half-glass goblets; Miss Annie Coombs, cut glass vase; Mr. John Cook Jr., large looking-glass; Miss Mary Brown, cut glass butter dish; Mrs. Mary McNeill, cut glass vase; Mr. Wm. McNeill, cut-glass table stand; Bibbie Coombs, jeweled cruet case; Mrs. John Irwin, cut glass vase; Mrs. Dawson, lamp; Miss Magale M. Irwin, pair silver vases; Mr. Robt. Briggs, cut colored vase, besides numerous other presents almost innumerable.

OBITUARY.

DEPARTURE.—We are pleased to note Mr. James O'Brien's appointment as local agent for the Empire newspaper of Toronto, and Victoria Warren of Lindsay, as the energetic organ of conservatism has been so often ably presented to public view, we forbear from enlarging further than to say, The Empire is second to none in Canada. Therefore all people have the privilege of subscribing to it in their own language, in whose columns grains of truth for reflection abound. Subscribe for the Empire $1 yearly, or Warren and Empire only $1.00, which brings them in reach of all.

OBITUARY.

DEPARTURE.—That person who is afflicted with rheumatism is a great sufferer and greatly to be pitied. I have a great price for Yellow Oil. The remedy is certain, and not only for rheumatism, but for all external aches and internal pains.—11-2.

Speech to the Warren.—At the meeting of the Burnt River Literary Society Jan. 20th, there was a debate on the subject moved that war is a greater evil than intemperance. The affirmative was argued by Sam Hoadley captain, supported by a number of able soliloquists, and the negative by Mr. J. C. Eyles with a number of able assistants. The question on being put to a vote was decided in the negative.

THE MANAGER.—Your correspondent attended the Methodist fair meeting at Kilmour, last Tuesday, Jan. 20th, when a very interesting programme was gone through, consisting of speeches by Rev. Young, Macnamor, Egan, and Mr. Campbell, of Lindsay, readings and recitations by Rev. Sonard, Messrs. Rawlingson and Irwin, and a number of other ladies and gentlemen, and some good songs. The trio "A Little Love, a Little Trust," sung by Messrs. F. H. R. Whigson, and Morrison, literally brought down the house. We came home on the train next morning, and when near Kettie's station the train stopped and ran back some distance. The passengers were wondering what the program, till it was found out that the driver had got so nervous, they had to go back in search of it, as the loco horse would not go without a whip any more than any other horse.
