Few Places are better served in a quiet way than is Haliburton. It has a daily mail, a regular train service, jovial train men. with the genial engineer and conductor, and a popular and obliging station agent who has long been held in the highest esteem by all the villagers and the public generally. The hotel accommodation is also fine; and when the mills begin running, ranching becomes advanced, and the road "on to Mattawa" is constructed, then will Haliburton become what its great natural resources intended.

THE METHODIST MAGAZINE for November, 1890, Price $2 a year; $1 for six months; 20 cents per number. Torento: William Briggs. The Rev. Geo. Bond's fine series of "Vagabond Vignettes" describes in this number his visit to the rained city of Baalbec. Lady Brassey recounts her closing experiences in Australia before sailing or her return yoyage, which was so soon to end in a watery grave. The Rev. Hugh Johnston gives a graphic account of his visit to the famous big trees and Yosemite Valley of California. The Editor describes the old bistoric city of Constance with its martyr memories. These articles are all finely illustrated. An article of much interest by the distinguished Canadian litterateur, J. Macdonald Oxley, discusses with ample knowledge of the facts, the North-West Indian question, and describes the treaty system and much else of interest. A graphic sketch of "Samuel Budgett, the successful Magazing of the Payme. L.L.D., will eystem and much else of interest. A graphic sketch of "Samuel Budgett, the successful Merchant," by Peter Bayne, L.L.D., will attract much attention. "James Blackie's Revenge" and "Hoppety Bob" are two striking character sketches. The announcement for 1891 presents some striking novelties in the way of out-of-the-way travel, popular science and methodist topics.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday afternoon, a sad and fatal accident occurred at Manilla, by which Mr. Gershorn Bull, the well-known pump maker of that village lost his life. Mr. Bull was engaged working in a well in the village, when the clay at the bottom which was of that kind known as blue, and is as treacherous as quicksand gave way, almost covering the unfortunate man, who lived thus entomed alive for a few hours before he could be rescued. Although there were plenty of willing hands working with a will, all their efforts were of no avail, as death claimed him as a victim before he could be rescued. The accident has cast a gloom over the entire community.
