"The wedding bells continue to jingle in merry glee over hearts that are joined in wed-lock, and another ceremony has gone into history and will help to swell the number that have been. Last night the Royal Hotel was the scene of a glorious time, the bridal ocupie were there, the minister was there, and the license was there—all the ingredients which enter into a property conducted marriage ceremony. At 8 o'clock the nuptial knot was tied, Rev. E Daniel, rector of St. Johns, conducting the affair, and the parties more immediately concerned were Mr. Gaorge Pratt, of Lindsay, and Miss Ide Nixon, daughter of Capt. Chas. Nixon, of the Royal. Miss Rate Pratt, sister of the groom, assisted the bride, and Mr. David Clark of Lindsay assisted the groom. The bride was attired in a gracefully fitting costume of cream cashmere trammed with moire ribbon and oriental lace, Rev. Mr. Daviel performed the ceremony in the regulation way, after which the guests numbering over a hundred in all sat down to a splendidly served supper is the dining-room. The Cirigen's Band also took a hand in the festivity, and serended the party while the supper was in progress. Then the dancing commenced and the town clock had struck five o'clock, before the mucic and shuffling of the dancers ceased. As neural with all popular young ladies, there were presents in profusion with no lack of variety or richness, a fine plano being among the rest. The chair was taken at 8 o'clock, and after a few remarks the chairman called for the gies, "I Lough all Cares Away." the rendering of which promised well for the entertainment. Miss Soden, who has delighted Landasy and other audiences with her clever feats of elecution, then rected "Archy Dean," which was received with hearty applause. The encore of Mr. M. An excellent reading was given by Miss Houghton, Miss Carts, another of Cauade's rising elecutionists, gave a resitation. She will undoubtedly attain proficiency in her course and stand is the front ranks with our best elecutionists. Several instrumental soles and recitations were well rendered. The tableaux "Night and Morning," "Five races of Mankind" and "Pocahontus saving the life of Captain Smith" were skillfully represented. Mr. B. C.
