The Manager of the Grange Insurance Company has recently sent out a circular claiming that "In no coresivable case can any other contracts made exceed the blanket policies of the Grange Company." Instead of this being the fact I wish to say that the advantages to farmers given in the Royal Canadian policy exceed those of the Grange in about a dezen important particulars. An examination of the relative merits of the two policies leaves no doubt as to which company gives the best blanket.

The manager advertises that in the Grange Company no premium notes are taken, feet his sive, in co-operator). Don't believe a word of it. For an insurance of $3000 in that Co. the farmer gives a premium note for $90, a part of which he pays down and takes his chances as to future calls for the balance. In the Royal Canadian he would pay $30 for the same amount and have no further risk in the matter.

The Royal Canadian policy holders are secured by a surplus cash capital of over half a million dollars, while in the Grange Campany the security consists of premium notes, which when given the policy holders never expected to be asked to pay.

Grange policy holders are invited to examine the advantages I have secured for farmers in the Royal Canadian hefore they again put their sizuature to a large note for a policy not nearly as good.
