Mastery of Temper. In the sulture of self, a lesson of paramount importance and one which must he learned to absolute mastery of the temper. To gain this control requires constant thought and persistent endeavor. but its attainment is richly worth the labor. A lack of this masters more than anght slee makes thousands of lives miserable and fills incomerable homes with the poleonous atmosphere of inharmony, the hitter word lefers it is spoken, and oultivate chaerfulness. It is kind words, lender atterances, thoughtful deeds symmee controlled make the humblest life ly dispelled. radiant, lovable, and attractive. If children were early laught by parents the buy. If young people in starting on life's journey, would demly determine to masfor their tomper, to collivate at all times a spirit of cheerfulness, and loving hope fulness, and to frankly confess their erongs to the other when either allows temper to overmaster good resolutions, we would find fow lives drifting spark This is only one step in that all important self-onlines which grasps the othical side of life and develops it, and which we most need impressed on life to day, in the home, in the school, in the family paper, and from the pulpit. Let us learn sow to tive in harmony with all that is pure, noble and uplifting, -Am. Spectator, the many questions agitating the public mind. There are various aspects of the case all requiring careful consideration, and balancing before a conclusion should be arrived at.

one having the country's interests or his family's welfare at heart is a true friend of temperance; but how to accertain what true temperance is is the difficulty. Some ever that nothing short of total prohibition of both manufacture and sale will meet the requirements. Others the other extreme, that there should be absolute free trade in intoxicating liquor. Both

The human mind is ever prone to prohibit. In home, school, religious, or legislative life the tendency is to that system of paternalism which has the words "you shall not," as the groundwork of the whole. In all these spheres of life there is the golden medium; and to attain it is an easy matter provided one bears quietly in mind the rights others have as individuals.

Children require guardianship until experienced enough to manage for themselves, but the quality of it varies from extreme beense to the child on the one hand, to tyrannical dominaering on the other. The duty of the state towards citizens is also a most important factor in the question, Some persons are unsound in mind. Rather than that these should remain a burden on their friends where the cost would be great and the attention small, the state intervenes and says they may be kept in asylums. Again parents are in reason legally entitled to control and direct their children. A Pleasant Herb Drink-A Spring

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is for use by pouring on boiling water te draw out the strength. It sells 50 cents and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.—56-ly.
