Coughing

s Nature's effort to expet foreign subprequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to type's Cherry Pectoran. It assists nature in ejecting the mucus, allays critation, induces repose, and is the nest popular of all cough cures.

most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so rehable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside, I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and coughs. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure."

Mrs. In In Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold."

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessar, for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Hockingham, Vt.

The question having arisen as to what course this Excellency would take in the event of the death of Sir John Macdonald, especially during the session and at a sesson when time is precious, the most striking case on record may be worth a moment's notice. Lord Paimerston died on the 18th October, 1865. "The time, however," says Mr. Spencer Walpole, "was position of the general Grit policy of the session as are any others in history's soroll; yet are we all se worthy of commemoration as are any others in history's soroll; yet are we all se worthy of commemoration as are any others in history's soroll; yet are we all se worthy of commemoration as are any others in history's soroll; yet are we all some in principle, in sentiment, in aim.
