Little Britain.

Still leading. In returning thanks to our many friends for their kind patronage we beg to say that we are continually receiving fresh supplies of all the new and reasonable goods. We have learned from long experience that a heavy stock of staple goods will soon put the owner out of the race. OUR AIM is to keep a gilt edge stock and as near as possible to renew it every month. Turnip Seed is now on deck. We offer Steele Bros. best varieties. Don't experiment with your turnip crop; get the best. DON'T FORGET that we sell tin-ware for half the usual prices. We also keep a good stock of boots and shoes, and sell them cheap. Don't lose all day Saturday and throw in a railroad fare, when you can come down to the village after tea and get a pair just as cheap. WE HAVE a good stock of paint and glass—glass cut to any size or shape. OUR BUSINESS is run on a cash basis.

The highest market price paid for produce and one cent extra in goods. We are determined with your assistance to make Little Britain the cheapest place to get your supplies and to that end will keep climbing, and when you hear a little squawking you will know that our spurs has knocked off some of the bark.

The Closing Exercises at the Collegiate Institute.

The hold that the Collegiate Institute has upon the citizens of Lindsay was well shown last Friday, the occasion being the annual closing of the school. Throngs of people took their way along Kent street west, and by a little after 8 o'clock the assembly hall was well filled; the tardy throng streamed along till 8.30 when the hall was packed.
Mr. J. R. McNeillie, chairman of the Board of Education acted as chairman of the meeting and did it so well as to win for himself a vote of thanks from the audience. In a short speech he opened the program, and recounted the school's progress in number of students, in winning of certificates and honors, and in financial prosperity, and was followed by Principal J. O. Harstone, B.A., who presented the prizes and medals to the successful candidates. The prize list is as follows:—

Hannahoe.
Mr. Harstone presented all the prizes except the Taylor medal in closing, the presentation of which fell to the lot of Mr. John A. Barron, Q.C. Mr. Barron fulfilled his welcome duty in a very pleasant way, paying some high compliments to the classical instructors. It was inspiring to see the prize winners one by one and sometimes two by two receive their rewards of honor. Applause upon applause rang out from the boys of the school and the friends assembled, and the heart must have beat high and the eye shone bright, as each successful one had his moment of triumph. The number of prizes won by the girls was noteworthy, in Greek, Chemistry, Physics, Reading, English, French, Calisthenics, their names appear—certainly a tribute to woman's power of brain.

The prizes given were valuable, especially the gold medals, one in closing given by Mr. F. C. Taylor, the other in Mathematics, English and Latin given by Mr. D. J. Mc-Intyre, Q.C., and Mr. I. H. Oliver's large bromide picture given to the girl who takes the highest stand in drill and calisthenics. Messrs. S. Hughes, M.P., D. Ray, W. Flavell, R. S. Porter and G. A. Metherell complete the list of donors from the town, while Messrs. Fitzgerald and Marty, and Messrs. Stevens and Harty from the school, add valuable prizes. It seems to the WARDER that this prize list could be easily doubled and we would invite the friends of the school to consider this question and send their names and their prizes to Principal Harstone for insertion in the next school calendar to be issued at once.

Following the presentation of medals &c. Miss S. McDonnell read very beautifully a poem of Bayard Taylor's with song accompanying, the whole effect being very charming. One of the most pleasing episodes that ever graced a commencement came at this juncture, Mr. Fred J. Smale, B.A., was called to the stage, and Messrs. McNeillie for school board, Mayor Ray for town council and Harstone for collegiate staff presented him with addresses, warmly congratulating Mr. Smale on his recent achievement, the winning the 1851 exhibition scholarship. Mr. Smale replied in a short speech that evinced qualities of mind and heart rarely found in a young man. Every person in the hall vied with everybody else in applauding our old Lindsay boy, and such enthusiastic appreciation resulted that Mr. Smale will be henceforth inspired to win the highest laurels in the scientific world.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Prof. Clark of Trinity University Toronto. Adapting himself to circumstances he spoke for only half an hour on "Learning and working." The address was earnest, thoughtful, inspiring, and spoke in the audience a desire for more, and Rev. Mr. Johnston in moving a vote of thanks said what the whole audience felt, viz: that Prof. Clark's return to Lindsay would be eagerly looked for.

Miss Lizzie Cathro's valedictory deserves high commendation. True, earnest, pure in thought, chaste, strong, beautiful in expression, sweet-toned and clear in delivery, it was a farewell that did credit to Miss Cathro and to her school. The WARDER has pleasure in publishing the valedictory in full.

God Save the Queen and the benediction closed the commencement for '92, and the audience prouder than ever of its sons and daughters, brothers, sisters and friends, and of its Collegiate Institute, wended its darksome way homeward, to wait for commencement day 1893.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS.

MR. CHAIRMAN, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.—It becomes my privilege to-night to present the words of farewell, in behalf of my fellow students of '92. Another session, with its joys and sorrows, another year, with all its hopes and fears, draws to a close; and as we think of the many pleasures we have enjoyed together, and of how soon now we are to separate, a minor chord of sorrow intermingles with our notes of happiness.

As we look back over the work of the year, we feel how nearly our school approaches the ideal. A school is not doing its best work, is not attaining to the height of its possibilities, if its pupils are being trained in one direction only, leaving the other sides of their nature undeveloped. On the contrary a pupil should be trained to be a future citizen—a strong, active body, a clear, alert mind, and a firm, true moral nature. And truly, while we have been acquiring that mental training, which by many is considered to be of primary importance, in a course at a Collegiate Institute, we have also been physically developed, both in gymnasium and on play-ground, whilst pulsing through all, guiding and controlling all, there has been that strong, true, moral tone, which, being of no one particular denomination or sect, still in the universal nature of man, sways all alike. Through the efforts of our Literary Society, we have been brought under the influence of musicians and speakers, of a high order, our taste for art and beauty has thus been deepened, and strengthened; and above all, we have to some extent learned the great lesson of life—to regard the things of the moment in their real light, and to reverse, and strive after, only those things which are lasting and true.

To the students who remain behind we commit the honour of our noble school. We feel that we owe her much, that through her ideas of life have been vivified and made real, and that our ideals of life have been rendered higher, nobler and purer. When we look after those who have already issued from her walls, we see her influence clinging to them, perhaps all unconsciously to themselves.

We see how they are earnestly and nobly contending for their places in life, many although perhaps in humble spheres, or obscure positions, yet doing brave and noble work, while some have already traced the outlines of that name, which will one day resound through the length and breadth of our fair land. And as we watch their progress, we feel that our school has already won a reputation for thoroughness, and breadth of instruction; and we trust that those who are to follow, will not only be faithful to the name already gained, but will by their earnestness, loyalty, and sincerity, raise it even beyond its present proud position. We hope that our school will in the future bear a name untarnished and unswayed, and that there may ever graduate from her class rooms, manly, warm-hearted young Canadians, who will be worthy of the name they bear, true to the precepts of their masters, and loyal to the grand old flag, which ever floats over justice, freedom, and truth.

Those of us who leave, we who look back to-night on the months and years that are gone, and who know that our Collegiate life is drawing to a close, find it indeed hard to voice our feelings. Our year together has been one of pleasant intercourse, and many joys. Whether on the campus, in Assembly hall, or in our class rooms, our intercourse has been marked by harmony. A friendly interest, in the welfare of each, has characterized all.

And now we are to separate, and our paths in life, starting from this point to diverse, will probably in a few years be far apart. Some of us will be called to one field of work, others to fill different spheres, and never again can we all meet together in the past. However we still look forward with the hope of meeting in future. Through the medium of our Alumni Association, we hope, at least once a year, to enjoy a day together again when our interests will once more be common to all—centred round our old school.

And thus as we say farewell to one another, we also add "Auf Wiedersehen,"—until we meet again—looking hopefully forward to these gatherings of the future, in which pupil will greet teacher, friend meet friend as of old. To our beloved teachers it is impossible to express our feelings, their kind, personal assistance, their patience, and encouraging words, and above all their deep sympathy with peculiarly constituted natures, have won our gratitude, respect and love, and have produced lasting effects on our lives. We may possibly in some future year, forget exactly, what (x + y + z) is, what Na Cis Hss Os signifies, or the literally, correct conjugation of volo, but never will we forget the patience, tact, and sympathy with which our discouragements and difficulties, have been explained away. Our school is fortunate in having a staff of teachers, whose real, lasting nobility of character, in addition to their thorough, wide-ranging knowledge in their respective departments, renders their influence ever of the truest and best. In after years when we look back on our school life, and think of the friends found there, far above all as best, and proudest, shall we see our teachers; the central figure our beloved principal, and circling round him, hand joined in hand in their work, Science, Moderna, Classice and English harmoniously blended, all bound together in their common aim—the advancement and lasting welfare of their pupils. Long indeed will the image of our kind-hearted principal, linger in the minds of the students of '92, as their ideal, of a true gentleman,—one of nature's noble men.

On taking a last leave of our school, we would ever wish to carry with us, all the brave and true lessons of life, which we have learned here. We say farewell to our highly-respected janitor, Mr. Passmore, who takes so deep an interest in all connected with the school, and who fulfils his duties so faithfully and well. We sadly say farewell to our fellow pupils, and bid them all God speed in their onward, trusting that they will ever remain faithful to their old school, and to the friends who shaped them there. To our noble-hearted teachers, we bid a lingering adieu. We hope that we will ever retain the impressions of morality, and the lessons of true manhood and womanhood, which they have exemplified to us.

And now as we go out into the world, our characters are to be tested. May none of us ever reflect discredit on ourselves, or our early training, but oh! may we ever strive to make each day tell for some good accomplished, some kind deed done.

Turn, turn, my wheel! What is begun At daybreak, must at dark be done,
To-morrow will be another day;
To-morrow, the hot, furnace flame Will scorch the heart, and try the frame,
And stamp with honor, or with shame,
These vessels made of clay.

Children Enjoy
the pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative; and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.
The best cure we know for Constipation and Headache is the pleasant herb drink called Kane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dry roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c and $1.—18-ly.
