WILLIAM MAXWELL,

PORT PERRY.

The Port Perry correspondent of the Whitby Chronicle of July 8th, has the following :-"The news on Sunday last, that Wm, Bravener was dead spread through the town with as much speed and as much sensation as if a leading man had gone. And why? Ah, therein lies a tale. It is expression reflecting upon the career of one who is past the range of wrong and ruin; but Wm. Bravener's life has left a lice, when I saw around me the most to guide other frail mortals. Not many of us ever knew him by any name but what he has again become - William Bravener. Once he was a young man of had sapirations—grand, good ideals—they looked forward with faith and courage. Children were born under auspices of love and promise. This part of the story ends here. The country has a trap set for the heads of such happy families. Our land of freedom accepts a license bribe to allow those so disposed to sell a demon into and his joyful and happy family were into disgrace in some home like poor Bravener's. That it may become known, and there being from three to four hunthe Proprietors, at an enormous expense, are placing a Sample Bottle Free into every home selves, the trip was an unusually pleasant one. Every countenance was beaming with cheerfulness. The clouds and frowns and scowls so often visible were not apparently taken along. The excursionists were largely made up of the members of SHILOH'S CURE, Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and the society with their wives and families.

The officers and members of the popular "Brotherhood" were easily distinguishable by the highly decorative appendage which each wore in honor of the order. The officers under whose able management the excursion was conducted deserve special praise for the complete arrangements made and for the satisfactory manner in which the whole programme was carried out. The Oakwood Band which accompanied the pleasure party parlors, contributed largely to the entertainment of the passengers by the choice music with which they favored us. The steamer Orandella, though having on board so large a number, afforded room for all.

Poisoning.—A valuable Newfoundland dog, belonging to Mr. J. F. Cunnings is supposed to have been poisoned, A handsome reward is offered for the apprehension of the party who so charitably ministered to the innate wants of so valuable a specimen of the canine tribe.

Calomel in Hemorrhoids.

For a number of years Dr. J. B. James, of London, has treated hemmorrhoids by the simple proceess of applying calomel to them with the finger. and claims to have done so with marked success in every case, particularly when the hemorrhoidal mass was inflamed, which is characterized by mucous discharge and hemorrhage, accompanied with a painful sensation of weight in the region of the rectum. All these symptoms, it is alleged, were speedily relieved by the simple application of the calomel, which had still more important subse quent advantage of restoring the patient to perfect ease, enabling him to pursue his usual occupations in happy immunity from all distressing or annoying symptoms. - Scientific american.

The notion that people have of purifying the blood by putting something into it is absurd—as though impure substances could have any purifying effect. Would soiled cloth be much improved by being washed in a decotation of burdock roots or sarsaparilla? Let one with blue lips and pallid tace start out briskly for a run, and in a short time he comes in with rosy lips, bright eyes and an altogether different countenance. The oxygen which he has been taking in has served to wash out the effete matter and burn it up, and he is a new man. Then take plenty of exercise in the open air, live in well-ventilated rooms, eat simple, wholesome tood, and drink freely of pure water, and you will need no other blood purifier.
