The Lesson of the Present Financial Depression-Temptations Which Beset the

BROOKLYN, July 16.—Rev. Dr. Talmage has selected as his subject for today a topic of the greatest interest and timeliness, viz., "Comfort for Business Men," the text being Iasiah, 40:2—"Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem."

What an awful six weeks in commer cial circles! The crashing of banks from San Francisco to New York, and from ocean to ocean. The complete uncer-tainty that has halted all styles of business for three months, and the pressure of the money market for the last year have put all bargain-makers at their wit's end. Some of the best men in the land have faltered; men whose hearts are enlisted in every good work, and whose hands have blessed every great charity. The Church of God can afford to extend to them her sympathies, and plead be-fore heaven with all availing prayer. The schools such men have established, the churches they have built, the asylums and beneficiary institutions they have fostered, will be their eulogy long after their banking institutions are forgotten. Such men can never fail. They have their treasures in banks that never break, and will be millionaires forever. The stringency of the money market, the wisdom of Almighty God come down upon our National Legislature at their convening next month at Washington, and such results be reached as shall restore confidence, and revive trade and multiply prosperities. Yet not only now in the time of financial disaster, but all through life our active business peo-ple have a struggle, and I think it will be appropriate and useful for me to talk about their trial and try to offer some curative perscriptions. In the first place, I have to remark that a great many of our business men feel ruinous trials and temptations coming to them from small and limited capital in business. It is everywhere understood that it takes now three or four times as much to do business well as once it did. Once a few hundred dollars were turned into goods-the merchant would be his own store sweeper, his own salesman, his own bookkeeper; he would manage all the affairs himself, and everything would be net profit. Wonderful changes have come; costly apparatus, extensive advertising, exhorbitant store rents, heavy taxation, expensive agencies are only parts of the demand made upon our commercial men; and when they have found themselves in such circumstances with small capital they have sometimes been tempted to run against the rocks of moral and financial destruction. This temptation of limited capital has ruined men in two ways. Sometimes they have shrunk down under the tempation. They have yielded the battle before the first shot was fired. At the first hard gun they surrendered. Their knees knocked together at the fall of the auctioneer's hammer. They blanched at the financial peril. They did not understand that there is such a thing as heroism in merchandise, and wanted to buy, and down when they wanted to sell, and unsaleable goods were on the shelf, and bad debts in their ledger. The gloom of their countenances overshadowed even their dry goods and groceries. Despondency, coming from limited capital, balasted them. Others have felt it in a different way.

They have said: "Here I have been trudging along. I have been trying to be honest all these years. I find it is of no use. Now it is make or break." The small craft that could have stood the stream is put out behind the lighthouse on the great sea of speculation. Stocks are the dice with which he gambles. He bought for a few dollars vast tracts of western land. Some man at the East, living on a fat homestead, meets this gambler of fortune, and is persuaded to trade off his estate here for lots in a western city with large avenues and costly palaces and lake steamers smoking at the wharves, and rail trains coming down with lightning speed from every direction. There it is all on paper. The city has never been built nor the railroads constructed, but everything points that way and the thing will be done as sure as you live. And that is the process by which many have been tempted, through limitation of capital, into labyrinths from which they could not be extracted. they could not be extricated. I would not want to chain honest enterprise. would not want to block up any of the avenues for honest accumulation that open before young men. On the contrary, I would like to cheer them on and rejoice when they reach the goal; but when there are such multitudes of men going to ruin for this life and the life best merchants are thrown into competition with men of more means and less conscience, and if an opportunity of accumulation be neglected one hour someone else picks it up. From January to December the struggle goes on. Nights gives no quiet to limbs tossing in restlessness, nor to a brain that will not stop thinking. The dreams are harrowed by imaginary loss, and flushed with imaginary gains. Even the Sabbath cannot dam back the tide of anxiety; for this ways of worldliness dashes clear over the churches and leaves its foam on Bibles and prayer-books. Men who are living on salaries, or by the culture of the soil, cannot understand the wear and tear of body and mind to which our merchants are subjected, when they do not know but that their liveliheod and their business honor are dependent upon the uncertainties of the next hour. This excitement of the brain, this corroding care of the heart, this stain of effort that exhausts the spirit, sends a great many of our best men, in mid-life, into the grave. They find that Wall Street does not end at the East River. It ends at Greenwood behind desks and counters banished if on the fresh air, weighed down by carking cares, they are so many suicides. Oh! I wish I could, to-day, rub out some of these lines of care; that I could lift some of the burdens from the heart; that I could give relaxation to some of these worn muscles. It is time for you to begin, to take it a little easier. Do your best, and then trust God for the rest. Do not fret. God manages all the affairs of your life, and He manages them for the best. Consider the lilies—they always have robes. Behold the fowls of the air—they always have nests. Take a long breath. Bethink, betimes, that God did not make you for a pack horse. Dig not make you for a pack horse. Dig yourselves out from the hogsheads and the shelves, and in the light of the holy Sabbath-day resolve that you will give to the winds your fears and your fret-fulness, and your distresses. You brought nothing into the world, and it is very certain you can carry nothing out. Having food and raiment be therewith content. The merchant comes home from the store. There has been great disaster there. He opened the front door, and said, in the midst of his front door, and said, in the midst of his family circle: "I am ruined. Everything is gone. I am all ruined. His wife said: "I am left;" and the little child threw up its hands, and said; "Papa, I am here." The aged grandmother, seated in the room, said: "Then you have all the promises of God, beside, John." And he burst into tears, and said: "God forceive nee that I have been said: "God forgive me, that I have been so ungrateful. I find I have a great many things left. God forgive me. Again I remark, that many of our business men are tempted to neglect their home duties. How often is it that the store and home seem to clash, but there ought not to be any collision. It is often the case that the father is the mere treasurer of the family, a sort of agent to see that they have dry goods and groceries. The work of family government he does not touch. Once or twice in a year he calls the children up on a Sabbath afternoon when he has a half hour he does not exactly know what to do with, and in that half hour he disciplines the children, and chides them and corrects their faults, and gives them a great deal of good advice, and then wonders all the rest of the year that his children do not do better, when they have the wonderful advantage of that semi-annual castigation. The family table, which ought to be the place for pleasant discussion and cheerfulness, often becomes the place of perilous expedition. If there be any blessing asked at all, it is cut off at both ends, and with the hand on the carving knife. He counts on his fingers, making estimates in the interstices of the repast. The work done the hat goes to the head, and he starts down the street, and before the family has risen from the table he has bound up another bundle of goods, and says to the customer: "Anything more I says to the customer: "Anything more I can do for you to-day, sir?" A man has more responsibilities than those which are discharged by putting competent instructors over his children, and giving them a drawing-master and a musicteacher. The physical culture of the child will not be attended to, unless the father looks to it. He wust sometimes lose his dignity. He must unlimber his joints. He must sometimes lead them out to their sports and games. The parent who cannot forget the severe duties of life sometimes to fly the kite, and trundle the hoop, and chase the ball, and jump the rope with his children, ought never to have been tempted out of a crusty and unredeemable solitariness. thing as heroism in merchandise, and that there are Waterloos of the counter, and that a man can fight no braver battle with the sword than he can with the yardstick. Their souls melted in them because sugars were up when they preach sermons and advocate reforms heaven; the shipwreck of a world! Oh! and denounce wickedness, and yet your my dear hearers, whatever you lose, children will be captivated by the glitter-though your houses go, though your ing saloon of sin, unless you can make your home a brighter place than any other place on earth to them. Oh! gather all charms into your house. If you can afford it, bring books, and pictures, and cheerful entertainments to the house hold. But, above all, teach those children, not by half an hour twice a year on the Sabbath day, but day after day; and every day teach them that religion is a great gladness, that throws chains of gold about the neck, that it takes no spring from the foot, no blitheness from the heart, no sparkle from the eye, no ring from the laughter, but that "her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace." I sympathize with its coffin in the empty bread tray, and nakedness shivers for lack of clothes and and the friends of all young men, to the contrary, I would like to cheer them on and rejoic when they reach the goal; but when they were the goal; but were the goal; goa fire. something in his health, or something in his surroundings, which make him know well that he will never get up again. In 1857 it was estimated that, for many years previous to that time, annually there had been 30,000 failures in the United States. Many of these persons never recovered from the misfortune. But let me give you a word of comfort in passing. The sheriff may sell you out of many things, but there are some things of which he cannot sell you out. He cannot sell out your health. He cannot sell out your family. He cannot sell out your Bible. He cannot sell out your God.

This force was first systematically studied and taught as well as exhibited by Dr. Mesmer, a Suabian, in 1778. At a latter date Baird of England took up the Subject, and after long and patient study made a still further advance in its application to beneficent purposes, and Dr. Carpenter beneficent purposes, and Dr. Carpenter of London followed up the study of what had already been named as hypnotism and made it to some extent useful in the cure of disease.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

Stomach Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous de-
