The Question of Educational Expenses.

SIR,—In your issue of the 30th ult., it was with no small share of satisfaction that I read your comments on Mr. Mc-Neillie's remarks, on what you justly term "the faults and absurdities of our present system of education."

We daily hear a great deal about how the National Policy is depopulating the land, although it gives employment to thousands. But we never hear a word about how our present system of education is driving thousands of our young men and young women to seek a liveli-hood in Uncle Sam's dominions, after spending years here at high schools preparing themselves to solve a few catch estions. And then the education they receive here is of no account there. If by the fall of a scaffolding while he was they want to fill any position of responsition at work on a tall building in wall atreet, they want to nil any position of responsibility they must go to school there again, although we hear a great deal of bombast about our superior education, but that is only a farce. And the phrase in common only a farce. And the phrase in common use as to "the spread of knowledge" at the derivative and borne him bleeding and dusty to a shady spot to wait for the ambulance. You will also receiv. tow this summer along the road, the thanks of many good teachers. Our the thanks of many good teachers. Our educational system is kept up at an enor-

I am much pleased to see the patrons of industry have taken up this subject of reform in our educational work, that is if by too much ecohere there do not are it. if by too much cookery they do not spoil the soup. Yours respectfully,
