How the Tubercle Bacillus is Dissemi- nated From One to Another. Let us now glance at the germ called the tubercle bacillus, the germ which causes and which alone can cause tuber- culosis. It does not exist in the body of man or animals in health. Without the entrance of this particular germ into the human body from without, tuberculosis cannot develop in it. Without the transmission of this germ in some way or other in a living condition from the sick to the well, tuberculosis cannot spread. In the life story of this tiny germ lie both the potency for mischief which we deplore and the secret of our release from its bondage. The tubercle bacillus is a little color- less rodlike plant, so small that even many thousands of them piled together would make a heap still far too small to be visible to the naked eye. It cannot move about, nor can it grow without moisture, nor at a temperature much above or much below that of the human body. The material on which it grows must be very nicely adapted to its re- quirements, and it has no living chemi- cal growing places in nature outside of the bodies of men and a few warm-blooded animals. It can be cultivated artificial- ly in the laboratory, and we know more about its life and peculiarities than about almost any other germ. While it can remain alive in a dried state for many weeks, it is readily killed by heat, by sunlight, and by many of the chemical substances which we call disinfectants. It does not flourish equally well in the bodies of all human beings. When once it gains lodgment in a body suited to its growth it multiplies slowly, each germ dividing and sub- dividing, taking from the tissues material for its growth, and returning to them certain subtle poisons which it sets free. The action of the tubercle bacillus is peculiar in that it stimulates the cells of the body, wherever it may lodge and grow, to the formation of little masses of new tissue, which we call tubercles. These tubercles are at first short-lived, and if the disease progresses, tend to disintegrate and broken-down material, often containing myriads of the living germs, may be cast off from the body. In tuberculosis of the lungs, or consump- tion, this waste material is thrown off with the sputum. While almost any part of the body may be affected, tuber- culosis of the lungs is by far the most common form of the disease. It is the sputum after its discharge from the body on which our attention must be fixed. While the sputum is moist it can, as a rule, do no harm, un- less it should be directly transmitted to those who are well by violent coughing, by the use of uncleaned cooking or eat- ing utensils, by soiled hands, or by such intimate personal contact as kissing or fondling. But if in any way the spu- tum becomes dried, on floors or walls or bedding, on handkerchiefs or towels, or on the person of the patient, it may soon become disseminated in the air as dust, and can then be breathed into the lungs of exposed persons. This germ-laden material floating in the air may be swal- lowed, and thus enter the recesses of the body through other portals than the lungs, but these are the most vulnerable and accessible organs. The wide distribution of tubercle bacilli in the air of living rooms, and in other dusty places where people go, is due partly to the frequency of the dis- ease and the large numbers of living bacilli which are cast off in the sputum (sometimes millions in a day), and partly to the fact that many of the victims of consumption go about among their fel- lows for purposes of business or plea- sure for months or years. So such con- sumptive, if not intelligently careful, may yet act as a source of infection to men a source of active and serious and continual infection.—From "Tubercu- losis and Its Prevention," by T. Mitchell Prudden, M.D., in Harper's Magazine for March.

FIFTY FACTS ABOUT GOUGH BROS.

WOULD FAIL TO DO JUSTICE TO Their Stock! - Their Clothing! Their System. - Their Prices.

System is the key-note. System enables Gough Bros. to buy the right goods, at the right time, at the right prices. Haphazard work won't do. It is system rules and Goughs rule by system.

System clears out the Goods, brings on a rush of buyers, depletes the piles, makes room for new stock. They have been at it hard this spring. Everyone knows of it. The wholesaler, the competitor, the wearer, all know about what has been done. Each has felt Goughs' work in his pocket.

Have you Boys to clothe? Think of a choice of nearly 5,000 Suits! Remember that the prices begin at 89c., and bring up at $3 75. Fancy the chances to select in between these limits.

you have shown ability, wit and cleverness on every occasion, and that your term has been marked by precision character, faithfulness, punctuality and zeal. To one possessed of such qualities of mind and heart and habits of life, we can safely affirm that success must surely follow, no matter what sphere of life he or she may select. We ask you to accept this purse, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our appreciation and esteem for your kind services rendered as organist for the past year. We present it with the best wishes and hope that you may be crowned with success as you have been in the past in all your undertakings and when you have finished the duties of this life you may pass to that home of eternal light. Signed on behalf of the people of Zion.
