Only a peculiarly favored industry here and there being allowed to retain its old privilege unimpaired. The farmers have received as they badly needed special consideration in the reduction of the tariff." The liberal party at Ottawa are growing sillier this session than ever before. The tariff having been so fair and advantageous to the farmer, these gentlemen are badly at a loss for some points upon which to find fault. How hard they are up for reasons to condemn the government may be understood when we say that on Thursday night last Mr. Mills objected to the duty which the government has placed upon shell oysters. His ground was that shell oysters were one of the necessaries of life, and that the people should not be taxed for them. To no one in Canada are shell oysters "a necessary of life."

To those who are resident in cities and for others they are of course a very an article on which a tax for the public treasury should be raised, it seems to us it is on just such luxuries as this one. The government may tax shell oysters if they like 500 per cent., and not one farmer in ten thousand, nor one laboring man in 10,000 would feel the burden of one-thousandth part of a mill.
