—over to good health and rendered impervious to disease when the blood is pure and the liver active. For the liver is the sentinel which permits or forbids the germs of disease to enter the circulation of the blood.

You ought to be germ-proof against Grip, Malaria, or Consumption; you will be—if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

When your flesh is reduced below a healthy standard, when you are troubled with pimples and boils, or if you have dizzy, weak and sleepless spells—it's best to heed the warning.

Build up your strength, purify the blood, and set all the organs of the body into activity, by taking the "Discovery." It's guaranteed to benefit or cure all the diseases resulting from impure blood or inactive liver, or the money paid is refunded.

For a perfect and permanent cure of Catarrh, take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its proprietors offer $500 reward for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head. Costs only 50 cents.

LINDSAY TO CALIFORNIA

OVER "THE SANTA FE ROUTE" IN A PULLMAN PALACE CAR

The traveller's interest is excited by the stories told by conductors and porters as well as by the carefully edited guide books of the early ay, and of the recent stirring events of the historic ground. That being the great overland route it is not surprising to read of the many

ISSUED BY RAND, McNALLY & CO., OF CHICAGO

MASSACRES BY INDIANS or renegade whites disguised as Indians; of the robberies and pillages of the settlers; and of the frequent resort to "Judge Lynch." Here and there in the valleys trees are honored as having borne more than one occasion in the stern times, very unnatural fruits attached to the end of a rope. At intervals too may be seen on the black prairies, in the wind-forged, or open valleys of the Santa Fe "trail" and "route" over the mountains, or in terrible loneliness amid the sage brush of the "Desert."

THE RESTING PLACES OF HUMAN BONES. Underneath some of those marks rest remains of early Spanish and Mexican missionaries. Misguided mortals; in their blind fanaticism seeking by wrong systems to govern humanity they tried to overturn the old Pueblo system.

That Pueblo civilization seems but little advanced. Traces of its original grandeur abound on every side in ruined dwellings, walls, streets and public buildings. The research into the primeval growth of those vast areas is only beginning. They reflect

A HIGHER CIVILIZATION than the Spanish and Mexican romish missionaries inflicted or sought to inflict on them. As early as 1529 and again in 1538 Alvar Nunez (Cabeza de Vaca) traversed the Pueblo country at the head of a Spanish army. He found those people as advanced as the Mexicans and Spaniards were, or are to-day. Then they raised all known vegetables, corn, peas, and other grain. They grew cotton which they spun and wove into cloth. They also manufactured pottery, and were as far advanced as the generality of nations of that time. In 1540 Coronado the famous Spanish general and explorer traversed the country, but made no permanent settlement. The Pueblos were expert miners and workers of gold and silver, and it is likely, following the customs of all "christians" sent out in the name of the Pope, that everything movable was stolen. In three centuries under such government

THE PUEBLO INDIANS HAVE WALKED NEARLY AS LONG AS THE WHITE MAN. As the residents of the romish countries.

Their villages are protected by construction of an isolated and easy defence. There their village is protected, to use the expression of our boy, in the form of a "WEDDING CAKE."

The bottom story has no doors or windows. All the others have. The ascent to each successive story is by ladders. Sun baked clay or stone is the material generally used, and they are very substantially built. In each pueblo is a large hall, usually in the central part of the lower portion. There meetings are held and the business of the council is conducted. In old Mexican days the Pueblos were known as "citizens." In their favor in 1887 Chief Justice Sloss of the United States decided that under the treaty with Mexico when New Mexico, Arizona, etc., were ceded the Pueblos are also citizens of the United States. The laws of New Mexico, however, render them, as yet, the decision of the federal courts.

OTHER LONELY GRAVES contain remains of daring desperadoes, honest hardy pioneers, overland travellers, or United States soldiers of General Pike, Kit Carson and other brave fellows of the stormy times of 1806-6, of the "Mexican war" days away back in the "forties," or of the periods of the great Civil war, and the transport of goods wagon trains by soldiers in all times over the famous "Santa Fe" trail.

The name of General Zebulon M. Pike, after whom is named Pike's Peak in Colorado, possesses FRUGAL INTEREST TO CANADIANS. In 1805 and 1806, after the United States purchased Louisiana, then including vast areas as far north as Iowa and Nebraska, from Spain, the United States government selected young Pike—he was born in 1779 the son of a United States officer of distinction in the war of independence—to head the expedition to explore the new country. He traversed the country now Louisiana, Texas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico. Finally following down the Rio Grande in mistake for the Red river he fell into the hands of Spanish soldiers, but was returned in 1807. From Pike's Peak, 14,000 feet high a view of about 150 to 300 miles in all directions may be had. Liont.

Pike was the first white man to ascend the peak, hence its name. In the war between Great Britain and the United States in 1812, Pike, then a general, was selected to command the army destined to capture "LITTLE YORK," THE PRESENT TORONTO.

In the attack that brave officer, true to his fearless nature, led his men against the intrenchments and in the moment of victory, like Wolfe at Quebec, was killed.

GENERAL PIKE DIED ON THE FIELD AT TORONTO.

The late government should reward him by marking the spot where he died.

Places of interest in the States to visit. The British surveyor, George W. W. Phelps, was big enough to permit of the spot where General

Pike fell. General Montgomery who fought as a British officer under Wolfe in 1759 at Quebec and who was killed about midnight on the last night of 1775, a United States general leading with the afterward traitor General Benedict Arnold the attack on the citadel at Quebec where he fell and that where he died for public inspection. Why should not all Canadians be great enough to similarly honor General Pike's memory. It is fearless bravery in friend or foe that excites one's admiration, and PIKE WAS A GENUINE SOLDIER.

Every mile of the Santa Fe route is made interesting by tales of early days of adventure, romance, or bloodshed. Places that to-day own all the accomplishments of eastern civilization, were, almost within the decade, scenes of border lawlessness in many towns among the chief objects of interest are the deputy marshals or sheriffs who have potted their cool heads desperadoes, or who bear in their bodies several ounces of lead. Dodge city is famed for cow-boy exploits. Los Animas a Mexican town in Colorado at the junction of Purgatory river with the Arkansas where a company of Spanish soldiers was destroyed in the early days. Rio de las Animas or river of lost souls. La Junta and Bent's Fort, where Kit Carson first became renowned, are both famous in frontier legends. At the flourishing city of Trinidad in Colorado are two lofty mountain peaks, one Fisher's Peak and the other SIMPSON'S REST. Of these, we obtained excellent views as well as a fairly good one of Pike's Peak 105 miles away, and of the Spanish Peaks of the Rocky mountains very far distant. Simpson's rest is named after one of the early pioneers of Colorado. Attacked with other settlers by a party of Indians all sought refuge on the mountain top and withstood a severe siege. Years later when Simpson was dying he was requested to be buried on the mountain top where in early days he had won the first victory for the colony. A lofty monument plainly seen from the train marks his resting place. Up the slopes marks the head of the mountains beyond, are numerous relics of exciting times.

DICK WOOTEN'S HOUSE IS THERE. In earliest days Dick levied toll on transports for keeping the trail in order. Sometimes if the escort were small the toll would be heavier than usual. In more recent times when troops of cavalry escorted the convoys to guard them against harm, Dick levied his toll more in the indirect way over the bar or at the table. The ruins of the famous house are there still. Beyond Wooten and near the head of the pass, lying between the railway track and the old wagon trail may be seen who was corralled in the mountains and, refusing to surrender, was mounted by the deputy sheriff. A board at the head and another at the foot mark the spot.

"THE FOUR DUFFER BELOW" are all unconscious of comments made by the passing travellers on his fate. It is really surprising to note the vein of sympathy in each human heart for a stranger desperado. In all the converse of the party over the famous house are there still. Beyond Wooten and near the head of the pass, lying between the railway track and the old wagon trail may be seen

BACH SECTION DRAWN BY TWO ENGINES the ascent is not easy. Every curve, too, seemed to bring one to the "top," but on climbing the hill, another would appear above it. Thus the ascent was made. A splendid view from our train of the train following was taken and gives a good idea of the locality.

In passing through the tunnel we were gratified to find that no coal gas entered the tunnel. Indeed, coal gas was not noticed in the car but once on the round trip and it came from the heater in the car.

THE PARTY ON BOARD. The party on the "Fucino" while very numerous was a most excellent one. It embraced Mr. Andrew McNally of Chicago with his good lady, son-in-law, daughter and grandchild, besides young lady companion and attendants; Mr. and Mrs. Pickard of Bremer's Point hotel, Chautauque lake, New York state, Mrs. M. A. Norcross, a dear old lady, of Fairbank, Minn., and her daughter Mrs. J. W. Daniels, whose husband is Surgeon-Major Daniels of the United States service; Mr. J. G. Delaplaine a fine young Chicago, Burlington and Quincy man from St. Louis; Emile Breidenbach a wholesale lumber and timber dealer of San Francisco; Mr. Conway S. Campbell, Johnstone of San Rafael ranch, Garza, Cal.; Miss Ross of near Chicago going to reside in California; Mr. H. P. Hoger, chief inspector of the Pullman Co., besides two ladies from Boston, a traveller from Albuquerque to Los Angeles and our own party of three. In all there were constantly on the car twenty-five persons. Rarely has a car crossed the continent with a larger number of passengers than the Fucino on her first trip with the new ventilator. Every day the temperature outside was above summer heat. The fires were, however, kept going, for "sudden changes might come at any hour during the winter season"; at least such was reported to have occurred some time in the history of the road and consequently forms precedent for all subsequent years.
