ONE PARTICULARLY INTERESTING TO WOMEN AS IT DEALS WITH THEIR TROUBLES

LEAMINGTN, Jan. 7-It has been a cause of LEAMINGTN, Jan. 7—It has been a cause of wonder to many people why women will neglect the first symptoms, and continue to suffer from ill health, and from deblity, when the means of relief can so readily be obtained. Before a cure can be effected the work of the kidneys must be renewed, the blood cleansed of prisonous material, and the ligaments and muscles are gethered and invigorated. The history of the case of Miss Nettie Fresman, of this will can whose life, was saved by Dodd's this village, whose life was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has had one beneficial effect in that it has aroused acores of other women in this locality from the false modesty they were manifesting and as a result the sales of Dodd's Kidney Pills have been enormous, and the resultant good commensurate therewith, -.73.1;

Hints for Training.

"What shall I sat to get me into the best kind of training?" That is an important matter. In fact, eating is the most important nart of training. If you are well, if your stomen is in good condition, and your digestion is healthy, you can stand a great deal of work of any can stand a great deal of work of any kind, and of the athletic kind especially. You will remember, for instance, the time you went out and ran a mile when you were completely out of training. The first pain of disturbance you noticed was in your stomach. There was a feeling of nausea, a fairtness, and in a moment you were completely overcome. That was because your stomach was not in good two primary laws of training.

Then there are certain kinds of food that any one. doctor or mother or friend, will tell you are not healthy for any one, and never will be. They are not absolutely unhealthy. People eat them and do not die at once. But they are like smoking. It may not be very injurious to a full grown man, but never in the history of the world did any one attempt to prove that smoking tobacco was good for him. That is, it is pleasant to those durance, which is what you want when you are going into athletics. In the same way vegetables of many kinds are not good for a training man. They fill his stomach up with puffed up nothings that do not give him any good solid strength to speak of, a ter all is said.—

Korean Notes.

The first thing that strikes a visitor to The first thing that strikes a visitor to a Korean village is the surprising subpopulation of dogs. Every house seems to possess a pack of these spiritless curs, which are a gray variety of the Uninese chow-dog. They display a more than passing interest in a European trayeller. and a free use of one's stick is necessary to keep them at bay. On investigation one discovers that they form the staple article of diet of the population. Unlike most Asiatic races, the Koreans are meateaters, and these dogs, being always at hand, afford the necessary food with the minimum of exertion and expense. Another curious feature of the Korean diet is the total absence of tea, the almost universal beverage of eastern Acia.

Frequently one sees a Korean foraging for the evening meal. The method is simple, though unpleasant. He is armed with a short pole, to the end of which is noose tightens, and slowly throttles the dog, who is meanwhile prevented from getting to close quarters with its butcher by thrusts of the pole.

The country is much intested by the great long-coated Mongolian tiger. This nagnificent animal, though a considerable source of revenue on account of its valuable skin, is nevertheless much dreaded by the patives. So serious are the ravages committed by them that the King was forced to organize a regiment of "Royal Tiger-Hunters," and these constitute the corps d'elite of the Korean army.

Travelling in Korea can hardly be dessribed as luxurious. The Korean is not lavish of home comforts for himself, and he certainly provides a minimum of the same for the travelling foreigner. The average Korean hotel compares uniavorably with a modern pig-sty, and one has so sleep as best one can in the midst of surprising dirt, a colony of cattle and fowls, and other things which shall be nameless.—Harper's Weekly.

Quoits in Warfare.

The game of quoits is still popular among certain classes. Few of those who play it are aware that it has a deadly use in India. According to an English officer in that strange, rich section of the British Empire, quoite are used as implements of war by the Sikhs, an independent and very martial tribe in India. "The Sikhs," says he. "have a great variety of weapons. I observed the musket, matchlock, sword, spears of sundry forms dagger, and battle-axe; but the arm that is exclusively peculiar to this sect is the quoit. It is made of beautiful thin steel, sometimes inlaid with gold. In using it the warrior twirls it swiftly round the forefinger, and launches it with such deadly aim, as, according to their own account, to be sure of his man at eighty paces."
