ORANGEMEN STAND FIRM.

Political adventurers of various types regularly exhibit themselves before the public appealing to this or that prejudice, and seeking to array class against class, creed against creed, province against province, or town against country.

Among other organizations considered the patron leaders, were also active; but the rank and file of that order in Haldimand proved true to Dr. Montague.

campaign was the wild, the sympathetic, the fearful appeals made by the McCarthy-ites to the orangemen. The plan was well laid. The grits would stand firm. Some of the romanists would remain grit. The grit patrons would go grit. The one thousand orangemen in the riding state of the world wonder and Britain's capitathe seat of an Empire that has no equal thousand orangemen in the riding state of the witness's point was loaded the wrong the seat of the witness's point was loaded the wrong the seat of the witness's point was loaded the wrong the seat of the witness's point was loaded the wrong the seat of the world to wonder and Britain's capitathe seat of the world to what kind of men they were who made the world to wonder and Britain's capitathe seat of the world to what kind of men they were who made the world to wonder and Britain's capitathe seat of the world wonder and britain's and planning the vulgar, tobacco-chewing crew that advocated McCarthyism appealed to the orangemen direct. It was of no service to Dalton McCarthy and his colleagues to observe that orangemen in politics never appeal to their brethren in any sense but as citizens of Canada. Mr. McCarthy, following his principles which seem to assert that all men but D'Alton McCarthy are foolish, went so far as to endeavor to move the loyalists of Haldimand by proclaiming that his father was an orangeman. His pathetic appeal on that behalf was unheeded. Indeed it did him harm; for the electors very naturally only too numerous; but asked themselves if orangemen are so worthy a body and if D'Alton McCarthy's good, relible and durable father had been one why did not the son watch at an exceptionally follow in the footsteps of the father? Why has he until recent years, systematically belittled the orangemen? Why were the orangemen who turned out to honor his father's remains at the funeral ordered to remove all trace of regalia beada, securely packed, by registered mail, for twentyand why were not they allowed to per.

> Further, it is asserted by those present, that in a meeting held in a roman catholic district in Haldimand, D'Alton Me-Carthy actually informed the audience boastfully, that his daughter was by him sent to be educated in a convent, that she married a roman catholic, that she became romanist and to-day lives under his own roof she being a widow, and that her children are being brought up roman catholics and are being educated in roman catholic convents by Dalton McCarthy.

> If Mr. McCarthy would but observe the first principles of manhood he would see that neither Hon. N. Clarke Wallace, nor Sam. Hughes, nor any other true orange leader ever directly or indirectly appeals to orangemen or to any class. They lay down broad principles applicable to any and every class of the community.

One of the leading citizens of Cannington Mr. W. H. Hoyle, grandmaster of the independent order of Oddfellows this week visited Ottawa in his official capacity. During his stay of several days at the capital with his brethren from all parts of the country Mr. Hoyle delivered several addresses in Ottawa. On each and every occasion that worthy gentleman created most favorable impressions and greatly impressed the audiences with his eloquence and sound logic.

Continuing, the Times correspondent says:—"Information reaches me from a reliable source at Hiroshima that the ministry have adopted a resolute $230, while Saracen sold within a fraction of $200. #### The Hagle in Disgrace.

Among other organizations considered by those politicians to be subservient to their whims and devices is the Loyal Orange Association of Canada. The recent Haldimand campaign affords a striking illustration of the extent to which the aforesaid adventurers will go. In that contest not one reason could be addueed to show why Dr. Montague should not be elected. Yet an array of "adventurers" from Toronto swarmed among the people, and sought to infame prejudices, all with the one object of defeating Dr. Montague.

The agitation was publicly under the auspices of D'Alton McCarthy, but secretly assisted with the tull force of the reform party. Toronto was paraded by leading life-long grits begging "funds" to help en the "equal rights" agitation in Haldimand. The Globe did splendid service for McCarthy. The local grit organizations were unceasing in their afforts to promote the success of the McCarthy-grit candidate. Those other friends of gritism, i.e., the patron leaders, were also active; but the rank and file of that order in Haldimand proved true to Dr. Montague.

On Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt's motion

On Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt's motion to take the rest of the session for government business, the Rosebery ministry had a majority of twenty-two. It was expected that the division would be much closer; some even thought that the cabinet would be defeated. Lord Rosebery is just a little too weak to pass the measures he desires, and just a little too strong to let the opposition pass theirs.

The government estimate is that it will take six million dollars to complete the work of canal enlargement on the present basis, which will give fourteen feet of navigation from lake Erie to the port of Montreal. That is likely to do the countries and many years. What has been accomplished has cost over fifty million dollars, and as the ratio of cost increases with each foot of depth desired the finance ministers of the future are likely to be found strong and effective objectors to further enlargement.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Neil McEachern is enjoying a short visit with friends in Eldon...Mr. Allan D. He goes to New York, where he has secured a situation. GHASTLY.—The other evening some half dozen youths belonging to the village and neighborhood were seated or reclining upon the succulent green of the roadside at the corner discussing the weather and crop prospects, the tariff question, and the likelihood of the canal being pushed in the immediate future, when on a sudden their conversation was broken in upon in an exceedingly unpleasant and unwelcome fashion to say the least. Just exactly what the boys did see it is a rather difficult matter to glean from their excited and rather contradictory accounts. It appears it was a long white apparation passing underneath the culvert at the

It is a lasting honor to the orangemen of Haldimand that they declined to be misled by the McCarthys, the Finns, the Seftons, and other demagogues opposing Dr. Montague in Haldimand.

When right principles are assailed the orangemen as well as other law-abiding citizens will not hesitate to act; but no attention will be paid to the appeals of political adventurers.

It is worthy of note that Hon. Dr. Montague repeatedly publicly declared that if the government yielded one inch to roman cathelic aggression he would leave the cabinet.
