How to Air a Cellar.

A great mistake is sometimes made in ventilating cellars and milkhouses. The object of ventilation is to keep the cellars

cool and dry, but this object often fails of being accomplished by a common mis-take, and instead the cellar is made both warm and damp, according to the National Builder. A cool place should never be ventilated unless the air admitted is cooler than the air within, or is at least as cool as that or a very little warmer. The warmer the air the more this moisture it holds in suspension, Necessarily the cooler the air the more this moisture condensed and precipitated. When a cool cellar is aired on a warm day, the entering air, being in motion, appears cool, but as it fills the cellar the cooler air with which it becomes mixed chills it, the moisture is condensed, and dew is deposited on the cold walls, and may

A VICIOUS HORSE. - On Tuesday evening Mr. Yankes Hatrick was harnessing his bay horse to take a drive, when it suddenly grabbed him with its teeth by the muscles of the upper part of the left arm and jerked him about for a time, after which it brought him down. It hang to its hold like a bull dog. Meantimes Hetrick's shouts brought out his brother and father, who found it necessary to hammer the horse with a fork handle for some time before it would let go its hold. When Hatrick was released it was found that the animal's teeth had cut the flesh to the bone on both sides. He was taken to Dr. Eastwood' and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform before the wound could be properly attended to.

THE county of Ontario lost one of its most useful men in the death of ex-Warden James Graham, Seugog, on Sunday. He has filled with credit and ability every elective office in the municideposited on the cold walls, and may often be seen running down them in streams. Then the cellar is damp, and soon becomes muddy. To avoid this the windows should only be opened at night, and late the last thing before retiring. There is no need to fear that the night air is unhealthful. It is as pure as the air of midday, and is really drier. The cool air enters the apartment during the night and airculates throuseout. A sellar pal system in this county, and never vainly appealed to his neighbors for their votes to elect him. His modest, calm, truthful statement of his views and their interests was always accepted as satisfactory, and in any body of which he tormed a part it was sufficient for other members to know that he promoted or favored a measure and it was passed. Besides the attention he paid to municipal affairs and exhibition societies he gave his whole pounds, or more than three quarts of water, and in this way a cellar or milk house may soon be dried. energy to agriculture and stock breeding.

FROM THE DARK DISTRICT MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Cannington district of the methodist church was held at Oakwood on May 21st and 22nd, Rev. B. Greatrix, chairman of district, presiding. On ballot Rev. W. Benj. Tucker, B.A., B.D., was elected secretary. All the ministers and probationers were present excepting Rev. J. H. Mallett of Norland, who was very ill. The secretary was instructed to forward a message to J. H. Mallett, assuring him of the sympathy of his brethren in his illness. "For some years Sir Oliver Mowat has been hobnobbing with the temperance people of this province. By direct pledges and indirect assurances that he would do all in his power to curtail the London. They have over-ridden the will of the people as expressed at the polls, and have acted in a manner which shows them to be utterly unworthy of office in a democratic country.

"The people of the forest city voted iome years ago that the bars of that city should close at ten o'clock. The city council passed the by law and the license commissioners of that period carried it out. But ten o'clock standard time in London is 10.27 sun time, and the hotel keepers instead of closing by the time ordinarily used in the forest city took advantage of the extra 27 minutes. An appeal to the court sustained the hotel keepers and for several years under this technical quibble they went on defeating the wish of the majority of the citizens. During all that time, though Sir Oliver aware of what was going on, nothing was done. After a while, however, the sun time controversy was raised in connection with elections, and while some were run on standard time, others were conducted on sun time. Then the government was forced to act, and Sir Oliver last session put through a bill legalizing gular ways of sickness which sweeps over this standard time. This act out the extra 27 portion of the Dominion in the spring are minutes off the hotelkeepers of London noticeable in the increasing amount of the and compelled the observance of the people's will by closing the saloons at ten

"What did the license commissioners do? Finding that the vote of the people and the by-law of the city council were not compulsory on them, they rescinded the ten o'clock closing order and made the hour eleven o'clock standard time.

"The act was an outrage on the rights of the citizens. The question whether it is better to close early or late, have few bars or many, drink much or little, is not involved in this at all. The whole thing is, are three political workers, appointed because of party service or creed and race proclivities, to be allowed to override the will of the majority of voters in a large

The Obstinate Deacon. Gough tells a story of an obstinate deacon. He was an off ox, always on the wrong side, and ludierously stubborn. When the temperance reform was in full feather, and the question was discussed in the church of which he was an officer, he, as a matter of course, opposed it. He would not sign the pledge; he would not countenance its advocacy in the pulpit; he would not consent to its presentation in the Sunday school; he objected vehe-mently to the distribution of temperance Whisky's Warnings.

"Whisky is no deceiver. It places its warnings at the outposts so all may read and head. Whisky is eminently fair and above board, and uses no deceit. Its warnings are everywhere, and it is not whisky's fault if man does not profit by them. Wherever you see rags, squalor, wretchedness, you have encountered one of whisky's warnings: when you visit a pauper's corner of the graveyard, and look upon the nameless mounds, you find them there; whisky flaunts its emblematic skull and cross bones in the broad light of day. It is but fair to say this of whisky: The man who wrestles with whisky will be downed, no matter bow strong he may be or how many tricks of the ring he may know, sooner or later his shoulders will go to the floor, and his soul to damnation and the referee will award the prize of another life lost to whisky. But whisky wreatles fair; it does not gouge; it does not strangle; it simply crushes its victim by superior weight. Heed the warning. and do not attempt to wrestle with whisky."-Scranton "Index" (Cath.)

"Are you a gardener?" asked the Woman "Ain't had much experience." "Can you plant these bushes?" "I'd hate to risk spoilin' 'em, ma'am."

"Then what can you do?" "Well, ma'am, if you'll give me one o your husband's cigars," he replied, meditatively, "I'll sit in the greenhouse an' smoke out the insects that's eatin' up the leaves o' them rose-bushes."-Harper's Magazine.

New York Betore the War.

It was by boat that I arrived from Mowat and his colleagues must have been Boston, on an August morning of 1860, which was probably of the same quality as an August morning of 1894. I used not to mind the weather much in those days! it was hot or it was cold, it was wet or it was dry, but it was not my affair; and I suppose I sweltered about the strange city, with no sense of anything very personal in the temperature, until nightfall. What I remember is being high up in a hotel long sines laid low. listening in the summer dark, after the long day was done, to the Niagara roar of the omnibuses whose tide then swept Broadway from curb to curb, for all the miles of its length. At that hour the other city noises were stilled, or lost in this vaster volume of sound, which seem ed to fill the whole night. It had a solemnity which the modern comer to New York will hardly imagine, for that tide of omlibuses has long since ebbed away, and has left the air to strident discords of the elevated trains, the earslitting bells of the horse-cars, and the irregular alarum of the grip-car gongs, which blend to no such harmonious thunder as rose from the procession of those ponderous and innumerable vans. There was a sort of inner quiet in the sound, and when I chose I slept off to it, and woke to it in the morning refreshed and strengthened to explore the literary situation in the metropolis.—Harper's Magazine.
