She tried the camera on a fly, And caught it as it flew, And of the busy buzzing bee She got a splendid view.

Dyspesia and Catarrh of the Stomach cured by B. B. B. after hope was nearly given up.

Gentlemen,—For over three months I was very ill from what I believe was a malignant type of dyspepsia. I at once consulted a physician who treated me for Dyspepsia without success. I then went to a specialist who diagnosed the case as Catarrh of the Stomach, his treatment also failed and I was getting worse every day. I could not rest at night and had to welk the floor to get any ease. I failed from 195 pounds down to 135 pounds and about gave up in despair when I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters as a remedy for dyspepsia. The first bottle made a change for the better, and I bought six more being delighted to find myself better. Under the use of B. B. B. I gained a pound a day. I took 18 bottles in all and am now nearly back to my old weight. I recommended dyspeptics to try the old reliable B, B, B, that always cures,

CHIVALRY IS NOT DEAD,—So many and varied are the points of interest to be seen at the Falls, that unless one is constantly watching one's watch, time is apt to fly more fleetly than one thinks. It did in the case of one of the excursionists of Monday last. So engrossed was she and her observing children in the beauties before them, that they missed the last car to Queenston, and were at Clifton last car to Queenston, and were at Clifton House station at the time they should been at Queenston. Upon enquirey the mother found that as the last car had left, the probability was she and her children would have to spend the night far, far from home. But with woman's determination, she told the railway officials that the aventagin boat had to be officials that the excursion boat had to be caught, and that she simply had to spend that night at home. Now, note the effect of this statement. You must understand that the regular motormen and conductors had finished their day's work and were comfortably taking their teas in the midst of their families. There wasn't a car on the track. What was to be done? A tall, fine-looking athletic bystander stepped forward and said, "I'll run a car down, if some of you fellows will lend a hand." The difficulty was solved. The car was soon on the track. The mother and her children stepped field.
