science

Science is "knowing how." The only secret about Scott's Emulsion is years of science. When made in large quantities and by improving methods, an emulsion must be more perfect than when made in the oldtime way with mortar and pestle a few ounces at a time. This is why Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil never separates, keeps weet for years, and why every spoonful is equal to every other spoonful. An even product throughout.

In other emulsions you are liable to get an uneven benefit—either an over or under dose. Get Scott's. Genuine has a salmon-colored wrapper.

Special to The Warder

On Wednesday last about 10 a.m., while a number of neighbors were doing statute labor on the middle line, between the 5th and 6th concessions, the men so employed were surprised to see a young man come running up with his arm in a sling, crying a bar, a bar, a bar in McArthur's swamp. At this juncture one of the party remarked to the young man that he had better sit down for a few moments until his equilibrium was fully recovered at the same time pointing to a large boulder in the fence corner, which after some hesitation he reluctantly did. After a short repose, he stated in language most easily understood, that without a doubt, a large brown bear had taken refuge in McArthur's swamp. After a brief consultation it was decided to despatch a messenger with all possible speed to town for Dougal Sinclair, better known as "Tricky Dougal." As quick as possible, the bold and undaunted Dougal and a confederate came dashing along at a furious rate, exclaiming to those he chanced to meet, "have you seen the bear." In less time than it takes to tell it, the foaming steed had them on the field of action. After a short exchange of opinions they both made a bold dash into the swamp declaring vengence on his beautip; for as all know that when Dougal undertakes to do a thing he is going to do it. It is true, as the Post says, that there were two shots fired, but instead of killing the bear it was a valuable pig, commenty known as a groundhog. There is nothing said about the second shot which hit a high grade Durham calf. On the second day the news had spread far and wide. The locality in which the farm is situated was fairly besieged with sportsmen from different parts of the country all armed to the teeth, some with the letest improved hammerless gues down to the flint lock. One hard, tiller of the soil came pushing through the crowd with an old flint lock with a bayonet attached to the dangerous end, exclaiming; "Begorth show me the bear, and I'll spike him to a tree," but bruin was not to be found. In 1882 the Government found that tea and coffee were taxed. As the Minister of Finance has pointed out, this was a taxation which no man could avoid who drank tea or coffee. R was a taxation upon articles which were not raised in this country, and consequently every cent of that taxation was paid directly by the people who consumed these articles. The same was true with releases to an article which goes into the manufacture of common articles used by the racture of common articles used by the people everywhere—the article of the There was a duty upon that as well. Every dollar of this amount has gone directly into the pockets of the great mass of the consumers in this country. In 1883 the Government struck off the duty upon bill stamps and the duty upon newspapers—upon bill stamps at all that went into commercial transactions from the highest to the lowest, and upon newspapers a tax which was styled a tax on information for the people. From 1898 to to date there have been saved to the people on bill stamps alone the sum of $3,267,388, on newspapers the sum of $3,267,388, or a total of $3,881,252 on these two items.

In 1887 an agitation was raised, which became successful, for taking the duty became successful, for taking the duty off authracite coal, which was supposed to, and which did, bear heavily upon the western provinces. The duty of 50 cents per ton was taken off, and from that time up to 1895, inclusive, the amount of 50,044,855 was remitted to the consumers of anthracites coal. Tuesday and Thursday Bargain Days and our "Special Hour Sale" on Saturdays a howling success.

WE'LL KEEP ON AT THE GOOD WORK.

Last two Saturdays we've had trouble. Too many people to wait on. The hours for Special Prices were up before all were served. We said the prices were for those hours, and we do as we advertise—so some of our very good friends feel sore at not being able to get all they wanted at the ridiculously low prices we were asking. However, for the benefit of those unfortunates who didn't get a chance at our bargains, we'll continue the sale two weeks longer.
