Two Ways of Looking at Things.

PILLS

"Is is a pity that more of us cannot cultiwate the twofold way of looking at things," writes Edward W. B.k in the June Ladies' Home Journal . There would be less triction in life if we did, and sweeter sympathy, kinder understanding, and broader and fuller living. The fact is that we never reach the dignity of true living unless we do learn this all-'mportant lesson. And that it may be cu tivated admits of no doubt. It is simply cu tivated admits of no doubt. It is simply a question of schooling curselves not to condemn generally what individually does not happen to be our taste. If, for example, we prefer brown as a color there is no reason on earth why we should condemn the taste of any one who prefered to wear green. What the vest majority of us need is to be a little more self-poised, more jadical, more willing to see good in the tastes of others, although they do not plesse our own particular fancies. If we all thought alike, read the same books, saw the same plays, were the same colors, cases of the pestilent results to which the habit unfortunately leads—that we should carry with us individually a deep and adequate sense of the mischief, and an earnest intention to do what in us lies, each man within his sphere, for the purpose of mitigating and removing it," saw the same plays, were the same colors, this wou'd be an exceedingly interesting world. "We cannot see all things in the same way, Joints and Limbs were Swollen Three Times Their Natural Size—The Suffer-er in Bed for a Year and a Half.

"We cannot see all things in the same way, but we can come near to justice and true respect by taking a twofold view of things while still retaining our strong individual views. Seeing a possible good or use for everything does not necessarily mean a weak individuality. The most uncomfortable papels in the world are those who assert their judgments in a hard, decisive and final manner, as if they were courts of last resorts On the other hand, the brightest and besuminds are those that have most respect for the opinions of others" From the Esho, Wiarton, Ont.
Mrs. Wm. Thew, who is well known in the town of Wiarton, was a sufferer from heart trouble and articular rhoumatiem for a period of fifteen years.
Lately her condition has so much improved that a reporter of the Esho called upon her to ascertain to what cause the change was due. Mrs. Thew while not change was due. Mrs. They while not courting publicity, consented to give a brief statement of her case in hope that some other sufferer might be benefited. She said:—"My joints were all swollen up to three times their natural size and for a year and a half I was unable to promptly checked by Da.

realize that this single chamber idea is not a thing of beauty and a joy forever. We are discovering that on statute books of this province is such class legislation as has just been reterred to, and other legislation equally objectionable. While an agitation is going on in some quar ers to abolish the Senate at Oltawa, more extraordinary things have happened than an agitation for a second chamber at Toronte.
