The second was held in Toronto in 1880, and was marked by the famous debate respecting college feder-ation. The third in Montreal in 1890, when the question of federation was re-afterned and the missionary matters somewhat re arranged. The fourth was hold in London to 1894, when a number of very radical changes were effected.

The present sessions are held in the widely known Metropolitan shurch in Toronic. One cannot fail but be impressed with the grandour of this building. Second nearly 80 years since under the supervision of Rev. Dr. Panchen, it stands on a most commanding site to the yery centre of the city, and is regarded as one of the attractions of the city. One of the interesting features of the internal arrangements of the church is in the minister's vestry, viz, a register of the names and addresses of all the men who have ever occupied the pulpit, giving at the same time the text need by these men in their sermons. It is interesting to look ever the list. Almost every brilliant name in the ranks of the Methodist ministry for the past 30 years is found there and one cannot but feel that the past has been richer than the present.
The registering of texts is another idea worthy of imitation. It would enable some congregations to discover where the presents based his discourse, something which many times the average hearer is unable to do.

The present Conference is composed of two hundred and eighty-six delegates, one half of whom are ministers and the other laymen. There are elected by the annual Conference, which met last June, on the back of one minister and one laymon for every twelve erdained ministere in the work. This shows the strength of the Methodist ministry in the Dominion to be about 1700, exclusive of young men on probation. These delegates come from every province of the Dominion from the "blue nose" of Nove Scotia to the dwellers on the sunny tioper of the Pacific. There are also members from Newfoundland, the land of fog, and from Japan, the "land of the rising sun." Many happy greetings were made as these toilers in the various fields who have not seen one another for years met and grasped hands. About one hundred and forty years ago Methodism was introduced into the far eastern section of this territory and a little over one hundred years since it was brought by such men as Danham and Losue to this province. As one stands and looks to this church and this Conference he must be impressed with the ference he must be impressed with the fact that Methodism is one of the wonders of the nineteenth contary.

c'clock yesterday Dr. Carman, the presiding efficer, opened the conference.

The gavel used by the veloran officer was presented to the conference four years since and is unade of some wood taken

Sarely no man who devotes his life to the prayerful study of truth ought not to be frowned down it he reaches conclusions somewhat different from some others. The right of private interpretation of the Word is one of the principles of the Reformation, yet one would fain believe that a man in the Methodiet ministry must interpret truth as the "fathers" did or else there is no place for him in the church or school. "Lot us have the truth," oried a promiaent minister of the church though the theological beavens fall, but the tenor of the address yesterday on that one point was the final conclusion that the inter-

Hon. Gen. Neal Dow, of Portland, Maine, was examined by the Royal Commission on the Liquor Traffic at Montreal. Special interest attaches to his testimony, as to his efforts was largely due to the enactment of the Maine Law in the first place. The following extract is taken from the statement.

Notwithstanding the intenes heat, a very large number of the delegates answered to their names when at ten o'clock yesterday Dr. Carman, the pre-traffic is greatly reduced. The savings of the people from that traffic are such that the State has become very flourishing.

I know all about our property in the olden times. Our industries, aside from fishing and lumbering, were on a very small scale, and our people had not sufficient capital to earry on the trade. I know all about that personally. Our industries have sizes then very greatly multiplied and extended, and we have abandant capital to carry on all cur bust ness, and there is besides a large amount of surplus capital which socks investment onisite of the State. A great deal of Maine capital is all over the country for enactment of the law, and there were only four persons there, three of whom were rumsellers who were there for viola-tion of the law. All this was during the first year of the enforcement of the law, twensieth as much as it was before the law was passed. It is quite within the mark to make that statement. Portland is the largest city in the State, and is is within the truth to say that the quantity of liquor sold there now is not one hundreth of what it was before. We had seven distilleries and two breweries, and we had many cargoes every year from the West Indies, which the people brought over for their own use. Now whatever liquor is sold there, is sold on a very small scale, and on the sly.

$1,000,000 would pay for all the liquor amuggled into Maine and sold in violation amuggled into Malne and sold in violation of the law. So the raving to the people of Malne has been very great, and has been the means of making the State prosperous, as it was not in the olden days. We expect to achieve still greater encess in the future. The liquor sold now is the result of certain deficiencies in the law and we have hear twing to

Eggs should be gathered from the nests at least once a day. An egg may deteriorate for food purposes in one or two ways: It may change unfavorably for food purposes by the beginning of the process of batching; and it may decay through fermentation started at the pores of the shell. Any moisture on the shell hastens the beginning of decay in that way. An egg may look well when examined by candle light in the usual way, and still be alightly tale inside. Some egg merchants detect whether they are quite fresh-fisvored by breaking some, emplying the contents out and smalling the incide of the shalle.
