The Saving of My Friend Roger

Roger and I were not the closest friends and treest confidants. So, in later years, it seemed but natural a he should at once tell me when Lillian Astervelt promised to be his wife. I remember This was done, but the wound inflicted would not heal up, but became a running sore. The little fellow soon was reduced to almost a skeleton. This continued through the winter months, and we thought he would never get off his becagein. In April two of the best physicians of Owen Sound operated on the leg for disease of the bone, recorting to scraping the bone. In spite of this treatment the wound continued to run, and we were in despair. In August a friend residing in Manitou, Manitoba, advised no try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We commenced to use them at once, and in how glad I was, because I saw how happy the knowledge made the boy, although this gay, laughing gtrl was not just the one I might have chosen for my intellectual, kingly friend. For his sake I loved her from the first. La er. whom learned to know her better, and when her character had been deepened and enobled through sorrow's chastening touce, I loved her for her own d-ar sake. One bright June day, Lillian, with her hand in her husband's, went home. And Roger, in his heart broken agony of re more ful grief, saw naught, knew naught, save that the grim and mighty visitant had claimed his heart's idol, and full well he realized why.

Were this not a true story, I would not now need to tell you the saddest part of a most sad tale. During Lilitan's illness her physician had ordered brandy as a stimulant when she was overcome with Sterling Headache Powders. No depression summertime, autumn or winter, Scuth American Nervice is a power in restoring wasted nerve force; in toning up the digestive organs; disvelling the impurities from the blood which are accountable for so much disease and suffering. H. B. Darrock, of Mount Forcet, Ont., says he was all run down weak, languid, had no appetite, nerves shattered; he took South American Nervine, and to use his own words: "I am O. K. again; my appetite is hig and hearty. I think it the an excessive weakness to which she was subject. Lillian had bravely protested, but her physician was inexorable. Roger, too, had gently insisted, and Lillian, too physically weak to battle, had at last succumbed. Roger's hand had repeated ly prepared the mixture for her. We never knew just how it happened, whether Roger had allowed himself to taste it then, or whether the maddening fumes had tantalized and followed him, but dear Lillian's frail casket had scarcely been laid under cometery sod before Roger was transformed into a veritable demon through drink. For one whole week he was under its satanic influence entered the house and soon re-appeared back and nothing but a thin shirt over His relatives entreated me to go and expostulate with blm; but the words I would have said frozs on my lips, for Roger, my friend Roger, met me with a

Nature wants to keep going but she can't. He drinks whickey, and that clogs the valves; he drinks beer, and that clogs the wheels; he pours down lemonade, ginger ale, buttermilk, icewater, tea, coffee, and what not, and then wenders why the fires nader his believe won't burn. If you should take an ox and put him through a like performance, he'd be dead in a year. The simplest and plainest laws of health are outraged every hour of the day by the average man. Did Adam smoke? Did Eve wear corsets? Did Solomon chew tobseec? Did Ruth chew gum? Did the children of Israel make for a beer saloon after crossing the Red sea? Did Rebecca cat gum-drops and ice cream, and call for soda water? Adam was the first man, and was made perfect from head to heef. Suppose he had elept in a bedroom 6 z 8, with the window down, the door shut, and two dogs under the hed? Suppose Eve had laced herself up in a corset, put on tight shoes, sat up all hours of the night, eaten her fitl of trach and sizzled her hair? When you come to look into the way man misbehaves himself you can only wonder how he ever lived to get there. that she had seen so many ranges at the exhibition that she did not know, and she exhibition that she did not know, and she was not a cook anyway. So, at least, deslares one Liberal paper. Another says that she was surprised when she did not find trolly cars and asphalt parements at Dawson.
