The way feelght team which paves library of noon was the sufferer, It seems that the train was shunting some care, and while intending to cun a car up a siding the train, unknown to the engineer, was split in two. The engineer shortly afterwards put on the brakes and immediately the rear portion of the train crashed into the front part. No damage would have resulted had there not been an old ear in the rear partion which broke up and the debits threw several other care off the track and more or less damaged then Fortunately no one was injured. The wrecker came down from Lindsay and quickly cleared the main track so that all

The third anniversary of the opening of St. Andrew's church took place on Sunday and Monday, Oct. 15th and 16th, and was a most successful function. On Sunday two most impressive and eloquent sermons were preached by Rev. J. R. Fraser, B.A., of Uxbridge, who wan for himself golden opinions on this his first yielt to Fencion Falts. On the following a few among was served by the visit to Fenelon Falis. On the following evening a fewl supper was served by the ladies of the congregation, followed by a social entertainment, at which addresses were delivered by Rev. Wm. Farncomb, Rev. R. H. Leiteh, Rev. M. McKinnon, Rev. R. H. Leiteh, Rev. M. McKinnon, Rev. J. Fraser of Fenelon Falis, J. H. Carnegie, M.F.P., and Rev. J. R. Fraser of Uxbridge. The programme was opened by prayer by Rev R. H. Leiteh, followed by a most beautiful little address on "things which cannot go on" by Rev. W. Farncomb, who is a great favorite amongst our Presbyterians. Each of the other Rev. gentlemen spoke in short elever speeches, which were particularly well received, and we must not forget our local member, Mr. J. H. THE SCIENCE OF DRESS.

One should always put on fresh apparel for dinner or the theatre or any social gathering. If the business suit is worn to dinner, opera or party, one's business should be laid aside and forgotten in order that business should be better attended to the next day. One should always be tastefully and neatly dressed, as much so in the privacy of one's own home as in public, for she who feels herself tastefully attired will carry on her face the impress and result of such dressing. So the expression of the face improves through persistent, tasteful dressing, the whole nedy moulds itself according to the moods or mental state of the spirit. If slovenly habit of attire predomspirit. If slovenly habit of attire predominates, the same expression in some form will mould itself upon the face, because the face will shape its expression in accordance with the prevailing mood of man's life is entirely without aim or purpose, he will wear anything which comes handy-parts of different suits thrown on without regard to becomingness, and even if he buys new clothing he will allow the dealer to fit him out in patchwork. If he is verging on what is called the down grade of life, and feels its joyousness is past, he will probably wear black-possibly rusty black-the color so much affected by men and women who have turned their faces towards the despondent and soured views of life, to whom galety and love of color are

The lustreless black is the color of stagnation and decay, scientists declare; sundering of all ties between us and the departed put on black as the badge of mourning and hopelessness, while the Chinese, who believe death to be only the loss of a body to a spirit, wear white, indicative of a temporary sadness, feeling that such friends, though not seen with wear a rusty hat if looked at from the right wtandpoint, for carcless dressing means lack of love for the necessary effort in choosing the color and fashion of one's dress. A seedy coat, a soiled gown, tell no falsehood about the mental condition

A well-known clothier said: "The science of dress is well understood by each of my salesmen, and he knows the moment he glances at a customer just what he can soil him. There is a millionaire who comes in and orders most ex-pensive garments, then grumbles because pensive garments, then grundlessed well he never has the appearance of being well dressed, while the clerk who waits upon the like a prince in a $15 guit. paradise of stage coaches I was traveling for a tobacco house a long journey, fully fifty miles. In the coach opposite me sat a mighty pretty girl, and a shaggy man, with a sombrero and a small arsonal of pistols in full sight. We had journeyed on for about an hour, and not a word had been exchanged or a look between my fellow travelers. The girl was everlastingly protty, and, finally, catching her eye, I was tempted to wink slightly as a sort of preliminary toward breaking the ice and having some pleasant conversation. Instantly, to my horror, she turned to the human arsenal and whispered in his ear. 'Did I understand you, stranger, to wink at this young lady?' Only presence of mind, as there couldn't be absence of body, saved me. I replied at once. 'Yes, sir, but let me explain. I have a nervous disease of the eyelids. If you had noticed me before you would have noticed that I winked in voluntarily very frequently. Honestly, I couldn't help it. 'Your explanation is extraordinary, stranger, but I accept it try to please you. extraordinary, stranger, but I accept it for the present,' he answered gruffly, and from that time I think he never took his eyes off me. So, to keep up my part, every moment or two I had to wink one eye or the other, sometimes both. Hour after hour, gentlemen, as I live by champagne, my ocular exercise continued. I believe I am the only man living who ever winked to save his life. and I wunk and wank for at least forty miles, till we reached our destination. Mew was that for endurances.

Showing that the phrase wearing the mantle of another has more truth in it than one would suppose for the garment once worn by another has absorbed a certain part of that person's thought or self, and such thought can be reabsorbed by the person to whom it is given. Our clothes can be rested as our bodies are. If a gar mont is hung out in the sunshine and wind for a time, when again brought into use it has a feeling of rest about 18. One should always dress with con-scious care and precision, as one is then enabled to go about daily duties with no further anxiety as to appearance.
