OLD STUDENTS RE-UNION.

An Immense Success.

The Lindsay Grammar school was founded away back in 1857 under the headmastership of Mr. W Daunt. Mr. Daunt was followed in 1860 by Mr. Robt. Hudspeth, in 1866 by the Rev. A. Murray, and in 1867 by Mr. H. Reazin, under whose regime the school stepped up in the ranks of academic institution and became a High School. After Mr. Reazin's promotion to Inspector in 1870, Mr. A. M. Lafferty, M.A., took hold. He retized in 1872 and was followed by Mr. R. L. Dobson, B.A. Since then the Fresh Mined Coal, coming | following gentlemen have been head masters: W. E. Miss Taylor was the hard worked secretary of the association, Miss Lumsden had charge of the decorations, a mammoth task, Mrs. McNellie, locked after the gathering and arrangements for the refreshments, and Miss Flavelle gathered the names and tuted groups they talked of old associations and early school days, when they climbed along the tall rafters of the old Grammer school, and felt so proud when they wrote their names higher up than their fellows or of the hundred and one other episodes that keep school memories so verdant and pleasant.

A word about the superb decorations. They certainly have never been excelled by any school in the province and they possessed that desirable quality of being unique. The decorations in the lower hall were of a ganeral character with bunting, wreaths, flags and mottoes. The refreshment room leading off from the hall way was brightened by the school colors and evergreens. The reading room was turned into a delightful reception room which was fitted up by the school graduates in attendance at Queen's University. The room was a blaze of Queen's colors, pictures of college celebrites, the school yells and mottoes. Together with the finely upholstered couches and chairs, it made a very coay sitting room indeed. Going up the stairways one was at once struck with the character of the decorations. A long line of rifles with fixed bayonets at intervals of every three steps led up both stairways to the Assembly Hall, their warlike appearance given a peaceful look, being imprisoned by long lengths of gay ribbons. Each section of the staire was allotted to the different games of the town. The hockey club, curling, lawn tennis, cricket, hunting, camping and other clubs all tried to eclipse each other with the most pleasing and artistic results. The second flat was a fairy land of beauty. The specious corridor fell to the dainty hands of the Trinity fell to the dainty hands fairy land of beauty. The specious corridor fell to the dainty hands of the Trinity medical students of Toronto, who did themselves and their college proud. Hundreds of yards of the red and black were draped on the walls and otherwise the place was transformed. At the end of the hall, the aesthetic students of Victoria who took possession of the form there were not among the least of those who added to the beauty. Their room was a favorite one throughout the evening. Then too "Old McGill" was as usual among the foregreet and it is no discredit among the foremost and it is no discredit to the others to say that the drapings in their room were the most artistically executed in the building. Next to McGill room was the science room which was lightly decorated and thrown open to the many old students who were evidently much interested in this splendid and desirable innovation into the school since their day. The largest room on the flat was turned into a curio room, where were gathered most of the curios in town, some an especially interesting room and thither congregated during the evening all the antiquarians. Toronto University and affliated colleges joined in decorating this room and the predominant blue and white with the lighter touches of the School of Science and other college colors added business, profession and in the trades.

With a view to establishing some affinity between the school's graduates. an Alumni Association was organized in 1890 to unite all the pupils of the school, was subordinated and the "Old gold, navy" blue and orimson," the L.C.I. colors, looked triumphantly from their lofty eminence. Great festoons of the colors an active committee under Mr. I. E hung from all pillars and corners of the Weldon, took the matter in hand, made exhaustive preparations, and as the large centre. The wainscoting was festooned efficiently given by the children of the large e of last week betokened, scored a great of evergreen wreathing wound their way success. as its description. Those who did not see the building should imagine the most beautiful pictures and then they would have some conception of its appearance. Starting about 8 30 a short programme was given in the Assembly Hall of the following numbers :-- Plano duett, Miss speech, Mr. 1. E. Weldon, who was most O'Leary and Miss Amice Flavelle; solo, "The Dear Home Song," Miss Core Walters; solo, "The King of Main," Mr. W. S Irvine; plano solo, selected, Miss reading, selected, Miss Sarah McDonnell: song, "Father O Flynn, Mr. J. P. Owens and two numbers by the Uxbridge orchestra, "The Caliph of Bagdad" and "Lutspiel." Between each number the graduates and under graduates of the gave their school yells and never before did townspeople so well realize how much noise the average college man can make and how much more the undergraduate can produce. "Varsity," S.P.S; the Dentals, Victoria, Trinity medicals, and Old McGill ories were all given, and last but not least the terrible and awe inspiring alogan of Queen's. Rousing cheers were given for the president and the president elect, Dr. Smale, and when the latter called three cheers and a tiger for thing terrific and must have convinced that gentleman in some small degree of his great popularity as the L. After the concert followed a pro concert, for which the Uxbridge orchestre in the Assembly hall, and the Lindsay Academy of Music orchestra in the second hall supplied music. The former won golden opinions on this their first, but we hope not last appearance here; while the latter also did well. Refreshments were given out shortly after 10.30 and by 12.30 after the last story had been told, after the last handshake and the last good-bye had been spoken, the large assembly dis-persed, the music died away, the lights went out and once more the Collegiate stood out in the darkness, dignified as ever after its short space of riotous hilarity when for the first time in its blatery it held open house to its students and graduates of the struggling days of 1857 down to the prosperous and well-to-do present. The re-union has been a splendid thing for the school and for the town. The school has had many triumphs in the past, but this last has cellpsed the others. The Liudsay Collegiate Institute stands to-day the first cellegiate in the Dominion. For proof look at has work has contained.

McNellie, locked after the gathering and arrangements for the refreshments, and Miss Flavelle gathered the names and addresses of the some 3,000 old students of the school. There were many others who spent time and went to much trouble to make the affair such a success. No account would be complete, however, without a word of thanks to those who acted as heads of the sub-committees in the decorations. #### PENELON FALLS.

On Wednesday, Dec. 21st, the residence of Mr. B. Fisk in Verulam was the scene of one Mr. B. Fisk in Verulam was the scene of one of those happy social events which have become so fashiomable here lately. The large gathering was to witness the marriage of Mr. Fisk's beautiful daughter, Lillie, to Mr. J. Lee, of Fenelon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. H. Leitch of Fenelon Falls and was witnessed by a large number of friends. The bride, gowned in brown velvet and white satin, presented a very charming picture, and was attended by Miss L. Lee, sister of the bridegroom, attired in brown cashmere, Mr. groom. The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable presents and the happy couple bear the good wishes of a very large circle of friends for their future prosperity and happiness.

CHRISTMAS passed quietly here. The decorations of the stores were particularly inviting, Mesers W. Burgoyne, J. L. Arnold, W. L. Robson, A. Northey and many others showing very handsome windows, but the window of Mr. W. H. Robson's drug store was the one which attracted most attention. Handsomly dressed with helly and beautifully illuminated, it reflected great credit on the taste of its dresser. The Methodist congregation held their annual tea and social entertainment in the evening which affair was a splendid encoses, the ladies clearing over one hundred dollars towards the church debt.

Our public schools opened on Tuesday with a fair attendance. Owing to the resignation of Miss Culion Miss M. Ingram will act as teacher in one of the departments for the a number of very beautiful mementoes on her leaving the staff, showing the love and respect with which her pupils regarded her.

THE Rev. M. McKinnon, B.A. late of Fenelon Falls, was inducted to the pastorate after all he does not take the same way of rejoicing as some people do when they are on the winning side.

DISAPPOINTMENT.—We saw an "ad" in one of your local papers some weeks ago to the effect that there was to be a monster entertainment on the last night of school, but after searching in all the halls and seven dollars cleared. The following we copy from the Fergus "News Record" of Dec. 22. from the Fergus "News Record" of Dec. 22:
"On Sunday morning add evening Rev. Mr.
McKinnon preached to large congregations, in the morning taking his text from Isa. LXII, 6 and 7. The minister, like the watchman, was always to be on duty, to be wide awake to ail that took place around him, to warn when church was responsible before God for the care of the soule in the congregation. His ambition was to make it an ideal church, but it would be impossible to do so without the so operation

New Year's Day was as lively here as Christmas was quiet. The election contest was an exceedingly keen and exciting one and at the close of the polls the returns stood as follows:
