THE SOCIAL EFFECT OF BICYCLING IS TO INCREASE PLEASURES.

Customs - What a Record Breaker Says of the Route From San Francisco to New York-Interesting Notes.

The skilled cyclist who has developed the proper muscle, and has got rid of the sense of fatigue which haunts raw, or injured by colds and the beginner, just as it haunts and daunts the man who is learning to swim, can keep on his bicycle all day, and if his frame is not shaken by a fall, or his temper tried by the pricking of these infernal tires, he will return in the evening with his nerves in perfect order and his limbs as lit-tle tired as if he had been strolling for the same time up and down the terrace or a lawn. This means that he can choose friends or do business within half a county, instead of with-in two villages, and that his powers of locomotion at will are multiplied at least fivefold, or in the case of the really skilled and healthy, eight or tenfold. That is a new freedom, a great multiplication of power for men, and especially for women, who, we notice, enjoy it much more than men do, and contrive somehow to avoid the look of care which is the special mark of the bicyclist; and we shall be carlous to note, when time has been given for the change to operate fully, what its precise effects are. They will not all be good. They will probably increase the general happiness, for let the cynics say what they like, friendship is a great sweetener of life, and pleasant conversation one of the few really enjoyable occupations, but they will impair neighborliness, which rests in a degree we none of us like to formulate upon the sense that we must not quarrel with, or avoid, or even sharply criticise, those among whom it is our lot to live. The constant habit of the bicycle dissipates the mind just as a constant immersion in society does, and for the same reason-it renders reflection less frequent and less enjoyable. Why think when you can reach a pleasant circle five miles off in half an hour, and with no perceptible fatigue! Let' those who doubt that this effect will be produced in the country note the ourlous increase the cycle is causing in the habit of meeting at lunch, and indeed in the substitution of lunch for dinner. You cannot bicycle back on a dark night with your wife or sister in full dress; but you can lunch at 2 o'clock and cycle back in the cool of the evening with great enjoyment and no danger.

Cycling, in fact, will increase the scattering and movability of country society, to the increase of its pleasures and the loss of much of its steadfastness and quiet. The ancient "rootedness" of the country-sides will be greatly diminished, and we are old-

He Broke the Record. John H. Watts, the Fall River, Mass., wheelman who lowered the record for a run from San Francisco to New York nearly eight days, gives the following account of the trip:

"I have had a pretty hard trip, but am in good health and have gained two pounds since the start; I ate five or six meals per day, and have gotten away with eighteen and a half dozen eggs on the trip in addition to other food. Egg lemonade was an excellent drink, but I have eaten everything that I wanted.

"I was treated well throughout the entire route by bicyclists. I gained seven days between Ogden and New York: I collected 182 signatures during the journey, each of which is affixed to a blank, giving the name of the town, date, time of day ,cyclometer register, time of departure, condition of road from last point, condition of weather and some landmark familiar to the inhabitants, and the signatures embrace station agents, telegraph operators, express agents, chiefs of police, tradesmen, lawyers, doctors and

"I rode from Chicago to New York in nine days and twenty-two hours, and crossed the desert in ten days and eighteen hours.

"The relay race," he said, "is the finest road possible between the two cities and the riders will have little difficulty in traveling at a good rate of speed. The road across the desert is remarkably good on the ranroad track, and the only places that will be at all difficult are the tunnels, which are about a foot deep with mud at all

A Hint to Road Racers. Here is an incident with a moral-An hour or so after the great Bordeaux-Paris road race, in which nearly 400 miles were covered in 21 hours, Gaston Rivierre, one of the winners was in his street clothes frolicking about town. Most of the other contestants were in bed-physical wrecks -including Arthur Linton, the winner. "Tout Paris" wondered ,and a cycling writer with a thirst for knowledge, asked Rivierre "how he did it." The rider said that he averted fatigue, both bodily and mental, by observing the scenery and people as he passed along the route. Rivierre smashed a baker's dozen of records, but he didn't have to keep his nose glued to his front wheel to do it.

Cost of a Waronean Bicycle Tour. A New York cyclist, who toured in Europe last summer, says : Three dollars a day should be sufficient to cover all continge cies. At one of the principal hotels in Rouen I paid only $2.20 a day, vin., breakfast, 3 cents; lunch, or whatever name should apply to their midder mear, 50 cents; dinner, 70 cents; room, 60 cents; service, 10 cents. The slight amount required to reach the $2 standard would more than suffice to purchase a better grade of wine than is served gratis at the dinner, and such small fees as are cus-

How Green Cyclists Are Known.
Riders possessing a due regard for the rights and privileges of pedestrians never clang their bells unnecessarily. It is sufficient for the careful, observing cyclist to give timely warning only, not to ring his alarm after the occasion has passed, or in a hysterical manner when it is too late. The wheeling critics of the larger cities can best comprehend this statement. Green cyclists run down pedestrians almost daily, and in nine cases out of ten it develops that the rider rang too late, forgot to do it, or didit when too far away for his victim to note the warning. Common sense will dictate you to got your wheel m, and let it fill to water water, then get on and make the best you can fer home—the water will last almost an hour; if

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

The Passing AWay of Its Venerable and Respected Authoress. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe died on

Mrs. Harriet Elizabeth Beecher Stowe was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 14, 1812. During several years she was a teacher in the school of her sister at Hartford, Conn. In 1832 she went with her family to Cincinnati, and in 1836 was married to Prof. Calvin E. Stowe of Lane Seminary. In 1849 she published "Mayflower, or Sketches of the Descendants of Pilgrims," several times republished, with additions. In June, 1851, she commenced in the National Era, an anti-slavery newspaper, published in Washington, a serial story, which was continued till the following April. In 1852 this was issued in two volumes, under the title of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and achieved an unparalleled success. In four years there had been printed in the United States 313,000 copies, and probably still more in Great Britain. As early as 1862 it had been translated in French (two or three versions), German (13 or 14), Dutch (two), Danish, Swedish, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, Welsh (two). Russian (two), Polish, Hungarian (three), Wendish, Wallachian (two), Armenian, Arabic and Romaic; and it is said that there are also translations into the Chinese and Japanese. The truthfulness of the representations in "Uncle Tom" having been questioned, Mrs. Stowe, in 1853, published a "Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin," presenting the original facts upon which the story fashioned enough to believe that in was founded, together with corroborathat quality was much not only of tive statements verifying the truth of statements verifying the truth of work." In 1853, accompanied by her visited Europe and gave the results of their observations in "Sunny Memories of Foreign Lands" (1854). Since that time Mrs. Stowe has written much, mainly in periodicals, the papers being subsequently collected into volumes. Among these volumes are: "Dred, a Tale of the Great Dismal Swamp" (1856; republished in 1866 under the title of "Nina Gordon"); "The Minister's Wooing" (1859); "The Pearl of Orr's Island" (1862); "Agnes of Sorento" (1863); "Old Town Folks" (1869); "My Wife and I" (1872), and several others. In 1868 the Countess Guiccioli put forth her "Recollections of Lord Byron." Mrs. Stowe, thereupon, in September, 1869, published in the Atlantic

It is the voice of the people recognizing the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood. Best pebbles in Steel frames Mr. T. G. Ludlow, 334 Colborne Street, Brantford, Ont., says: During seven years prior to 1886, my wife was sick all the time with violent headaches. Her head was so hot that it felt like burning up. She was weak, run down, and so feeble that she could hardly do anything, and so nervous that the least noise startled her. Night or day she could not rest and life was a misery to her. I tried all kinds of medicines and treatment for her but she steadily grew worse until I bought six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters from C. Stork & Son, of Brampton, Ont., for which I paid $5.00, and it was the best investment I ever made in my life. Mrs. Ludlow took four out of the six bottlesthere was no need of the other two, for those four bottles made her a strong, healthy woman, and removed every ailnent from which she had suffered, and she enjoyed the most vigorous health. That five dollars saved me lots of money
