What a saving of time, labor and trouble to be able under the one roof to supply the ordinary needs of every household. It may seem an innovation to establish and develop our business upon the firm foundation of always consulting the interests of our patrons, selecting for them the best goods, and selling them at the lowest possible prices. All our prices are based upon strictly cash payments. We make no allowance for bad debts; but for the accommodation of responsible parties, to whom it is a convenience to pay at one time the entire bill of a month, we are willing to open monthly accounts, provided satisfactory reference is furnished, and the bills are promptly paid after the receipt of the regular monthly statement. We simply wish to make it clear that at the close prices we sell we cannot afford to continue the accounts of any but prompt payers. What a satisfaction in dealing where this system is-Trustworthy goods only, at uniformly low prices. Any article not satisfactory may be returned for cheerful feimbursement.

Hark, 'tis the bugle calling-Our volunteers to arms: Soon they don their red coats; True Patriotism warms. And with a step as steady As the flow of gentle rill, Each man his rifle shoulders

And marches off to drill. Though weaklings dare to murmur And hurl their taunting jeers At Canada's militia,

Her gallant volunteers; Yet we will not relinquish The old time honored stay That bore the nation's honor Through many a bloody fray.

Though Might is at a discount, Still Worth and Valor live. Then to our cherished ensign Three cheers in tribute give;

'Tis true, by arbitration The noise of war is stilled, Yet the seedlings of rebellion And oppression must be killed.

No walls of ancient structure Do our foemen ever meet, But a host of gallant hearts That never knew defeat; And while Peace with folded pinion

Bids fair for coming years; Still for by gone deeds we'll bless them-Our gallant volunteers. E. E. SHARPE.

The news from Prince Edward Island. whither the minister of public works went several weeks ago in the hope of recuper-ating his health, is that he is still avoiding all worry and that even the newspapers are forbidden him. The minister's illness is of such long duration that he has done no work in his department for months, and so severe that he has been subject at pe-riods to entire loss of memory. His so severe that he has been subject at periods to entire loss of memory. His friends, however, are inclined to makelight of this circumstance, pointing out that such men as Lord Roseberry and Lord Lansdowne have suffered in a similar way. When this journal stated some time ago that Mr. Harty's illness would eventually result in his retirement from the government other papers pooh-poohed the idea, but the World now reiterates the assertion. The minister is an able executive officer, and his charming personal qualities endear him to many, but it's safe to say that before very long he will on the advice of his physicians throw off the cares advice of his physicians throw off the cares of state and seek to build up his constitut-ion again. The World is told that there was a curious circumstance in connection with the decease of the late Hon. W. D. Balfour. The story is that the provincial secretary had only been a few days in office, when by a certain act he displeased the premier, and two or three other colleagues and was asked to retire. The blow so shocked him that the fatal attack of hemorrage was brought on, and, having been a Minister just one month, he departed this life.
