If careful examination were made the typhoid can in many cases be traced to impure drinking water. Many people are very careless of the supply of water for their family and animals. Effect must follow cause; a man cannot drink water from a foul well and hope to forever escape immunity from disease. He cannot compel his cow to drink from a polluted stream and expect her to remain in good condition and give a satisfactory supply of milk.

from town to town in an endeavor to get work and to try to sell a few calendars, picture cards and such like. On Tuesday of this week an intelligent appearing (?) individual who announced himself as a representative of the Lindsay Post, might be seen dodging in and out of some of our business places begging work for that institution. Surely the home patronage of the Post must be very limited when they find it necessary to hawk about their neighboring towns for subsistence.

REMOVAL - Many Lindsayites on Sunday thought that McLaughlin & McDiarmid, barristers, had removed to the second storey of THE WARDER office, the following sign being found at our door on Monday morning:
"McLaughlin & McDiarmid, Barristers, Upstairs." We attributed the sign as a desire on the part of that enterprising firm to become connected with so prominent an institution as THE VICTORIA WARDER, but on second thought placed it down as a Hallowe'en trick.

THE LINDSAY PUBLIC LIBRARY have engaged Mr Frank Yeigh of Toronto, to give on Friday, Nov. 13th, in the Academy of Music his popular lecture on "Our Empire. or England's girdle of the globe," Mr Yeigh has everywhere been very successful with this lecture, and the managers of the public ecture, and the managers of the public library feel confident that the Lindsay public will give Mr. Yeigh a splendid house. Prices 25 cts for reserved seats; 15 cts general admission. Plan of hall at Porter's, Saturday, Nov. 7th, at 9 a m. The Mail and Empire of a recent date had the following to say concerning Mr Yeigh's lecture ;—"Association hall was crowded to the doors last evening by a representative and appreciative audience, on the occasion of an illustrated lecture by Mr subscribers to THE WARDER who were in Frank Yeigh, who has already become somewhat widely known for his vivid descriptions of scenes and incidents of foreign travel. The "Pictured travel talk" of last evening had for its subject "Our Empire, or England's girdle of the globe," and was illustrated by a large number of really magnificent stereoptican views, embracing portraits of places and of realistic characters in every quarter of the world. Its intention was to convey to the audience a graphic idea of the extent and resources of the British empire of the present day, of the varieties of races included among its subjects, of the greatness of its power, and the wide range of its civilizing influence. The treatment of the subject necessitated a word trip around the world, accompanied by a succession of views in aptillustration of the ideas | appreciated. presented by the speaker. Mr Yeigh has an exceedingly clear delivery, and an accurate mastery of his facts, which are set forth in a manner at once comprehensive and interesting. He succeeded last evening in retaining throughout his address the unflagging interest of his hearers, and in affording them an evening of really exceptional enjoyment."

A printing office is considered by many persons to be a rather tough place and a newspaper worker likely to be a bad man, "Statistics, however, do not bear out that idea," said a police captain to a Philadelphia Bulletin reporter. "In looking over a book containing the records of prisoners I find that in the state penitentiary of Texas, out of 3,890 convicts there is not a single newspaper man or printer. There were however, ministers, doctors, bankers, barbers, photographers, barkeepers. cooks and members of all other professions and callings." In Kingston penitentiary there is not one printer.
