The Canadian Post of Lindsay rendered itself liable for punishment by inclosing in its weekly newspaper bag for Minden and other grit offices campaign literature, matter not addressed to any subscriber and not prepaid as required by law. The bag is not opened from leaving the printing office until it reaches the office to which it is Therefore in this Minden office bag question no serious blame can attach to Lindsay postmaster for not detecting that the literture was not prepald. But the Minden office being the receiving one could not fail to detect it on emptying the bag. Dr Curry's duty was clear. The unpaid matter should have been sent to the "dead letter" office, and the Canadian Post of Lindsay should have been proceeded against by law and

What Dr. Curry did was this: He took the unpaid literature out of the post office door and distributed it freely over his store counter On his trial he admitted Chili. Of course Chili could not be deknowing it should have been prepaid; that he should have sent it to the "dead letter" office; that he should have reported the Canadian Post publisher for violating the law. But instead of doing any of these he continued week after week to receive the literature till, as he himself said, it got piled up all around. In answer to the question why he had not given the literature out through the post office wicket he said: "I knew that a half cent stamp should be en each sheet if I gave it out of the wicket, so I took it out of the office door and gave it to the people over the counter." The doctor thought it made a difference whether it were delivered through the post office wicket or through the post office door. Innosent man! The public were losing the half cent a sheet just the same.

These are the causes of dismissal in the two cases referred to. I was very much annoyed that the department, being in full possession of the facts, should hesitate to act, and as usual frankly expressed my-self so on more than one occasion. The correspondence is all available, and so is the evidence

My views on the bouncing of government servants are these:—I do not endorse some tory political leaders and some tory papers in holding up their hands in holy horror because the grits have dismissed some "offensive partisans," presumably after trial, "accused and accuser standing face to face." Such offensive partisans should be dismissed from office when proven guilty, but not till then, But neither have I the slightest sympathy with that vast hungry horde, the grit office seekers and political heelers, in seeking to dismiss honest, unoffending officers from their places simply because they voted as becomes true Canadians on election day.

the coming provincial election, and should | breakfast, and this of course rendered my numerous grit officials conduct themselves in that campaign as they did on former occasions, that I shall use my utmost endeavors to bounce them, and that right promptly, too; but only after a fair trial in which accuser and accused shall stand face to face. But on any and every occasion I shall endorse any government for dismissing any postmaster for tampering with the letters or knowingly or unknowingly defrauding the revenue. SAM HUGHES. Bayard at Windsor To-day.

Chicago Record Thanksgiving Day. To-day ambassador Bayard, guest by oyal "command" at Windsor castle, will put his feet beneath the royal mahogany and exchange felicitations suitable to the day and the occasion with her gracious majesty, Queen Victoria.

The honor thus done America in the person of her ambassador has been well deserved by Mr. Bayard, whom the Spectator calls "the friendliest of all ambassadors," and will be duly appreciated in this country, where among other causes for thanksgiving not the least are the restored cordial relations and feelings between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. That Mr. Bayard has been influential in England in bringing about this result it is simple justice to admit. While many in this country, during the exciting days that followed Mr. Cleveland's famous message of nearly a year ago, were inclined to criticise Mr. Bayard's attitude toward England as too friendly under the circumstances, the favorable result of the Venezuelan controversy has realized Mr. Bayard's celebrated figure about "joining hands across the sea." The one memor able result of that controversy has been to establish arbitration as the method of settling disputes between the two countries of kindred origin and institutions, and in bringing about this result Mr.
Bayard has played an important part. A still more important part, however, was played by England's gracious queen, whose counsel has ever made for peace and good will between England and America, and in expressing to her majesty to-day his esteem and good wishes Mr. Bayard will speak for America as well as

A Teacher's Story.

The Health of Those in the Profession frequently Undermined.

Alberton High School. Gives Some Valuable Advice to His Former Colaborers in the Sedentary Teaching

From the Charlottetown Guardian.

Mr. Thos. Crofer, late principal of the Alberton, P.E. I., high school, has passed through an experience that will prove interesting to thousands of others engaged in the teaching profession throughout the country, more especially those whose health has been impaired by overwork in crowded and often badly ventilated schools. "Three years ago," says Mr. Crofer, "I assumed charge of the high school at Alberton, and found the pupils in my department in a rather backward con-dition, as their former teacher has to resign on account of ill health. When I began work, however, I was in excellent health and although I was never very fleshy, I was quite musclar and athletic. I was a great lover of out-door exercise and sports, and was an enthusiast over the game of football. Anyone who has ever beheld a genuine game of "old Rugby' will know that it is not at all a game for weaklings. I merely state these facts to show that at the time I took charge of the high school I was capable of undergoing almost any amount of hard labor. During the two years of my service I labored very hard in bringing my pupils to a high state of proficiency, for I wished to have the school in as prosperous a condition as possible under my management. Besides the close confinment in the school room during the day. I generally studied until twelve at night, in order to be well prepared for entering on a college course when my teaching days would be over. The people at the hotel where I boarded used to warn me against over-taxing my strength, but I disregarded their kind advice. Towards the end of my second year, however, I began to feel the effects of my double work I had imposed upon myselt. My evesight began to failrapidly, and it was not long until I had to consult an eminent occulist who order for me a pair of specially ground glasses. He attributed the failure of my eyesight to excessive night reading, and forbade me read any more by lamplight.

But the weakness of my eyes was not all.

Insomnia attacked me and I was unable to sleep at night and used to toss about

on my bed until morning without getting the slightest degree of rest. When I rose in the morning it may be readily imagined I was in no fit condition to begin my thin and emaciated that my friends thought I was doomed to death. At the end of the school year I had become so weak that I resigned my position, and at that time it did look as if my days on earth were numbered. I went to the country to give myself some chance to recruit, and at the urgent advice of a friend I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I remained on my brother's farm tor a whole year, during which time I used the Pink Pills, towards the and, however, only taking them at intervals. I had not been taking the Pink Pills long before I began to experience benefit from their use, and from the day I first felt benefit I steadily progressed towards recovery. I was able to take sound, refreshing sleep, my appetite became excellent and my weight increased so much that friends whom I had not seen for some time scarcely recognized me at first sight. am completely restored physically, and can take heavy lifts or engage in any kind of hard work without feeling the least weariness, and this improved condition of affairs I owe to the excellence of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My eyesight is also gradually returning and I hope ere long to be able to discard my glasses. My story, which I fear has been somewhat tedious, shows how many young men and many young women also have their health shattered by sticking too closely to the teaching profession. However there is an effective remedy within the reach of all. This remedy which I Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

have such pleasure in recommending is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create new blood, build up the nerves, and thus drive disease from the system. In hundreds of cases they have cured after all other medicines have failed, thus establishing the claim that they are a marvel among the triumphs of modern medical science. The genuine Pink Pills are sold only in boxes, bearing the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Protect yourself from imposition by refusing any pill that does not bear the registered trade mark around the box.

Uharacter and Hypnotism.

THERE would be little indeed in hypnotism, and the scientific world might rightly ignore its importance as a subject of investigation, if it were proved to have nothing more in it than the dominance of one will over another, or the power of so-called "suggestion" to control human minds. But as with any other subject worth investigating, much more is revealed to the student of hypnotism that which he at first sets out to discover. No sooner, for question proofs of the power of mind over mind and of "suggestion" in control. than he is forced to recognize how little potency power of resistance to them which is generated by an individual's own strength of character. No hypnotism in the world, as a great authority has shown, can make a real temperate person, when under hypnotic control, simulate or yield to drundenness; nor can a truly modest person be induce to do that which would, in waking hours, savor of immodesty. The man with true dignity of soul keeps his dignity intact, and one of real kindliness of nature shows no glimmer of harsh feeling.

And thus, as can readily be seen, one more proof from an unexpected source has been added to those already in our possession going to show the value and power of character, of that which a man inherently and intrinsically is, rather than that which he appears to be. It makes out, too, even a harder case against Adam, who need never have yielded to Eve but for a weakness in himself.—Harpers Bazar.
