

We wish we could make everybody believe that promptness is prevention; that there should be no delay when you are losing flesh and when you are pale, especially if a cough be present. The continued use of Scott's Emulsion in the early stages of lung affections does prevent the development of Consumption. Your doctor will tell you this is true and we state it without wishing to make any false claims or false promises. Free book tells more on the subject.

How to Use Court-Plaster. Did you ever notice the way a physician prepares the court-plaster for a wound? First, he folds the piece directly across the middle. The plaster should be considerably larger than the wound, to keep well over the edges; then slash the plaster lengthwise near by the middle. Straighten the court-plaster out flat, and cut the slashed pieces at opposite ends. Place the straight edges of the court-plaster on the fresh part of the wound, bringing the strips across the wound. Moisten them, and taking a strip from each side, draw them together gently, closing the cut, and stick the plaster in place. Continue with all the strips, and the cut will be dressed in a manner to insure a perfect border, and as well as any doctor could do it.

To Make a Neat Patch. Here is an uncommon way of mending a silk or woollen garment in which a hole has been torn, and where only a patch can remedy matters. The frayed edges of the tear should be carefully smoothed out, and the frayed threads trimmed off. Moisten a piece of the material with very thin mending, and place it under the tear. Lay this part of the garment on a flat surface and place a level weight upon the tear and let it remain until the mending is perfectly dry. The patch will be scarcely perceptible.

The Frog and His Wind. The frog cannot breathe with its mouth open, its breathing apparatus being so arranged as to exclude air at all times, except when the nostrils alone are working. In proportion to its size Britain has eight times as many miles of railway as the United States. The only total eclipse visible in England for 25 years to come will be in 1899.
