Nonex's 19th June, Nev. R. A. Stafford of the Metropolitan church Toronto, delivered a magnificent aermon. The immense church was filled to everflowing many coming twenty miles. The preacher in scathing terms showed that the semi-aristocrat was no good in churches. "The common people" wake up all churches, Some in the Lindsay congregation felt badly hit, their church membership being used more as a social standing, and for conference time than for the glory of God or the walfare of man.

Sunday afternoon a mass meeting of the Sabbath school was held. The children sang heantifully: Nev. Mr. Tonkin spoke; but the most interesting part was the live thrilling address of Mr. William Johnson of Bridge St., Helleville Sunday school. The children were sake, that he did not adhere to his first inten-tion of treating our remarks with silent con-tempt, as he may possibly think it would have been his best way out of a not very oreditable affair, before this correspondence is ended. It is the only course a prudent man will take, after making a serious, or perhaps a repre-hensible mistake, unless he is prepared to plend guilty, which evidently is not the case before us. "Silent contempt" savors so much of christian charity, sounds so big, manly independent, and dignified, while it leaves the impression of conscious innocence on the mind-

plend guilty, which evidently is not the case before us. "Silent contempt" savors so much of christian charity, sounds so big, manly independent, and disquified, while it leaves the impression of conscious innocence on the mind of all whe de not know the facts. It is generally the treatment the public prosecutor, indue and jury receive from the prisoner at the bar, when he is sent around the point for his misdeeds, and when the Rev. gentleman is arraigned at the bar of public opinion for his conduct, as paster of the Eldon church, he will find that "allent contempt" would have been his most effective plee in such a case.

That he would have taken such a course, we expected, and looked for no other, and we were greatly amused and shocked, when we were greatly amused and shocked when we were greatly amused and shocked upon by some designing, intriguing hypocrites who have been the diagrace of the christian church through all the ages from Judae location than their lowly prototype thought he had been countied, we were not large the work of the week were to stook, and we were willing he should get up from his awkward position as best as he could, with as little exposure as possible, without is inny to the public, not white the countries of the rever gentleman, we find the countries of the rever gentleman, we find the countries of the rever gentleman, we find the countries of a church there. hefore acting he did not confer with anything to Young of Trenton, related that years ago he held the first service in There were only a few present, and as held in an old log shanty whose to held he face to face over the water held face to face over the was chiefly confined to clergymen, and fairly considered, making all due the facts and circumstances are proposed in th and note the conclusion we may arrive at, with as little prejudice as possible. The Eldon church had been thrown into a great deal of confusion by the actions of a former paster, who had by some means, at the time poster, who had by some means, at the time district. The control of the control pastor, who had by some means, at the time unknown to the congregation, got them and their property into the detested unions, very much against their will, and to recover their position, cost them a long, tedious, and expensive law suit. The Court of Chancery fully resustated them, and they were now determined that the next should not, or would not decive them. Choice was accordingly made of Mr. Gillis from the fact, that amid all the dissentation and disorder which had so long distracted the church, he had remained to the horses to stop as he was falling. They ran down to the road; and when they saw what had taken place their relations, which brought out the whole family to the melancholy scene. When your correspondent arrived Mrs. Matchett was down beside her mangled husband, rocking nerself in an assony of grief, while the child.
