A Letter from British Columbia. VANCOUVER, R.O., Fob. 6th. 1889.

DEAR EDITOR- It is about time you heard something from British Columbia. I have to en here now a little over eighteen mouths, and how Vancouver has grown during that time, Acres of ground that were onvered with lange black long and hig pine stamps are now covered with the houses. A vest ago to day I went with a man shout half a mile out to went with a man about half a mile out to help him to find his lot; the ground was covered with his black logs, and be only know where it was by its position north of two timenesse pine trees that had been left standing. Today I went out and found him and his wife (he was not married then) in a fine house; and standing to his front door. I some of wenterfree in his front door I counted twenty free houses fight around him, either com-pleted or in course of construction, not one of which would cost less than $1500, and some of choin there. The lots that we walked ever then on theorets elect worth $500 or $1000, you would not get one of them to day for less than $4,000, This day to credit almost was only a look pole attempt the attemps and through the through the annups and through the bugs, to day it is a graded street going through the centre of the city from east to work, and taking in a park the stroum teropic of which in itself is ten miles. Latest News Notes.

Those English girls that are coming to California seem to be worrying a good many people. Now we ask how it is that when 30 English girls comes here to earn their bread and get married if some one wants them, there is a lot of talk alt over about it and the papers howl. But when our loads of Irish roman eatholic Biddys come here nothing is said, because when they come here they lay their wires and traps to catch protestant husbands and thus swell the future roman eatholic vote. Go about Mrs. Parker, bring out your English and Scotch girls so that our single men can have something to pick from but roman eatholic Bids. —Sun Francisco Gazette:

Mere's a pointer for some of our intelligent and enterprising farmers' sons, taken from the Coudersport U.S. Journals "Last week there appeared on our streets of harness, the same as used for horses, from, collor, hames and tage to the bits in their mouths. Not even the throatlatch was missing. The owner of the steers drives them with lines and they appear as well broken as the average horse team, obeying the slightest pull of the reins readily, and stepping off lively and prompt." Working entile are a variety in this section, being too slow to suit the average farmer's boy, but there's no reason why a couple of steers should's be broken and trained to make a two-forty gait as well as a team of coles.

Rev. Dr. Fulton—

He told of a poor woman, whose husband recently died, who went to a priest in Boston to have him pray the man's soul out of purgatory; but soe was without money. "What have you that you can sell?" inquired the priest. "Nothing but my stove," she replied. 'Sell it and bring the money to me, and 1 will see that your husband suffers no more," said the priest. She did so and brought the money to the list.
