SIGNIFICANT.

Mr. Pope, liberal conservative, son of late Hon, J. H. Pope, was on Thursday, 18th inst., elected for Compton by upwards of 1000 majority. His father's majority was over 800. The gains were in the English protestant districts. What can the English and Scotch protestants mean? Perhaps Ontario protestants will waken up and find out that the Quebec protestants know who are their friends.

THE GRAND ORANGE LODGE.

The Grand Orange Lodge of British North America meets on Tuesday in Goderich. We regret our inability to attend. But it is hoped the orangemen will give no uncertain sound on jesuit aggression. Further, they should unanimously resolve to introduce the Orange Incorporation Bill this session at Ottawa and have a Dominion act passed. There are enough loyalists in the House of Commons to carry it. or non-power of the Governor-general-incouncil to recall their allowance of an act after it was allowed and the province after it was allowed and the province notified, is not within the domain of Grand Lodge duties. It is not their place to censure but to act. They have an aim, the overthrow of temporal romanism. To accomplish that, let them be united, aggressive and looking to the future.

WHY ROMANISTS AND THE POST CONDEMN ROUSSHAU.

Jean Jacques Rousseau, born 1712, died 1778, was chief cause of the expulsion of the jesuits from France in 1764; of the unprincipled man, who tramples upon There is no denying that the special all laws, who does not believe in virtue; examiner's position elsewhere, he retains trains from Midland to Lindsay, and but regards it as a lure wherewith to

"He it observed, however, that throughout his life, amidst the infinite variety of his ideas, theories and intellectual excesses, the Calvinist's son remained a genuinely religious man, to whom communion with the Deity was a constant necessity, who arrived at many of the conclusions of Voltaire and Diderot by methods widely different from theirs, but who was far from heing in harmony with the scentical spirit of the age,

Nor were Voltaire and Diderot atheists. Imagine any man with brains being called a "Christian" where the only types were corrupt, voluptuous, drunken, rascally, aristocratic prelates; where religion was a stepping stone to infamy and debauchery. Those Frenchmen, classed as "atheists" by too many protestant ministers of the Gospel, were in France what Luther, Cramner and Ridley had been in Germany and England; i.e. leaders against romish tyranny in church and state. There is great from for a true Christian ministry in France to-day.

The people have at last seen the mistake they have been is for holy orders. It took them some time to discover the combination and the desperate material of which it was composed, and that it has been the curse at Woodville ever since it had a beginning, as the evident object was to drive every independent man out of it, and in this way bring everything to the standard of their own contemptible intellectual standpoint. Now that a change has begun, let us hope it will continue, until the people can re-joice in the fact that they have a reeve that can legibly write his own name, and who will not by his ignorance any longer disgrace them in the County Council. It is a singular fact that the more some people are unfit for office the more desperately they cling to it, and we believe the learned Carden Rancher would as soon think of parting with his valuable life, as with the reeveship. It is perhaps unfortunate for the defeated candidate, that he was backed up by the clique; he was only the nominal candidate, the election was practically the one candidate, the election was practically the one of last winter run over again, and if the reeve had any honor, manhood, or even a spark of decency about him, he would resign, and not keep a seat in council when he knows, if he knows anything, that two thirds of the electors thoroughly deepise him.
