The Death of Nelson.

O'er Nelson's tomb, with silent grief oppress'd, Britannia mourns her hero now at rest; But those bright laurels ne'er shall fade with Whose leaves, are water'd by a nation's tears.

'Twas in Trafalgar's bay,
We saw the foeman lay;
Each heart was bounding then;
We scorn'd the foreign yoke,
For our ships were British oak,
And hearts of oak our men.
Our Nelson mark'd them on the wave,

Three cheers our gallant seamen gave,
Nor thought of home or beauty.
Along the line the signal ran;
"England expects that ev'ry man.
This day will do his duty."

And now the cannons roar
Along th' sfirighted shore;
Our Nelson led the way;
His ship "The Vict'ry" named,
Long be that Vict'ry famed,
For victory crown'd the day.
But dearly was the conquest bought,
Too well the gallant hero fought,
For England, home, and beauty,
He cried, as 'midst the fire he ran;
"England expects," etc.

At last the fatal wound,
Which spread dismay around,
The hero's breast received.
"Heav'n fights on our side!
The day's our own," he cried!
"Now long enough I've liv'd!
In honor's cause my life was pass'd,
In honor's cause I fell at last,
For England, home, and beauty."
Thus ending life as he began,
Ingland confess'd that ev'ry man,
That day had done his duty,
S. J. Arnold.

The Jesuit Estates.

Now that all doubt to the permanency of the Jesuits Estate Act is at rest, the public, according to La Minerve, are beginning to ask what has become of the $400,000 grant which the measure authorzied. The reverend fathers, the journal says, have succeeded in drawing something under the name of interest and they have received lately the sum of $13,000. But the capital, where is the capital? La Patrie undertakes to explain. Premier Mercier and father Turgeon, it seems, made a bargain that the capital was to remain in the hands of the Government until six months after the pope signed the act of distribution. This was signed on April 26, so the payment will not be made until October 29. In the meantime the jesuits draw four per cent, interest on their share of the shekels.—Toronto World,

Sir,—Will you please permit me space in your paper to contradict a foul slander and falshood that appeared in your paper last week, against me and my many friends above the signiture A. Q. St. George. He commences his attack on the ground that I would not sign the petition of the Equal Rights Association to the Governor-General for the disallowance of the jesuits' estate act. The only remedy, if our representatives have done wrong, is the ballot box and not petition. I assume the whole responsibilty of not signing the petition, and am sorry that any reference has been made to the person being drunk who had the petition. I have mentioned no names nor will I now; but if you Mr. St. George, wish to expose your friend, I can prove what I have said to be true, and you are the liar, and not I. In the meantime I consider that you are entitled to a strong application of the cat-o-nine-tails for daring to expose a man's weakness through the press by using names. The young man I had reference to has a heart of steel, and no man would do more for him than I would, and I would ity than expose him. He also charges me with sending my own children to be educated in the roman cotholic convent in Lindsay, to create a jealousy among my orange brethren they might be no longer a burden upon them in the county, by casting a slur on me, who received my position by a standing vote of the whole county lodge, and who has had the honor of heading one of the grandest processions on the Twelfth of July that any town in the Midland district can head of No. St. George, I never sent my children to be educated in Lindsay corvent. and well you know it; but you thought I would pay no have been obliged to make way for those unattention to it and that you would make a big | welcome foreigners and go with the strike on behalf of the little man who did seek employment elsewhere. send his children to the convent to be educa-

That there is trouble shead, and that this is the alternative, no man in his sober sens will deny and the question now is which are we prepared to accept. If we are forced into one, will it not as a matter of course, and as certainly bring the other also. The greatest number of our farmers know by a painful ex-perience, that to borrow money on a mortgage to pay interest is a sure way of ultimately losing the whole farm. The same business like process which would sink the farm, would in like manner sink the country. The country like the individual is not the better for being in daht. The country is daht. being in debt. To go on as we have done, creating a great public debt for the purpose of discharging a smaller one, is a sure way of sinking the country, though it possessed ten times the resources which it now has, or is likely in the future to develope. Basides living as cheaply as we possibly can, all we can produce from our exhausted soil goes to pay interest on unsettled accounts, on notes for loans at short date, on mortgages of long date, and for the national debt, so that it is interest -interest every where, and what is worse than all, a large amount of this interest goes than all, a large amount of this interest goes out of the country never to return, except in the form of new obligations calling for more interest. While the politicians are intriguing for place and power, and wrangling in a very undignified and unseemly manner over unimportant party issues, the country is going down day by day, to utter decay and ruin.

That this is no fanciful idea prompted by a momentary feeling of despair is plain, for we have only to convince ourselves by looking have only to convince ourselves by looking about us and seeing what has been, and is still going on in the way of decimating our people. This exodus of native Canadians to the United States is a great movement which will require another great movement of equal force to arrest it, or it will go on until it exhausts it.

the present Premier of the House of Commons. We cannot think that Sir John will imitate the bad example set by some of the statesmen of the old country, by coming to the conclu-sion that there is a finality in politics; that this country are in marching order and must either retrograde or advance, to stand still for

This movement began shortly after the rebellion of 37 and 38, and has been gradually increasing in force ever since. differences which then existed in the country, and at the time were very intense, and bitter, but they have long since dropped out of the account altogether, for we find men of every shade of party politics, from the ultra conservative to the most intense radical have been and all that is implied, or goes on with it, to the great American Union. We do not say this is right, we simply state it as a deplorconcerns the welfare of the people of this country. That men will forego what is called loyalty for something more tangible and real, for personal advantages, family considerations, and privileges they see or think they see in another country, which they also think has been denied them here. As the country be-came depressed this feeling began to spread and increase in favor; farms were at first read-

It is true there are some men with consider ted, which it was all right for him to do in able resources who prefer to make a hame in order to catch a few votes, but it would have this country, but they are never Canadians; been a holy sin for me to do so, as I don't they have no ambition, no enterprise, and are destitute of ingenuity. But the worst of all In conclusion, Ibeg to say that I don't care is, they retain their old country prejudices been trying to get rid of, is any disadvantage, and instead of taking the lead as alive Canadians would, they prefer to follow in the wake of one that will take a hundred years to get even with us. It is the large number of such people among us that hang like a mill stone to the neck of the nation, depressing its energies and debasing its spirit, and until we can In discussing the condition of the country adopt some means or measures that will retain there are some things to be considered besides our native population there is little prospect

> We see a greater number of peo employing vast sums of money in smelting furnaces and other manufacturing concerns which are the life of a country, loan companies, which have been relieving the farmers of the ownership of their lands and sending them adritt upon the world. The loan company gives employment to none but directors, nanagers, clerks, solicitors and inspectors. To pay them large salaries out of enormous dividends thousands of farmers—tor it all comes out of them—have to be robbed. Such companies have been a curse to the farming community, for their principal business has been with them, for they brought us no rellef and they gave us no assistance. If the compelled to sell years ago it would have been better for them; they would have realized more for their property, and saved years of interest they have been paying ever since; beuseless endeavor to save themselves from total ruin. Had the capital which has been locked up in those pernicious companies been em-ployed in building furnaces and developing our mines, it would have given employment and made thousands of the people prosperous and happy, revived trade, furnished a market for the products of the farmer, and been the means of creating and adding untold millions to the capital of the Dominion, instead of consternation, ruin and despair.

HARTLEY.

THE Salem base ball club have intimated their willingness to play a friendly game with some neighboring club at the Harvest Home here on Sep. 9th. This really fine and now celebrated club is we understand somewhat weakened by the absence of several of its best members. Arrangements are being completed to have the game which will no doubt add to the interest and enjoyment of the occasion. In the meantime the sale of tickets goes on. Young ladies are making it lively in this vicinity.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely imitate the original self, which in this case means when there are no more to leave the country. The case calls for prompt remedial measures, and we trust that Sir John will not overlook their necessity, but will at once confirm his title to be further the public are cautioned not to be deceived by Nasai Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it.
