

The Victoria Warder FRIDAY, AUGUST 30, 1889.

A union of hearts and a union of hands A union of homes and a union of lands And the flag, Britain's Union, forever.

Gems of Thought.

What mortal knows Whence comes the tint and odor of the rose? What probing deep Has ever solved the mystery of sleep?

Some are roused, like gold, in the furnace of affliction. Although affliction cometh not forth of the dust, yet man is born to trouble, and the sparks fly upward.

The sweat of Adam's brow has streamed down ever since. The sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much; but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep.

Speak fitly, or be silent wisely. The tongue of the wise hath knowledge aright; but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness.

LAKE SCUGOG FARMERS AND LINDSAY MARKET.

The farmers along the shores of lake Scugog could not do better than bring their grain to Lindsay in barges and market it. Indeed they would do so on a large scale, but for fear the Lindsay buyers would get them here and then "hedge" them.

Let samples be brought in, and sales made on that basis; or let several cargoes come in and public notice of such be given, so that all buyers could be on the alert.

The lake Scugog trade is a good one.

A HINT TO LINDSAY BOARD OF TRADE OR TOWN COUNCIL.

Would not it be well for Lindsay to take steps to encourage Cartwright, Manners, and Mariposa farmers, along the shores of lake Scugog to come to this market with their grain? There are hundreds of thousands of bushels that could be brought here if only steps were taken to have it systematically done.

Why not charter a steamer and barge to haul on certain days, and bring farmers and their wives, as well as the grain to market here? Let the Board of Trade and the town council discuss the question, and develop and execute a plan.

One hundred thousand bushels of grain extra delivered in this town would certainly benefit it greatly. Let prompt action be taken.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

In Manitoba the liberals or reformers advocate the identical movements upheld here in Ontario by the liberal-conservatives. There is a difference however. In Manitoba the liberal-conservatives endorse the present policy of the liberals; while in Ontario the reform leaders bitterly oppose the advanced movement of the conservatives.

In Quebec things are much mixed. There one finds the liberal-conservatives to be the gallicans or independent catholics, and a portion of the English. On the other hand the reformers in Quebec are made up of the ultramontans, jesuits and free thinking Frenchmen.

In national affairs what should prevent a constitutional party made up of (1) Manitoba liberal conservatives and reformers, on Mr. Greenway's present platform; (2) Ontario liberal conservatives and the independent reformers, on Dalton McCarthy's platform; and (3) Quebec gallicans, liberals, and English generally under able Quebec leaders such as Chapleau, or Langevin or Fallon?

That party led by Sir John Macdonald would constitute a truly progressive party.

It would leave to Messrs Laurier and Cartwright the ultramontans, jesuits, dyed in the wool gits and annexationists.

THE BOLD MOYR IN MANITOBA.

According to the census of 1885-86, in Manitoba there are: 8,891 French Canadians, 1,309 French half-breeds, 11,180 French speaking.

On the other hand there are: 95,910 English origin, 3,097 English half-breeds, 91,180 Irish origin, 95,070 Scotch origin, 76,010.

Besides these, there are: 11,089 Germans, 5,075 Indians, 2,404 Icelanders, 303 Scandinavians (Swedes and Norwegians), 244 Hollanders (Dutch), 381 Russians, and other foreigners.

Under the laws of Manitoba the French is equally the official language with the English. Acts of the province are printed in both languages, and great unnecessary expense is incurred; and sectionalism engendered. Premier Greenway has boldly taken hold of the case and declared his intention of abolishing both the French language and the separate schools. And he is right, and should be endorsed ed by every true liberal-conservative in the prairie province.

If the eleven thousand French are to have their language official, why not also the eleven thousand Germans theirs? And the Indians, and Icelanders theirs?

When the debate arises in the Manitoba legislature it is hoped the liberal-conservative members will be found, not fossils as several of their reform friends seem to be; but true lovers of responsible government.

Now is the time to lay the seeds of a great nation. Let Mr. Greenway receive every encouragement.

A ROOM FOR FENELON FALLS.

The people of Fenelon Falls are likely at last to have an opportunity of progressing. The magnificent water power furnished by the falls, locked up idle for years will be sold at an early date. Then will our northern neighbor grow.

Further, there should be a swing bridge placed at once in the railway bridge across the river, and the approaches to the canal should be deepened. This would also greatly benefit the village.

THE ANTI-JESUIT AGITATION.

Speaking again upon the anti-jesuit agitation, La Minerve says: "Who is the man who would reap the greatest benefit, both for himself and for his party from the Ontario anti-jesuit and anti-conservative agitation, if Sir John were defeated at the next general election? It would be Mr. Laurier, the recognized leader of the liberal party; Mr. Laurier, whom the Governor-General would no doubt call in, as leader of the opposition, to get the inheritance of the old conservative chief, and confirm the triumph of Ontario extremists. Now, what is Mr. Laurier if not the bosom friend and political ally of Mr. Mercier, the very author of the Jesuits' Estates Act? There cannot be a single person who will not understand that Mr. Laurier's success at Ottawa would be Mr. Mercier's triumph at Quebec. The two friends and leaders go hand in hand and then we will see the new anti-jesuit Ottawa government, supported by the agitators and extremists of the anti-jesuit movement in hand with the so-called jesuit government at Quebec. That is to say, Mr. Mercier would reap the benefit of the anti-jesuit agitation caused by his jesuits' bill. This would certainly be a spectacle of high morality."

AS OTHER SEE US.

The Chicago Herald, editorially speaking of the French language question in Canada, says: "Some of them threaten, in case English is made the exclusive language in Manitoba and other western provinces, to retaliate by making French the only legal language in Quebec. In the event that the Dominion parliament prevents this, they intimate that they will withdraw from the confederacy and seek admission to our union. Of course they propose to take the St. Lawrence river and all the good fishing places there has been so much trouble about along with them."

Unfortunately for these French-speaking politicians, they would have no opportunity to use the language they care so much for in Congress or in their own state legislature. When the territory of Arizona was organized nearly all the inhabitants spoke Spanish and understood no other language. Still the proceedings of the legislature, the local boards and all the courts were in English. As a consequence, the people soon learned to speak the legal language of the country."

And with firm, judicious government such will be the effect in Canada within a few years.

The question is not one of language or race. It is one of religion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

From Portage La Prairie comes a spicy journal, "The Manitoba Liberal." It seems well edited and advocates doctrine identical with liberal-conservatism in Ontario.

The statue of Col. Williams will be unveiled in Fort Hope on Wednesday next by the Right Honourable Sir John A. Macdonald. A brilliant assemblage will be present.

A Cincinnati man has sued his doctor for $5,000 damages for filling his system with blood poison by injecting him with the elixir of life. If juries do their duty a man who has taken the elixir is more likely to recover damages than he is to recover his health.

Banditti in Cuba have recently released Signor Sardinia in consideration of a ransom of $12,000 in gold. The banditti business does not yet flourish in this country, but it is strange that the train robber who can go through a whole train alone doesn't take the passengers off into the woods and hold them until handsomely ransomed by their friends.

The article from the fluent pen of Swipes in another column contains some of the element of fact; but the inferences it would leave would certainly not contain many grains of hardpan facts. The prices of farm property have fallen much more in the Eastern and central States than they have in Canada. The cause of depreciation, as everyone should know, is the opening up of the prairies in the United States, and also in Canada. Of late years Canada's sons go to the Canadian North-West, rather than to the United States. Both these facts are lost sight of by Swipes, and both materially affect results.

MANILLA.

On Wednesday last Mr. James Gibson well known as a famous breeder of Clydesdale horses met with a serious loss in one of his five year old brood mares valued at upwards of two hundred dollars. This year she had a fine filly, which remains. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Gibson in his loss.

Mr. Barron Shows the "White Feather."

Friday's Meeting at Fenelon Falls.

For a long time Mr. Barron has, in true Jesuit fashion, been going around on the sly pretending he is attacked because he "wants to uphold protestantism." He almost weeps at times, he is such an injured innocent. Friday night's meeting completely unmasked him.

When he wrote his famous "open letter" to all the papers in the country, addressed to Charles Fairbairn, in which he tried to cast discredit on the county committee, especially on Sam Hughes, was when he overreached himself. Like his friends, the Jesuits, he showed his hand too plainly. We then unmasked him. Still his ring, under his benign direction he planned the "banter" racket; but it also failed to work. Then he whined to his little coterie at Fenelon Falls, who passed their little resolution as a set off to the "banter incident."

That led to the public meeting in Fenelon Falls last Friday night.

Mr. Barron and his friends were invited and one and a half hours placed at their disposal; but they failed to show up. Mr. Barron made frantic efforts to get an orchestra team so as to have an excuse; he also advised all his friends to remain away from the meeting, an advice most of them, having no brains or backbone of their own, acted on. In short they turned tail and ran. They proved themselves worthy of the name "Absent." Their childish excuse that they did not wish a public discussion, after they had asked a public proclamation of their acts, was laughed at by everyone.

Mr. Hugh Macdonnell was elected chairman, and after briefly explaining the object of the meeting, called on Mr. Barron or his friends to present their case. After being mentioned by name Mr. Barron and his friends did not desire a public discussion of the question. They evidently preferred a Jesuitical mode. Mr. Johnston did not remain.

Mr. Sam Hughes of THE WARDER then briefly reviewed John "Absent" Barron's record on the romanish question. He showed that in 1888, at Kirkfield when, in opposition to Mr. Barron he had pointed out the Jesuit sinning similar lines to their policies in Ontario under Archbishop Lynch, that Mr. Barron had branded him as a stirrer up of strife, had declared the roman catholics all good citizens, had stated that Hughes was not satisfied alone with attacking and insulting the roman catholic church in Ontario, but he was actually catholic church in Ontario, another province to obtain fuel for the flame. Mr. Barron there and then declared it was the sole business of Quebec to deal with the incorporation of the Jesuits, and that Ontario had no right to interfere.

This was contrasted with his subsequent actions. It was also shown how Mr. Barron had vigorously supported and still supports romanish aggression in Ontario in such matters as the loss of the school books, the objections to separate school law, and every species of pandering to popery. His dodging and duplicity in connection with the jesuit case were also exposed. His jesuitical attitude towards him for his vote was also exposed, and he is condemned by every one understanding the case, because he was a trickster, dodger, an insincere man. His own excuse to his friends, that "you would like to see the Jesuits" created great consternation among his most pronounced admirers. They saw his designs were all sham.

Mr. Hughes had his arguments and facts prepared to meet Mr. Barron face to face; and hence refrained from exposing him altogether. Charles Fairbairn, Esq., county master of the orange order next spoke. He explained the jesuit offered him by the "upstart" Barron on August 12th, and reviewed the past and present aspects of affairs. Traitors had always been found in every order, and Mr. Barron was fast pointing himself one in the orange body. Mr. Barron's action in the House of Commons, his speech in praise of the jesuits, much more than counterbalanced his vote. Mr. Fairbairn then referred to Mr. Barron's pandering for the romanish vote in the elections of 1888; how he intrigued with Mr. O'Leary and others, had a gang of young romanist roughs ready to put Mr. Fairbairn out of a meeting because he had dared to demand "equal rights for all and special privileges for none." He stated it as his belief that, but for the presence of a few old men, roman catholic chiefs, who had known him for more than twenty five years, Mr. Barron would have succeeded in having had him thrashed that night; for he did not let his best to incite them on.

He also related how one woman, a good roman catholic had found an envelope containing money, slipped under the door just after Mr. Barron had been consulting. The disgraceful conduct of Mr. Barron in sending his children to the convent and then getting out of a difficulty by lying and insulting the public school children and teachers of Lindsay was also exposed; as were a dozen other of his many pandering to romanism. Mr. Fairbairn also informed Mr. St. George that his son was in the audience and that if he would just go over and tell him that any of his children had been educated in Lindsay convent he would guarantee his name would be soundly thrashed. He was not yet so low or so had an orangeman or citizen as the little upstart Barron.

Mr. Fairbairn made a rattling speech and was loudly applauded throughout. Lindsay True Blues in numbers drove down, while from Kildas, Verulam, Cameron, etc., were visitors.

The meeting opened the eyes of many who had been partly blinded by Mr. Barron's whining and seeking for sympathy, and he was placed forth in all his barren bareness by both speakers, who only said half their say. They kept good down in store for the whining trickster and his tools on another occasion. God save the Queen and cheer for Messrs. Hughes, Fairbairn and Macdonnell, closed a very successful meeting.

LOANVILLE.

Special to The Warder. OBITUARY.—The hand of death has fallen thrice in this immediate neighborhood during the past week. The victims were—Thomas Lyons, a settler of consequence, contracted while waiting on his children who were affected with diphtheria last fall, at which time the oldest died. A wife and two children survive to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father, on the 21st of the month. Mrs. Alex. McDonald was the next. Her death was not unexpected as she was long a sufferer from the ravages of cancer, and was withal an old woman. During her years of suffering she has lived with her son-in-law, Mr. Donald McCrimmon. The patient kindness and care shown to the afflicted lady are highly commendable. The same may be said with regard to their attendance on the late Mr. John McAlpine, who also lived with Mr. McCrimmon. The late John McAlpine with his father and a few others were the first to settle in this part of the country. About the year 1826, these sturdy Scotchmen settled in this then unbroken forest, and hewed out their homes. The hardships and privations endured by these early pioneers, tended to prolong their lives much beyond the allotted span. But one by one they are quietly dropping off, and but few of the farmers in this locality, who are privileged and benefited by modern farming appliances, consider that these early settlers were obliged to carry their grists on their backs all the way to Oshawa, with no path to guide but a "thin line."

Yarrows.—Mrs. Duncan Jackson of Winnipeg, is visiting friends here. Mr. Donald McLean of Toronto, is ransacking, in the full sense of the word, Mr. Peter McEcheron of Toronto college institute, spent a month of his vacation at Penetanguishene, and returned here to remain with his friends a few days prior to going to the city.

RETURNED.—Rev. Mr. McKinnon returned from Prince Edward Island last week, looking younger than at his departure. He was accorded a welcome, sufficient, and intended, for two.

NOTES.—Our night office at the G.T.R. station was closed for a short time, but it was found necessary to send a night man here again. We regret to learn that Mr. J. W. Lyons, night dispatcher at Peterboro is ill of typhoid fever. "We" was a favorite while here, and he will know it if this should catch his eye, we mean it, when we say we wish him a speedy recovery.
