Sale Going Fine. Everything for them to have let him been returned by acclamation. But it is not to be supposed for a moment, that the Patent Combination, from the head hustler to the whipperin, are actuated by a principle so toreign to their base and selfish natures. They thought, that they had an advantage, and no sense of decency or fair play could restrain them; they seized upon it with all the voracity of hungry wolves. The organ shricked, the curs began to run and yelp, and the jackale set up a howi that turned the riding into a pandemonium of political excitement. The cry was on every side and from every quarter, we must carry the day from every quarter, we must carry the day this time, and to do that many a poor half crazed, and half demented dupe of the combination was prepared to break his neck. The wise men were again called together, and after large and anxious deliberation it was decided to give battle as expeditionally as receible that large and anxious deliberation it was decided to give battle as expeditiously as possible that no time be lost in securing a victory when no quarter was to be given the vanquished. The black flag was to be run up, the enemy was not only to be cruelly beaten, but humiliated as well, and every independent man who had presumed to appears them, should in the end was to be appealed to and the contest was to remained in their former position. The combination now brought out their best man in the person of Mr. Needler, a straight forward the action. McIntyre & Stewart for plaintiff, business man, who had long been a resident A. Hudspeth, Q. C., for defendants. of the town. He was wealthy, but he had a cranky disposition, was very unsocial, not even acquainted with the leading men of his party, and worse than all was wholly ignorant of politics. He had no idea of that which was necessary to efficient party organization. His whole attention had been given to his busi ness, and he felt himself in his new position very much the same as a cat would in a strange garret. He did not know when to go, or what to do or say, he was wholly out of his natural element, and in the hands of doubtful natural element, and in the hands of doubtful and unprincipled friends; who were hated by the better part of the people, whenever they went to advocate his cause. Though Mr. Needler was in many respects a very worthy man, it was not possible, it was not reasonable to expect he could succeed under such very unfavourable circumstances. One would have thought his former experience had been thought his former experience had been enough for him. He had before been a candidate of the reform party when it was united, and had been beaten by the treachery of his friends the left wing of the Patent Combinand that he had been accused shooting ducks on Sunday, and was otherwise unsound in the faith, which had been delivered to those good old saints, who could see growning sailors perish on the Lord's day rather than do anything so secular as to get a plank or a rope to save them. But Mr. Need-ler had turned from his evil ways, made a contession of his sins, and a profession of his faith, that, and by his liberal contributions he had become the foremost man of the Tabernacle, and it was now proposed by the afore-said wise men that he should become a second Joshua, gird on his armour, and with the help of the variant Caleb O'Leary lead the Patent Combination out of the pit, or the wilderness, where the venerable Moses McIntyre had left Arrangements so made, and the plan of the ampaign having been confided to the chiefs, the next thing in order was to sound the tocsin and call out the forces as expeditiously as possible. To do this effectually, idle politi ians were brought from far and near, even cians were brought from far and near, even from distant Algoma, and quartered in every school section to drum up every man who had a vote, and could by any possibility be induced to place it at the disposal of the Combination. Farmers' sons, who were innocently attending collegiate institutes far away from the scene of strife, were ordered home by the first express, the central committee finding the money to pay the expense. Voters living out of the county were sent for in hot haste to repair at once to head quarters, and join in the grand rally for the overthrow of Hudapeth. The word was, we are doing all we can to beat him, "but we can not promise you any mency him, "but we can not promise you any money as that would avoid the election, but come as that would avoid the election, but come along, you will lose nothing by it anyway." The reader of course will judge for himself, whether this urgent message contained an implied bribe, sent by a blooming disciple of political purity. After skirmishing about for two or three weeks, a general engagement ensued, which was sudden, short, sharp and deciving. The forces of the Patent Combination wars routed horse and foot the gallant. field, not a sound was heard, not a funeral sound at the head, the patronage was after all in the hands of the defeated, which was the only balm that could be applied to their only balm that could be applied to their wounded and disconsolate souls.

The Combination had their choice of ground and had been defeated in three straight battles, which had demonstrated very clearly their wonderful lack of ability. After the first common prudence should have taught them to find out the cause of their defeat and apply a remedy, but not one seemed to think that they had committed an excusable blunder, which would continue to operate against them, until the memory of it was lost in oblivion. They seemed to have no proper idea of organizing a party, or of the means of keeping it together. It is true they called a convention of delegates, and when they had met for deliberation, instead of proposing some principles or rules by that the rules and Fisheries Department, where humbug and deceive them. The idea of a convention was only to furnish them with tools to manipulate the electors, the better to carry out their schemes of personal gain, which they did not seek to merit by a course of straight forward, honorable conduct, but by dupping those they had depended upon for sacietance in obtaining an elevation. Their invention was, as a Combination, to control the reform party by means of the convention, invention was, as a Combination, to control the reform party by means of the convention, just as they had done for years. This is so plain there cannot be two opinions about it, and it is not to be supposed the people would put up with any thing so selfah and mean any longer, the only wonder is, they allowed it to pass as long as they did. But like every thing else it had to come to an end, and when it did, it was none to soon. The idea of the public good, formed no part of their duty, it was not a matter to matter the provided the provided themselves that as a party they never supposed themselves difficulties, as the night is intensity dark and a strong gale is blowing.

To be healthy and have lots of life and vin, be careful in dist, take plenty of aleep, and regulate the bowels, bile and blood with Burdeck Blood Bitters, a sure cure for consumption, biliousness, dyspepsis, all blood humors, scrolls and all broken down conditions of the system, —96-2.

The Patent Combination.

By some oversight Mr. Hudspeth had not resigned an unimportant office which he held under the government before his election, is consequence of which, it was the opinion of some that he could not held his seat in the Commons. To have no mistake about it, and to remove all doubts, or wrangling over the matter, he very promptly and honourably resigned both his office and the seat, and appealed on one more to the free and independent electors of the south riding to sustain him in his course. This action slone is the minder of honourable men, would have been smilicion for them to have let him been returned by accimation. But it is not to be supposed for a moment, that the Patent Combination, from the head hustler to the whipperin, are actuated by a principle so toreign to their base and estimations. It is said the combinations. It is said the combination of these an advantage, and no sense of decency or fair ever it is tried. Any man whose connection

There was only one case to be disposed of be well, and every independent man who had presumed to oppose them should in the end be compelled to waik the plank.

"Don" in "Toronto Saturday Night." There has been considerable discussion se to the propriety of methodist clergy men constituting themselves a committee of judges on the morality of the norse ring p at the Toronto Industrial Fair. It is open to question whether such ham fat dances as have The following are the bequests made by the en given there are worthy of a place on the rogramme, but as long as propie care to see woman kicking up their heels they may as well witness the exhibition there as elswhere, as there is no particular harm done. In fact the thing would not have been commented upon it it had not been for a few someweat officious preachers who have advertised that special feature by their condemnation. One as a right to ask who made these men to rule over us and to assert their taste and ideas as the standard to which others must enform. If they thought the show objection. able they had the right of citizens to privately ommunicate their ideas to the president, but for them to publicly talk about it being eimilar to the "can-can" is rubbish. If any thing similar to the can can as danced in the Jardin Mabille were shown to the occupants of the grand stand they would get up and get out so quick that the fences would down in the rush made by weman to escape from so vicious a performance. These clerical gentlemen cannot have seen the can-can or they would have said less about. It is so frequently the case that preachers use hyper-bole in their comparisons that they need to be sat upon. I don't suppose the Revs. Stone and Benson have ever seen the can can. If they had we have a fair right to enquire when and where, and if they havn't they should limit themselves to things they understand. Of one thing we can be sure, the Hungarian dancers are a lot of greasy old dames who are neither graceful nor attractive enough to draw a crowd to a beer garden, and could no more dance a can-can than a baby elephant could do a minuet. The Globe was perfectly right in laughing at the would-be censers of public morals, and I think with the writer of whom QUEBEC, Sept. 19.—About 7.30 o'clock this evening the whole city was thrown into intense excitement by a report that a great cliff slide had occurred in Champlain street. Thousands of people flocked to the scene of the terrible accident to find that the report was anthentic. Several thousand tons of solid rock crashed down with terrific force from almost under the King's bastion on the citadel and a little distance west of the end of Duffer-in-terrace and completely demolished seven stone and brick dwelling houses in Champlain street some three hundred feet below. The B Battery, police force and fire brigade corps were early on the the scene and rendered valuable assistance.
