The Prices of Grain.

The late harvest, while a bountiful one, has as yet been backward in yielding the dollars that many expected. This, we need not say, is owing to the low prices paid for wheat and barley, the two leading articles of agricultural produce. The decline in the price of wheat from $1 30 to little over 80 cents in about twelve months is remarkable, and must of course tell hard on the farming community, especially as hired help could only be had at very high rates. Coupled with these two evils is the feeling that the worst has not been reached, as it is feared that in the case of wheat there will be a further decline, and signs are not wanting that help will, for a time at least, be hard to find even at high wages. The large yield of wheat all over the greater part of the world forbids the hope of any improvement in price for a considerable period, and many are learning when too late that the early market was the best. Those who held over last year's wheat in hope of better prices have lost 50 cents a bushel by their imprudence, and may have learned a lesson that will be for their benefit in the future. It is only in rare instances that there is anything made by holding over grain when prices are fair, like those of last year, while in most cases heavy loss is the consequence. As regards the benefits of last year's crop in adding to the wealth of the agricultural community in Ontario we are beginning to have our doubts. Many of the farmers have sold out and "gone west," taking their capital with them, which for the sake of the Province may be justly regretted, and what is as bad, a large number of the labouring classes have used their increased pay to "go west" also. Large numbers of both classes are even now making their exit from this the fairest Province of the Dominion, some to Manitoba and others to Uncle Sam's prairie patch. In either case we wish them well, but we cannot help thinking they would have done better if they had contented themselves where they had a fair share of prosperity.

The Canal.

Though work on the canal in the village has progressed almost uninterruptedly since its commencement, our last allusion to it was on the 4th of November, since which date a very great change has been made at the scene of operations, though it has been effected so gradually that the result of a single day's labour can scarcely be noticed, which is not to be wondered at when the magnitude of the undertaking is considered. The number of men employed varies slightly from different causes, but it has averaged 90 for some time past, and on Wednesday of this week there were 103, exclusive of teamsters, on the pay roll. The majority of them are engaged in raising the flat shelly rock (which is deposited in very convenient layers) breaking it to pieces with heavy hammers and loading it on to the numerous waggons and carts employed to haul it away; but about thirty men are busy from morning till night drilling holes, which are charged with dynamite or blasting powder, and sometimes with both, and fired off either by a fuse or by an electric battery. The grand explosions, which fairly shake wooden buildings in the vicinity, take place at noon and night, and sometimes nearly a dozen charges are fired simultaneously, but smaller blasts are occasionally heard during working hours. Two and a quarter tons of powder and three quarters of a ton of dynamite were brought to the village some weeks ago and stored in a building built expressly for its reception in the grove, and it is believed that nearly all of this immense quantity will be used in blasting out the channel of the canal. Although gangs of men are working at both extremities of the cut and also near the middle, the chief force is concentrated at and near the east end, where the locks are to be built, and at that point the greatest progress is being made. The perpendicular rock some twelve or fifteen feet high, overhanging the old wharf, made a capital starting point, and huge masses—sometimes five hundred cubic yards at once—are blown off as often as the workmen below require it. Mr. A. P. Macdonald, the contractor, is at the Falls the greater part of the time, and makes frequent visits to Bobayzeon, where stone for the locks is being prepared. His son, Mr. R. Macdonald, is always to be found, during working hours, somewhere along the line of the canal, superintending the work, which is being pushed forward with all possible speed and vigour.

We are sorry to have to add that, since the above was written, trouble has arisen between the contractors and their men. On Thursday night, the end of the month, a reduction of wages from fifteen to twelve cents per hour was announced, and the employees thereupon struck work, which up to noon today (Saturday) they have not resumed, but we hear that some of them intend to do so on Monday morning.

The Pulp Mill.

On Friday of last week Messrs Scott & Henry, pulp manufacturers, of Napanea, visited Fenelon Falls, and at night had a four hours' interview with the members of the committee appointed by the ratepayers to negotiate with them. Whether they will or will not accept the terms offered by the village is as yet unknown, as they asked ten days to deliberate upon the proposal; but the inducements held out are, we think, so liberal, that it is a great deal more likely to be accepted than rejected. The site of the pulp mill, if erected, will be at the end of Francis street west, between the railroad and the lake, where sufficient land will be granted free of rent and taxes for ten years, and the proprietors of the mill are also to have a strip one hundred feet wide on the side of the market square bounded by John street. On this strip dwellings for their employees are to be built, and on this land and the houses thereon taxes will be levied, though no ground rent will be charged during the first ten years. Provision is made as to what is to be done at the expiration of that period with reference to all the property; but until we know that Messrs. Scott & Henry intend to locate themselves in this village, we do not care to go into the details of the agreement they will be required to sign. During this week a small triangular piece of land, containing less than a quarter of an acre, that was cut off by the railway from the rectory property, has been bought from Mr. Logan by the council for $50, and Mr. R. C. Smith (who came to the Falls on Wednesday evening) has been asked to put a price on a narrow strip also between the railway and Water street. Mr. A. A. McDonald, village solicitor and secretary of the pulp committee, has been professionally employed acquiring some necessary information, in order that, if a favourable answer be received from Messrs. Scott & Henry, there may be no obstacles in the way of an immediate ratification of the agreement between those gentlemen and this corporation.

RISKY WORK.—The horses employed in drawing the dumping cars on the canal have a more risky job than we are aware of. A couple of weeks ago—as recorded in last Saturday's Gazette—a horse owned by Mr. J. A. Ellis was drawn backwards by its load into the river, and last Thursday Mr. William Routhy's gray mare met with a similar mishap. Both animals were saved from drowning and were soon all right again.

PERSONALS.—Mr. John D. Smith was in Fenelon Falls on Thursday last. His many friends will be glad to learn that he and his family are all in good health. Mr. Robert Rutherford returned home last Wednesday from a long sojourn in Manitoba. He looks hearty, but we have not yet had more than a couple of minutes' conversation with him. Mr. James Dickson, who has been engaged for the past five months on a government survey, got home on Thursday evening.

SEVERING.—Last Sunday so much snow fell that next morning the Bobayzeon stage came in on runners in stead of wheels, and fully as many sleighs as waggons were to be seen in the village. During Thursday night there was another snowstorm, and buggies and waggons have entirely disappeared; but as the storms are quite dry and many wells in the same predicament, a thaw is hoped for, and of course predicted, by the luckless ones who are destitute of water.

DOMINION ORGANS.—We see by a paragraph in the Post that Mr. Wm Logan, of Lindsay, recently sold no less than five organs to persons living near Balsam Lake, and within a radius of five miles. We learn from Mr. Logan, who passed our office last Thursday with an organ in his sleigh, that the instruments above mentioned were all manufactured by the Dominion Organ Company, of Bowmanville, who in the course of a few years have built up a very large business, and now enjoy a reputation in their own particular line second to none in Canada or the States.

Irish Emigration.

The decision of Mr. Tuke's Committee, which I cabled you yesterday, is one of considerable importance both to Canada and to Ireland. The Committee met on Tuesday, and as the result of careful deliberation they resolved that they would take the responsibility of at once promoting emigration from the poorest districts of Ireland to a very large extent. They decided to accept the rules under which the Government has consented to aid the work, and upon them consequently will devolve the duty of selecting the emigrants and of, in part, obtaining the services of efficient agents to supervise the working of the scheme. Probably some seven or eight thousand persons will, by these means, be sent from the most poverty-stricken districts in Ireland, where long and bitter experience has shown them the impossibility of earning a livelihood, to countries where they can make a fresh start, and where honest hard work is morally certain to win a competence. The expenses of the work the Committee has undertaken are sure to be large, but at present no very definite estimate has been made. I believe, however, I am within the mark in putting them at something like £25,000. As I cabled you, Canada will undoubtedly receive a large share of this emigration, owing to the fact that the cost of transit to the Dominion is less than to other countries. Of course, the operations of the committee in this respect will, in a great measure, be guided by the wishes of the people who desire to emigrate, or by their possessing friends or relatives in Canada or the United States. But I am told that those who have no particular preference in the matter will be sent to Canada, and of these alone there is likely to be a considerable number. I will keep you fully informed of the steps taken to carry out this project.—Globe corr.

The Government's Duplicity.

The impression is gaining ground among the European residents that the Egyptian Government has no sincere intention of pushing Arabi's trial to a conclusion, notwithstanding the emphatic statements to the contrary. It is an open secret that negotiations are pending between the palace here and Yildiz, having for their object a discontinuance of all proceedings against Arabi. It is believed that the whole scheme of the trial is merely a blind to gain time until a plot which is said to have been concerted between the Sultan, Khedive, and Arabi can be perfected. Colour to this belief is given by the recent demand of the troops being organized for service in the Sudan that Arabi should be placed at their head. The Sultan is credited with having instigated the troops to ask this, and it pretty generally believed that the request of the troops will be complied with if possible. Arabi and El-Medhi, the so-called False Prophet, are said to have a perfect understanding, and should Arabi be released and placed in command of the Sudan expedition, the result would be the unity of the Egyptians against all foreigners. While the story appears improbable it has gained considerable credence.

A Story of a Pin.

The St. Catharines Journal narrates the following remarkable story:—A young lady residing in the village of Beansville was holding an iron pin in her mouth, while engaged in dressing herself, about seven months ago. The pin was black, one inch and three-quarters long, and was surmounted by a smooth round head the size of a No. 1 shot. She accidentally swallowed the pin, and was a good deal alarmed in consequence, but as she felt no after-effects at first she began to think that it might have passed away without leaving any legacy behind it. Unfortunately this was not the case. After a week or two she began to experience a pain in the upper part of her chest, just below the collar bone. The physician who examined the lungs found that there was a good deal of entarial inflammation of the bronchial mucous membrane, and commencing consolidation of a portion of the lung substance. The ordinary treatment was resorted to, but the patient sustained by the most nourishing and invigorating diet. She complained of a sharp pain of a pricking nature in the lung, and whenever she coughed of a taste of iron in her mouth. She said she was sure the pin was there, and was the whole cause of the trouble. She was right. On Sunday last, the 12th inst., after a severe attack of coughing, she felt a strangling sensation in her throat, and then something pricking the back of her mouth. On introducing her finger into her mouth she felt and drew out the pin, which was curled, and the self-same pin that she had swallowed seven months before. Although a good deal of irritation still remains in the lung, resulting from the long continued presence of the pin, it already shows signs of abating; and if tubercular disease is not induced, the physician in attendance expects a favorable result. The pin has been compared with a companion pin which was of the same size, and the swallowed pin was found to be one fourth of an inch shorter than the unswallowed one, and of much smaller calibre from oxidation and erosion while in the air passages. Both pins are now in the possession of the physician who has charge of the case.
