The Man who Struck Billy Patterson.

I gave you in one of my letters the fact that Georgia contributed the word "bogus" to our language. Georgia has a more illustrious distinction yet. She originated the famous phrase "Who struck Billy Patterson?" Thereby hangs a tale. William Patterson, a rich Baltimorean, owned land in Franklin County, Ga. In 1783 he visited Franklin, and in one of the sporadic rows indigenous to frontier towns in early days he received a rousing blow from an unknown press. Authorship and beauty are well party. The striker was a George W. Tillerton. Patterson inquired so hothy as to who struck him that a national saying therefrom crept into existence. In his will the inquisitive and dying Patterson left $1,000 to whoever should name the man that struck him. Just 100 years after Mrs. Jennie G New York, applies for the legacy. A Remarkable Circular Saw Accident.

The memises at Nos. 9, 11, and 13 York Street, New York, are used for an extensive packing box factory, conducted by George Blair. About forty men are employed ence in their ministers, from what is usually there. In the rear of No. 13 is a long, low shed, which covers a portion of the machinery. Directly under a skylight in the centre of the shed is a table used for "ripping" planks. A circular saw projects above the centre of the table about six inches. One afternoon, Caroline Bernheimer, a washerwoman, had been hanging out clothes dry on a line that was stretched on the shed roof. Shortly aiter 5 p.m., a workman, who was engaged at the "ripping" table, heard a sound of crashing glass, and the body of Mrs Mary Gravely, of Bailey's Cross Road, the unfortunate washerwoman was precipi. has a cow which, about four months ago. tated through the skylight. PARAGRAPHS OF INTEREST.

London is erormous, but the statement that it contains 5,000,000 people is apt to mislead. What is called the Metropolitan area, consisting of land within a radius of tifteen miles of Charing Cross, does contain very yearly that number; but estimating in this may ner from the City Hall, the New York metropolitan area would probably include 3,000 000. To talk therefore, of London having 5,000,000 people is delusive.
