fore, are all the old members of the council and Mr. Henry Austin.

At the close of the nominations Mr.
Cunningham was appointed chairman, and about two hours were spent in the exchange of accusations, recriminations and invectives; but they answered no useful purpose, and a public meeting called on Friday evening for the purpose of injuring Mr. McArthur had, it anything, a contrary effect.

A Fire Extinguisher.

Mr. P. C. Foy, general agent of Coghill & Walsh, Toronto, manufacturer of the "Canadian Grenade Fire Extinguisher," was in Fenelon Falls last Tuesday and gave a practical illustration of what the grenades will do in putting out an incipient conflagration, which we take it for granted is what they are intended for, as they could hardly be used after a building was fairly in flames. A large packing case, in which an organ had been brought to the village, was taken to the end of Francis street near the railway track, and after the front had been taken out and raised above the back, so as to make a wall about seven feet high, the inside was bedaubed with tar and drenched with coal oil, after which a match was applied to some kindling which had been placed at the bottom, and the next instant the whole of the interior was on fire. Mr. Foy then stepped forward with a grenade in each hand and broke them against each other in such a manner that the contained were scattered on the flames, which were extinguished as if by magic.
A second pair were used, but only one broke and very little of its contents reached the fire, which would evidently have gone entirely out in a few seconds The grenade consists of a glass globe, containing a pint, more or less, of some chemical fluid, highly saturated with and generating in fire-heat an immense volume of fire extinguishing gas, in which it is impossible for combustion to exist. It is evidently a handy thing to have around the house, and no doubt, as its merits become known, the majority of householders will have a few grenades hanging around ready to use in cases of emergency. They will keep for years, and if accidentally broken will do no harm to either person or clothing. If any of our readers desire further information regarding the "Canadian Grenade Fire Extinguisher," they will find it in the Toronto Mail of the 17th ult., which gives an account of a highly satisfactory test held in that city the day previous.

Died on New Year's Day.
We regret to learn that Mr. James Prescott, of Verulam, who passed the terribly cold night of the 19th ult. in the woods of Harvey, as narrated in our last issue, died on the morning of New Year's day. From the first it was evident that he would have to lose his feet, which were both frozen solid; but it was necessary to wait a few days to determine how far the frost had extended, and it was at length ascertained that the right leg would have to be amputated between the knee and ankle and the left a little above the knee.
The operation was performed on Wednesday afternoon by Drs. Lowe and Bonnel, the patient remaining under the influence of chloroform for about an hour. There was a slight hope of saving his life, but unfortunately it was not realized; his sufferings since he was frozen and the shock of the operation proved more than he could bear, and he gradually sank and expired about 8 o'clock next morning. Deceased, who was 65 years, and the owner of two good farms, leaves a widow and family, but the children are all grown up.

Honouring Gladstone.
LONDON, Dec. 29.—To-day is Gladstone's 75th birthday. The occasion is being celebrated with great festivity at Hawarden. Birthday greetings reach Gladstone from all parts of the empire.
The Prince of Wales has sent his congratulations. Many Liberal bodies have presented the "grand old man" with addresses expressive of continued confidence and profound admiration. The newspapers, without distinction of party, devote leading articles to eulogies of the great statesman.

Spiritualistic Insanity.
CHELSEA, W. T., Dec. 30.—On Sunday night William Pearson, a farmer, who is a strong believer in spiritualism, imagined he had received an order from a higher power to kill his infant. This he did with a hammer, and when he had finished the work he showed what he had done to his wife, who is also a spiritualist. He then said that if she could cut her throat he would do the same, and both were found yesterday half frozen with their throats cut, but not yet dead. Pearson revived sufficiently to make a statement to the above effect. The pair will probably die.

Railways.
CHICAGO, Dec. 27th.—The Railway Age says the past year has not been an auspicious one for railways. Their earnings have been reduced, while the managers and employes are apprehensive for the future. Fifteen bankrupt roads, with a mileage of 680 miles, have been sold under foreclosure. Receivers were appointed for 43 companies, several of them of much importance. Not a difficulty to keep their heads above water. About 4,000 miles of new main track have been laid on 166 different lines. Most of the construction has been on extensions or branches. The very large number of railway enterprises commenced or projected during the year indicates that railway building will still continue in spite of the business depression, and when good times return it will assume an extraordinary activity.

The Prayer Cure.
DENVER, Dec. 29.—A peculiar sect, who have their headquarters in Chicago, and who believe solely in the efficacy of prayer in curing human ailments, has been discovered in Denver. The establishment is known as "Tabernacle of the Lord, and is established in a building on the corner of old ladies conduct a foundling home.
Children who have been abandoned by parents, and other wails, who have been taken in from the poor-house, are raised until they are stout boys and girls, and are then sent to a farm near Boulder belonging to the same sect. The sect utterly disbelieve in the remedial power of physic. Yesterday a little wail died after a short illness. To procure a death certificate a physician was called, who refused to sign the paper, stating that the child had died of inanition.
Williams said he relied upon prayer, which had always cured children before.

A Doomed Spot.
The streets of London are about to lose another historic pile—Staple Inn, Holborn, by far the most picturesque of all the inns in London. Several of the houses are 400 years old, and were scooped by the great fire of London, which reached its northern limit just at this spot. The venerable trees in the court yard and the ancient buildings with their shade made a resting place in summer such as nowhere else could be found in the metropolis. The Worshipful Ancients have sold the inn to a railway company for $400,000, which will give them the handsome consideration of $60,000 each. The thinking of the guineas heeds the hurt that historic or antiquarian interest feels, and the instinct of the nation of shopkeepers is once more vindicated. People are flocking to the doomed spot, where they may be seen brooding pensively in front of the window at which Sir Matthew Hale often sat.

An Oyster Whips a Duck.
A rough and tumble combat between a wild duck and an oyster occurred here to-day. The duck was a large and full grown one that had recently come from the north to enjoy our winter climate. It was of the diving species, which inhabit the bays till the spring, when they return north. When the oyster feeds it opens its shell wide, till the full oyster is plainly visible. A sight of such a morsel was too much for the duck. He made a headlong plunge, inserting his bill between the oyster's open shell. Like a flash, and with the power of a vice, the shell closed on the duck's beak. Then came the struggle for life. The oyster, which was quite a large one, was dragged from its bed with three smaller ones clinging to it, the cluster being heavy enough to keep the duck's head under water. In this way the duck was drowned. Its buoyancy was sufficient to float with the oysters, and thus it drifted near the dock, where it was captured. When taken out of the water, the animal heat had not left the duck's beak.—The oyster still clung to the duck's beak.—Copus Christi Club.

The Fatal Blizzard.
TERRIBLE SUFFERINGS OF TWO MEN AND DEATH OF ONE OF THEM.
DENVER, Dec. 28th.—Tuesday week, when the snow-storm began, N. R. Smith and Elbridge Forsyth started with teams from Dotsro to Coffee Pot Springs, for lumber. Last Sunday the men had been heard from, and the storm still raging, a relief party was sent, and after a severe struggle through the drifting snow found Forsyth half dead from hunger and unable to move. Smith had died the previous day, and was found buried in the snow frozen hard. In Forsyth's clenched hand was a scrap of paper on which he had written a brief note to his wife. He is badly frozen, and if he recovers will be a cripple. He says they shot a deer the first day. The storm then increased and hemmed them in so they were unable to proceed. On Wednesday they saw the mail carrier passing on snowshoes, but were unable to attract his attention. The men subsisted on snow and raw deer flesh for three days, but could get no fuel and finally sank benumbed. Smith was a pioneer in the region.

The Earthquake in Spain.
TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE KILLED SINCE
CHRISTMAS.
MADRID, Dec. 31.—Further earthquake shocks were experienced yesterday at Valde Malaga, a city of 13,000 people, near Malaga. The shocks were violent, and many houses that had been previously damaged were utterly destroyed. The people were terror-stricken and in haste abandoned the city. They are encamped outside the town, and the telegraph station has been removed to the same place. A thousand houses at Alhama are in ruins. The work of searching the debris for the dead was vigorously prosecuted yesterday and 192 bodies were recovered. The shocks occurred between seven and ten in the morning. There was a further loss of life and property at Periana, Rigerdo, Vennela and Alfanatou. It is estimated that the total number of persons killed since Christmas is 2,000. The town of Albuquerque was completely destroyed and several local officials. Subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers have been started at Madrid, Malaga and Granada. The king subscribed $6,000.

Sent to Perish in the Wilderness.
The following letter has been handed to the Toronto Globe for publication. It is from a labourer who was lately sent into the wilderness on a wild goose chase after a railway contractor:— DEAR MOTHER,—I write you these few lines which I hope to find you in good health, as the departure of this leaves me at present. To think of telling you about my journey would be im-
We came 40 miles on sleighs, and then the teamsters got up before day and turned back. From Stony Lake the main road went no further, but the teams could have gone the whole way, but there was a plan between the employment agent and the teamsters. We had to walk 110 miles through the bush.
We made a fire in the bush and sat around it until morning. There were two loaves of bread and in the evening, we shared it round and had a supper of bread and snow for nights. We did that,
and last night I reached my destination, Callander. The contractor that we were sent to is not on the line, for he sold all his teams and tools and went away four weeks ago. The employment agent knew that as well as I do. Now, he is a murderer, and a cowardly one at that. Out of the 30 men that started only six reached here. Some went back, more lost their way in the bush, and I was one of the men that lost their way. I lost my way and could not find the track for three hours.
I lost my pipe at 7 o'clock in the morning, and I thought I was going straight, and at 12 o'clock in the day I thought I was at least six miles from where I lost it, when I found the pipe in the snow. It was the means of putting me on my right road and saving my life. I got employment for myself and six more from a man I worked for out at Little York last summer. JOHN DRISCOLL.

the duck. He made a headlong plunge,
the duck's beak.—Copus Christi Club.

The Fatal Blizzard.
AND DEATH OF ONE OF THEM.
DENVER, Dec. 28th.—Tuesday week,
when the snow-storm began, N. R. Smith
snow found Forsyth half dead from hun-
note to his wife. He is badly frozen,
in so they were unable to proceed. On
pioneer in the region.

The Earthquake in Spain.
MADRID, Dec. 31.—Further earth-
day at Valde Malaga, a city of 13,000
people, near Malaga. The shocks were
previously damaged were utterly de-
life and property at Periana, Rigerdo,
town of Albuquerque was completely de-
Granada. The king subscribed $6,000.

Sent to Perish in the Wilderness.
had to walk 110 miles through the bush.
We made a fire in the bush and sat
away four weeks ago. The employment
agent knew that as well as I do. Now,
could not find the track for three hours.
I lost my pipe at 7 o'clock in the morning, and I thought I was going straight,
York last summer. JOHN DRISCOLL.
