Railway Wreck.

COLLISION ON THE GRAND JUNCTION BRANCH.

BELLEVILLE, May 19.—Word came to the city early yesterday morning that another accident had occurred on the Grand Trunk, this time on the Grand Junction division. The news soon spread, and, as is usual when there is so much confusion, the account of the number killed and wounded was greatly exaggerated. The pitch-in happened at Corbyville, about four miles north of the city, and the news was at once flashed over the wires. The Globe correspondent was in a very few minutes at the scene of the disaster. An auxiliary train was hastily made up at the G. T. R. depot and despatched to the scene of the wreck in charge of Mr. John Bell, Q. C., Solicitor of the Grand Trunk.
He was accompanied by Mr. D. Gunn, Agent, and Drs. Taey, Eakins, Willson and Farley. In the meantime all sorts of rumors were afloat, but the minds of an anxious people soon became easy when it was authoritatively stated that the accident was not as bad as reported at first. About twenty were injured more or less, no deaths having yet occurred. The fortunate escape of so many people was cheering news indeed.

The accident was caused by a timber train of twelve cars pitching into the Madoc passenger train in charge of Conductor Kerr. The latter train was half an hour late and was just moving slowly out of Corbyville when the timber train hove in sight. The latter was not observed by any of the train hands on the first train, but Engineer W. Rodgers, of Lindsay, in charge of the timber train, at once saw the danger and reversed his engine. The train was a heavy one and could not be easily managed once it was under way. On it came, overtaking the passenger train, slowly but surely. Just before the crash Fireman Thompson jumped to save himself. Rodgers remained at his post, and with his hand on the throttle plunged into the car filled with passengers, who were unconscious of their terrible danger. There was a wild shriek, a gush of steam and all was over. How fifty-five passengers escaped instant death is wonderful. Many were crushed under timbers and had to be chopped out. Others crawled out through the ventilating windows after being nearly suffocated by the heat and smoke from the engine. Fortunately no steam pipes broke or the passengers would have been scalded to death. Your correspondent saw over twenty of the wounded, who gave a graphic account of their experience.

The only explanation of their miraculous escape lies in the fact that the timber train had about stopped when the pitch occurred. The cowcatcher raised up the floor of the car and the sides bulged out. Those passengers who did not tumble down outside of the engine were forced up over the engine and tightly wedged in on the top of the car.
Many were seriously if not fatally wounded.

The coal consumed in one passage by the ocean monsters of to-day would have been a complete cargo for the fast steamers of 1860.

A great deal of damage has been done throughout Austria by storms.
At Boskowitz eight persons were killed by lightning and a number of houses were burned.

Four locomotives, to be run by soda, which takes the place of fire under the boiler, have been built in Philadelphia.
They are for service on the streets of Minneapolis, where steam engines are forbidden.

A Singular Fatality.

HOW THE FAMILY OF JAMES MOONEY ARE ONE BY ONE TAKEN OFF.

RICHMOND, Que., May 20.—A singular fatality has befallen the family of the late James Mooney, of Ulverton.
It is not yet two years since the father was suddenly taken from them, and on the first of last March Miss Kate Mooney dropped dead, supposed to be from heart disease, though she was apparently in good health up to the time of her death. Her brother James, who was married, died suddenly on the morning of the 10th inst. Although for some time in poor health, he had been at L'Avenir the previous evening, a distance of about four miles, and remarked that he was feeling much better. His aged mother was so prostrated with grief at this second shock that she died on the 13th inst., and last evening Mrs.
Kelly, the mother of the young widow, walked to the house of her daughter, half a mile distant, and died soon after reaching the house. A young daughter at home, on hearing the sad news of her mother's death, became senseless and speechless, and for several hours it was feared she would not rally, but she is reported better this evening, though still weak. The deepest sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

Skeletons Found.

On White Island, near Tonawanda, N. Y., eleven very peculiar skeletons were dug up one day last week. The skeletons were found in a case of cobble stones, in which the bodies had originally been buried. The skulls denote the lowest order of intellect, closely resembling those of an ape. The thigh bones were abnormally long and very slender, and there were thirteen ribs on a side. The shoulder-blades were entirely lacking. Only one implement was found with the bones. It was of stone, six inches in length, two and a half in width and about one quarter of an inch in thickness. Through the centre were two small holes. It was worn smooth by use, and is thought was used for skinning animals.

A Law for Drunkards

MINNEAPOLIS, May 17.—Senator Scheffer's drunkard's law went into effect yesterday. It provides that whoever becomes intoxicated by voluntarily drinking intoxicating liquors shall be deemed guilty of the crime of drunkenness and upon conviction shall be punished as follows:—For the first offence a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50, or by imprisonment for not less than ten nor more than forty days.
For the second offence, by imprisonment for not less than 30 nor more than 60 days, or by a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $50. For the third and all subsequent offences, by imprisonment for not less than 60 days nor more than 90 days.

In a sanitarium at Tarrytown, N. Y., is a petrified prehistoric lizard, 11 feet and 1 inch long, 18 inches broad at the shoulders and 9 inches at the head, and weighing 300 pounds. Its color is grey and its substance sandstone. The specimen, which is almost perfect, was exhumed on the shore of Charleston Lake, five miles from Farmersville, Ontario, in July last.

An Essex Centre man has adopted an original scheme for securing seed for his garden without money and without price. He goes to a friend and requests seed enough to plant one hill, and in return for the donation promises to name the hill after the donor. After he has gone the rounds of his acquaintances he has seed enough for his whole garden.
In a few weeks Laird's hill, Jones' hill and Fuller's hill, and all the other hills, will bud forth, producing some 10 and some 100 fold, thus rewarding the enterprising gardener for his well-developed netve.

A Pittsburg, Pa., doctor says he can diagnose ailments by examining a single hair of the patient. Two young men, as a joke, took him a hair from a bay horse. The doctor gravely wrote a per-scription, and said his fee was $25, as the case was precarious. They were staggered, but paid the fee, and after they got out laughed all the way to the apothecary's. The latter took the per-scription and read in amazement:— "One bushel of oats, four quarts of water, stir well and give three times a day —and turn the animal out to grass."
Then the jokers stopped laughing.
