

A Nameless Hero.

HEROIC RIDE TO DEATH OF AN UNKNOWN PAUL REVERE.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—A nameless Paul Revere lies somewhere among the dead. Who he is may never be known, but his ride will be famous in local history. Mounted on a grand big bay horse, he came riding down the pike which passes through Coeemaugh to Johnstown like some angel of wrath of old, shouting his portentous warning, "Run for your lives to the hills," "Run to the hills." The people crowded out of their houses along the thickly settled streets, awe-struck and wondering. Nobody knew the man, and some thought he was a maniac and laughed. On at a deadly pace he rode, and shrilly rang out his awful cry. In a few moments, however, there came a cloud of ruin down the broad streets, down the narrow alleys—grinding, twisting, hurling, overturning, crashing and annihilating the weak and the strong. It was the charge of the flood, wearing its coronet of ruin and devastation, which grew at every instant of its progress. Forty feet high, some say,—thirty according to others—was this sea, and it travelled with a swiftness like that which lay hidden in the heels of Mercury. On and on raced the rider, and on and on rushed the wave. Dozens of people took heed of the warning and ran up to the hills. Poor faithful rider, it was an unequal contest. Just as he turned across the railroad bridge the mighty wave fell upon him, and horse, rider, and bridge all went out into chaos together, and perished, the hero who turned neither to right nor left for safety for himself, but rode on to death for his townsmen.

The Man Who Bought a Wife for $1.

WINDSOR, June 8.—A short time ago these despatches related how Joseph Coyveau purchased Charles Coyveau's wife for $1. Since then the latter decided to cancel the bargain, and endeavored to get his wife back, but Joseph would not agree to it. A warrant was issued for Joseph Coyveau's arrest, but the constables have been unable to find him. Last night Constables Masters and Smith went to Joseph's house. As soon as Coyveau heard them at the door he ran to the cellar. He had a hole dug to the cellar from the outside, and when Masters went inside he crawled out and started for the marsh. Masters saw him and fired two shots, but Coyveau kept going, and reached the marsh. The officers returned home. It is claimed that Coyveau was hurt by the shots, as he limped when running.

Ontario Has Not All the Weather.

The weather among the California mountains has been something phenomenal this season, and is set forth as follows by the Truckee Republican of May 15: "The snow of last week had nearly melted when last Monday another storm set in. It had snowed, blown, rained, sleeted, squalled, blizzarded, frozen, thawed, and raised particular Ned for three days. Last night the snow had almost disappeared in slush. This morning the town was buried eight or ten inches deep in as modest a robe of fresh, pure snow as ever caused a poet to rave. During the day it has been warm and sunshiny at times, storming like fury at other times, and again it has been piercing cold—too cold to snow. Everybody tries to grin and bear it, but it's perfectly awful."

Another Sportsman's Paradise.

ROCHESTER, June 7.—A special to The Herald from Olean says: The largest artificial body of water in the United States is situated 732 feet above Olean. It is said to be liable to give way at any moment. It was formerly used to feed the old Genesee Valley Canal, but it is now merely a sportsman's paradise. It is condemned by public sentiment and the State Superintendent of Canals, and also by people residing in Cuba, Hinsdale, Olean and Alleghany. In fact the whole Genesee Valley has protested against the maintenance of the reservoir, as it is a public menace to the people and is liable to sweep them into chaos, as did the Johnstown reservoir, at any time.

Sixteen persons were injured in an accident on the Lehigh Valley railroad near Sugar Notch on Monday.

An Indian in the everglades of Florida, it is said, is still holding in slavery Negroes that were his when the war broke out.

A number of settlers have reached Manitoba from Dakota. After staying five years in Uncle Sam's territory without reaping a single crop they became disgusted.

A terrible cyclone devastated Arkansas City on Saturday night. Two colored girls were killed and their mother and sister injured. Two churches and several residences were wrecked.
